Lead, a heavy metal that is particularly dangerous to infants and small children, can cause convulsions, coma and death when absorbed in high doses. Even at lower levels, though, the metal is harmful to the nervous system, the developing brain and kidneys.

Young children exposed to lead early in life, even at low levels, often suffer from behavioral and learning problems when they enter school.

Both the city and county are still working through HUD grants awarded in 2015. To date, Cuyahoga County has cleaned up, or abated, lead in 107 homes or rental units with its current grant, with 114 more to be completed by the end of November 2018, according to John Sobolewski, supervisor of the county's lead program.

[IA] UPDATE: Waterloo awarded $3M lead-removal grant (The Courier, IA)
The Courier
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Jim Jamison)
WATERLOO — The city has been awarded a $2.9 million federal grant to help remove lead-based paint and other health hazards from homes and apartments.

Waterloo Mayor Quentin Hart on Wednesday announced the U.S.Department of Housing and Urban Development had approved the lead remediation funds, expected to protect nearly 120 families over the next three years.

"We have older housing stock in some parts of our community, and we want to make sure we are able to address any of the health concerns," Hart said.

Waterloo and Clinton were the only Iowa cities to receive the grants this year through HUD's Lead-Based Paint Hazard Control Program. Waterloo received similar grants in 2003, 2007 and 2011 but failed to win a renewal in 2015.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

While lead-based paint was banned for housing use in 1978, many older homes still contain the metal, which is especially dangerous to children. Lead poisoning in young children can cause intellectual disabilities, damage to the nervous system, slowed development and hearing and speech problems.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has granted more than $127 million to 48 government agencies across the country to protect children and families from safety hazards in the home.

The city of Phoenix will receive $2.9 million, while Pima County is set to gain $1.65 million.

The money will protect 7,600 American families "living in homes with significant lead and other home health and safety hazards," according to a statement.

HUD announced the news on Tuesday as part of "a continuous effort to keep families and their children safe from lead-based paint and other home health and safety hazards." The department is headed by former GOP presidential candidate Ben Carson.

[AZ] Head of troubled Navajo Housing Authority to step down (KVOA-TV NBC 4 Tucson, AZ)

(6/28/2017 8:21 PM, Susan Montoya Bryan)
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - The chief executive of the largest American Indian public housing authority in the U.S. will be stepping down as the Navajo Nation looks to rebuild its reputation after concerns were raised about the lack of housing on the vast reservation.

Newly appointed members of the board that oversees the Navajo Housing Authority made the announcement Wednesday. Aneva Yazzie's last day will be Friday.

The board says it was a mutual decision and that Yazzie's departure will mark the first step in rebuilding the organization.

Navajo housing officials in recent weeks have defended themselves from accusations that they overspent millions of dollars in federal grant funds. The allegations spurred a congressional investigation, but federal officials have found no evidence of fraud or abuse.

Still, Navajo officials acknowledge that major changes need to be made to meet the tribe's housing demands.

WAMC Northeast Radio
(6/28/2017 12:41 PM, Lucas Willard)
AUDIO. Leaders in Saratoga Springs have made their pitch for three workforce housing proposals that aim to provide more apartments in a city desperate for workers and satisfy federal requirements for affordable housing.

Saratoga Springs Mayor Joanne Yepsen and the city's Housing Task Force have been working for the past three years to find ways to make the Spa City a less expensive place to move to.

Yepsen, a second-term Democrat, said the city's "relatively free market process" has worked to make the city a desirable place to live in recent years.

"But it's not working so well to help our local businesses bring employees and a workforce to Saratoga Springs," said Yepsen.

The city is trying to find new ways and new places to build affordable homes and apartments to satisfy requirements from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

One approach that has gotten a cool reception from developers is called "inclusionary zoning" or IZ. IZ would require new developments to set aside a percentage of units to low- and moderate-income families.

But the Housing Task Force is taking a different approach by pushing three separate workforce housing developments around the city, totaling more than 380 units.

[CA] Los Angeles takes a step toward making evictions more difficult for landlords (Los Angeles Times)
Los Angeles Times
(6/28/2017 7:39 PM, Andrew Khouri)
If a landlord wants to evict a tenant, the process can be simple. In many cases in Los Angeles, and across California, property owners only have to state they are ending the lease.

No justification is needed — only notices of at least 30 days to provide some time to move out.

Now, amid an affordable housing shortage and reports that low-income tenants are being displaced for wealthier renters, Los Angeles is exploring whether to require landlords to show "just cause" to evict, reasons that would include damaging a unit, creating a nuisance or not paying rent.

Tenants of rent-controlled units already have that protection, but landlords of newer, unregulated buildings can end a month-to-month tenancy without providing a reason.

San Francisco Chronicle
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Erin Allday)
What we reported: San Francisco can make a substantial dent in homelessness only by tackling one of society's most intractable problems: mental illness.

People with mental health disorders are the most visible but hardest to reach of San Francisco's homeless. They make up a third of the homeless population and, by some assessments, nearly two-thirds of the chronically homeless — the 2,100 or so people who have been homeless for at least a year.

But treating them requires aggressive, seamless care that isn't consistent with life on the streets. Advocates for people who are homeless and mentally ill understand how best to treat their patients — with individualized care in stable, supportive housing — but the system isn't nearly large enough.

The city needs beds. It needs inpatient psychiatric beds to help stabilize people who are having mental health emergencies, and transitional beds for when they're released from the hospital but still in need of support. It requires beds for people who need addiction treatment and beds in facilities that teach life skills and provide mental health care.

The Atlantic CityLab
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Henry Grabar)
Local politics is always, in one way or another, about housing. In San Francisco, a deep blue city whose fault lines long ago ceased to resemble America's, that politics is a vitriolic civic scrimmage, where people who agree about almost every national issue make sworn enemies over zoning, demolition, and development. It's like a circular firing squad at a co-op meeting.

On June 1, members of a group that advocates for housing growth to lower rents called San Francisco YIMBY (for "Yes, In My Back Yard") helped organize a panel in downtown San Francisco: "The Political Dynamics of Housing." Over food and drink, a group of local experts and activists tried to talk through why, despite widespread local consensus that something must change, San Francisco continues to be the country's most expensive city for renting an apartment.

The day before the event, the San Francisco chapter of the Democratic Socialists of America—an organization founded in 1982 whose membership more than tripled, in the 12 months ending in March 2017, to 19,000 dues-paying members—included a note in their regular membership letter. "The SF YIMBY Party is a pro-development, pro-gentrification, pro-landlord organization," it read. “DSA SF is seeking folks to come up with materials and a plan for challenging this narrative and the disinformation they will undoubtedly be spreading regarding housing at this meeting."

That call, and an ensuing shouting match at the panel, was the most overt skirmish in a feud between the DSA and the YIMBYs, two groups that have more in common than you might expect. Each has harnessed the political energy of young people in West Coast cities. Each considers entrenched wealthy homeowners an enemy. They have a good number of members in common. And the goal, of course, is the same: more affordable housing.

San Francisco's left—tenants and homeowners both—has long been hostile to new development, and the YIMBYs, as a group that claims tenants' interests broadly align with developers' and, therefore, that cities should do everything they can to increase the housing stock, have received particular opprobrium. In a vicious article in TruthOut and the San Francisco Examiner published last month, writers Toshio Meronek and Andrew Szeto called YIMBYism a “libertarian, anti-poor campaign to turn longtime sites of progressive organizing into rich-people-only zones” and compared pro-growth advocates to the white nationalists of the alt-right. (That second charge was later deleted.) San Francisco supervisor
Aaron Peskin compared YIMBYism to the U.S. military's destruction of the Vietnamese village of Ben Tre: “They have a very Ayn Rand, bomb-the-village-to-save-it point of view,” he told San Francisco magazine in December. (San Francisco, population 850,000, being the village.)

[MN] Landlords sue Minneapolis over Section 8 anti-discrimination ordinance (Minneapolis-St. Paul Star Tribune, MN)
Minneapolis-St. Paul Star Tribune
(6/28/2017 5:24 PM, Eric Roper)
A group of Minneapolis landlords has sued the city over a new law that bars them from discriminating against tenants using Section 8 vouchers.

Who is affected?

A city document from March said less than 6 percent of the city's rental units would be affected by the ordinance. Most apartments in the city are too pricey to qualify for the housing voucher programs like Section 8.

Renters receiving housing vouchers typically pay a portion of their apartment rent, with the voucher making up the rest. The share paid by the tenant depends on their income, the number of bedrooms and whether they pay for heat.

Nearly all Section 8 voucher holders in the city identify as people of color, the city document said, and about half of the 17,000 residents served by the program are children.

Landlords warned in a media campaign that the ordinance would result in “coastal rents” in the city and longer wait times to find an apartment. The council voted unanimously to approve it.

The lawsuit says the ordinance changes landlords' business practices, requiring them to submit rent increases for review and leaving apartments vacant for inspection between tenants. To comply with Section 8 rules, the city's public housing authority must inspect each unit before it is rented out.

“I know that this whole issue of inspections and delay caused by inspections has been raised as a concern," Segal said. “And certainly I think that's something the city and the public housing authority has been looking at, to make sure that that can happen in a timely fashion."

With a new resident social worker, the Brooklyn Public Library is pushing staff and patrons toward a culture of inclusivity.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A little after 10 a.m. on a humid Thursday in June, a fan is already whirring in the Bedford Avenue branch of the Brooklyn Public Library. The building has just opened, but already people are pushing through the doors and posting up at computer stations or tables on the mezzanine. Many will stay put all day.

The library, just down the block from a clanging subway station in the Bed-Stuy neighborhood, is a salve for the chafing street noise and the heat. There's nothing to buy, no time limit, no implication that you've overstayed your welcome. The airy, 17,000-square-foot space is a comfortable homeroom for people with nowhere else to be.

And today, there are donuts. Those are a big draw, explains Harold Holloway, as he rearranges coffee stirrers and packets of sugar. Holloway buzzes around a table just off the reference desk, next to a magazine rack holding Latina Style and Highlights.

Holloway is an advocate with the Street to Home program from Breaking Ground, a nonprofit that aims to connect homeless New Yorkers with housing.

[NY] Rethinking Homeless Shelters From the Ground Up (The Atlantic CityLab)
The Atlantic CityLab
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Krutika Pathi)
One nonprofit wants to reward results, and change the funding model in the process.

Muzzy Rosenblatt takes issue with the conventional way of sheltering the homeless. As the executive director of the Bowery Residents Committee (BRC), a provider of shelter and services to New York City's homeless population, he wants to go beyond just putting up beds. Instead, he proposes a whole new consideration of how shelters are both run and funded.

In a new volume entitled What Matters: Investing in Results to Build Strong, Vibrant Communities, from the Nonprofit Fund (NFF) and the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco (FRBSF), Rosenblatt authors a chapter that charts out a blueprint for change. His suggestion: a shift toward a results-based funding model. Rosenblatt plans to apply this vision for the social sector to the BRC's latest project—an amalgamation of a housing development and a shelter. CityLab spoke with Rosenblatt about the in-progress venture, slated to open in the Bronx in 2018, and about how shelters can maximize their funds and their reach.

How could shelters help more people?

An overarching challenge is to do with expectations—those that funders have, that communities have, and that our users have—of what a shelter is. When you think of a disaster, say like a flood or an earthquake, the expectation to mitigate the aftermath is [along] the lines of temporary assistance, and not necessarily transformation. Similarly, there is a notion to look at shelters and homelessness as a crisis that requires an emergency response. After decades of work and research, we know that it is much more of a public health challenge and a need that demands a more transformative and strategic response than the ones we currently see.

[PA] Fewer are homeless in NJ, but the count comes with an asterisk (Philly.com, PA)
Philly.com
(6/28/2017 5:19 PM, Jacqueline L. Urgo)
The annual survey, NJCounts 2017, counted homeless people on the night of Jan. 24, 2017, finding 8,532 homeless men, women, and children county-by-county across New Jersey — 409 fewer than the year before. The count is facilitated by Monarch Housing Associates, a Somerset County-based affordable housing advocacy group.

"While the slight decrease in homelessness in New Jersey is a positive result, the reality is that the size of the homeless population has remained relatively the same from 2016 to 2017," Taiisa Kelly, a Monarch senior associate who headed the team that conducted the survey, said in a statement. She noted that the results give the agency "hope," but that the overall numbers are within the statistical margin of error.

Burlington County has the third highest homeless population in the state, with 7.1 percent of the total number, or 604 homeless individuals. Essex County ranks first, with 24 percent or 2,048, followed by Hudson County at 9.6 percent of the homeless population, with 822 individuals.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The count is mandated by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to account for sheltered homeless people each year and unsheltered homeless — those living in the street, in cars, under bridges, or other places not meant for human habitation — every other year. This year is a mandated unsheltered-count year.

The day-long conversation involves several local media outlets

For the second year in a row, Seattle media outlets are banding together to tell the stories of those who are often seen but rarely heard through the #SeaHomeless project.

As Seattle grows at a breakneck pace but continues to struggle housing some of its most vulnerable citizens, today is dedicated to the more than 11,000 people in King County grappling with finding safe, permanent and affordable housing.

The project is spearheaded by Crosscut, where you can find a list [HERE] of all stories in the project. You can also follow the conversation on Twitter through the #SeaHomelesshashtag. You can see a full list of participating organizations and learn more about the project [HERE].

SeattlePI.com's contribution this year, written by city affairs reporter Daniel DeMay with photographs by Genna Martin, explores the experience of an entire family experiencing homelessness, as well as the unique challenges faced by children who grow up in poverty. You can read it [HERE].

The idea for the day-long, collaborative project was borrowed from our sister publication, the San Francisco Chronicle. The Chronicle, SFGate.com and other San Francisco media outlets are also hosting a day of stories about homelessness today. You can find them [HERE].

[WA] 'You just hit this wall': The long road taken by many in a 'rapid' homeless housing program (Seattle Times, WA)
Seattle Times
(6/28/2017 10:57 AM, Vernal Coleman)
Even after being placed in a rapid rehousing program, a local single father figured he'd have to hustle to find housing in King County. Two months later, he was still looking.

On a recent Saturday, Townsend Tatterson IV answered his cellphone and listened silently as a property manager told him his rental application was rejected.

He'd spent the morning organizing documents to prepare for another day of apartment hunting. As he headed toward the building, he got the call about the one-bedroom apartment he'd applied to rent the week before. Unlike some others he'd found sifting through online listings, the place was clean, spacious and most important, the property manager was open to considering subsidized tenants.

In making his pitch, Tatterson was upfront. At 54 years old, he's homeless, self-employed single father, recently enrolled in a program designed to move people without shelter indoors quickly. Called rapid rehousing, the programs provide temporary rental subsidies for those who can't otherwise afford a market-rate apartment.

The letter he handed to the manager says Neighborhood House, a local nonprofit social-service provider, would cover move-in costs and provide rental assistance on the apartment for a year. But the company that owns the complex, a sprawling collection of multiunit buildings in North Seattle, takes a hard line on credit scores, the manager told him. And Tatterson's was south of their mark.

The city is overhauling its contracts for services to its homeless population through a competitive bid process.

Mayor Ed Murray officially released the request for proposals (RFP) Wednesday for $30 million in contracts to provide services to Seattle's homeless population.

"Knowing that to be effective, we cannot keep funding in an uncoordinated system, today, for the first time in a decade, the city is rebidding $30 million in homeless service contracts," Murray said at a news conference Wednesday morning.

Women in Black of WHEEL, the Women's Housing, Equality and Enhancement League, for 17 years have been holding vigils for homeless people who have died outside or by violence in King County.

The fliers have names. Willie "Bama" Tedder. Tobias Adams. Kalin Lubben. Nicole Popescu. Kirstyn Outen. They also list causes of death.

The second Wednesday of the month, white paper fliers are either accepted or ignored by downtown Seattle's bustling noontime lunch crowd.

A few people hand out the fliers as others, dressed in mostly black, stand silently from noon until 1 p.m. across Fifth Avenue from City Hall. Then they recite the names of homeless people who have died outside or by violence in King County. Last year, it was 62. Already this year, they have stood for 37 deaths.

"When we first started standing, we usually got word of a death by word-of-mouth, or sometimes, a brief mention in the newspaper," said Anitra Freeman, 67, one of the original Women in Black of WHEEL, the Women's Housing, Equality and Enhancement League, who started the vigils 17 years ago. "You know, page 37, 'Transient found dead.' "

Los Angeles Times
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Gale Holland)
One in every 5 of the Los Angeles Community College District's 230,000 students is homeless, and nearly two-thirds can't afford to eat properly, according to a new survey commissioned by the system's board of trustees.

The study looked at students with unstable housing and "food insecurity," which is defined by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as lacking enough to eat to sustain an active, healthy life.

Nearly half the L.A. community college students surveyed reported struggling with high housing costs. Of the 19% who said they were recently homeless, 8% reported being thrown out of their homes, 4% said they had been evicted, and 6% had stayed in an abandoned building, car or other location not meant for housing, the survey says.

Although college students nationwide face financial constraints that affect their nutrition, the study says, those enrolled at the L.A. district's nine campuses fare worse than the national average. About 65% can't afford balanced meals, and 60% are unable to buy more when their food runs out, the study says.

The Atlantic CityLab
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Liz Wolfe)
Providing decent shelter for people experiencing homelessness is both a political and practical challenge.

Los Angeles's infamous Skid Row neighborhood holds anywhere from 8,000 to 11,000 people who are living on the streets, packed into a 50-block stretch of the city. A mural at Skid Row's entrance, designed to look like an official city sign, reads, "Skid Row City Limit. Population: Too Many."

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Most Angelenos avoid the area, if they can; it's a typical example of how homelessness can fester out of sight and out of mind.

Properly sheltering the homeless presents a mix of logistical and political challenges. In many cities, NIMBY residents block efforts to build supportive services nearby, concentrating those living in homelessness in dangerous and squalid conditions under highways and in under-populated areas. When shelters are built, they can be far from where people need them and are often plagued by crime, to the point that many people regularly voluntarily forfeit the opportunity to spend the night there.

One possible way around those barriers—design that utilizes cheap, easily-duplicated, pod-based living.

Marchers criticize city, HUD for lack of investment, incompetent leadership

NYCHA residents from the South Bronx joined their counterparts from around the city to protest city and federal policies they say ignore the increasingly desperate need for repairs and other investment to public housing.

A sea of red T-shirts that read "Stop NYCHA from Pushing Out the Poor" could be seen from blocks away as the demonstrators marched through the streets of Harlem on June 24.

Housing advocates argue that the city continues to neglect NYCHA's needs while prioritizing new affordable housing developments to help Mayor Bill de Blasio fulfill his promise to build and restore 200,000 units of affordable housing.

The protesters shouted "NYCHA says get back, we say fight back!" and other slogans while making their way south between East 143rd Street and Lennox Avenue to 110th Street.

Much of the frustration that sparked the protest stems from the city's proposed solution to the budget shortfall for public housing. In 2015, Mayor de Blasio announced the launch of NextGeneration NYCHA, an initiative to bring in $17 billion in capital improvements for dilapidated buildings. Part of the 10-year plan includes selling underutilized land on NYCHA properties, such as parking lots and trash collection areas, to private developers. Additionally, 50 percent of new apartments in developments to be built on NYCHA property would be slated for market-rate tenants, and the other half for those earning up to 60 percent of the Area Median Income. NYCHA estimates that part of the plan could generate between $300 and $600 million, with the goal of "ensuring the Authority's financial sustainability."

(6/29/2017 4:44 AM, Colin Campbell)
RALEIGH - The budget bill that became law after an override vote Wednesday includes an additional $100 million for disaster relief, but it doesn't detail how the money will be spent.

Those details came Wednesday in a new version of Senate Bill 338, which was introduced in the Appropriations Committee and unanimously passed the full House a few hours later.

Under the new version, titled Disaster Recovery Act of 2017, $20 million would go toward housing needs stemming from Hurricane Matthew, including the repair of public housing in Lumberton and Princeville. Another $5 million would be used to build new low-income housing in the town of Fair Bluff.

The nonprofit group Golden LEAF would get $30 million to provide infrastructure grants to communities affected by the hurricane that struck North Carolina in October and by wildfires last year. The N.C. Department of Agriculture would get $20 million for stream debris removal and for road, dam and pond repairs on affected farms.

Unexpected Drop in U.S. Pending Home Sales Shows Inventory Woes (Bloomberg)
Bloomberg
(6/28/2017 12:12 PM, Sho Chandra)
The third consecutive decline in signed contracts to purchase previously owned U.S. homes indicates progress in the housing market is stalling on the heels of lean inventory and rising prices, according to data released Wednesday from the National Association of Realtors in Washington.

Key Takeaways

The housing market is settling back to a slower pace because listings remain limited. That's driving up asking prices and presenting a hurdle for first-time and younger prospective buyers. Nonetheless, steady hiring, easier credit availability and borrowing costs still near historically low levels are supportive for the housing recovery. Economists consider pending sales a leading indicator because they track contract signings. Purchases of existing homes are tabulated when a deal closes, typically a month or two later, and those sales were up in two of the past three months.

Economist Views

"This third consecutive decline in contract activity implies a possible topping off in sales," Lawrence Yun, NAR's chief economist, said in a statement. "Buyer interest is solid, but there is just not enough supply to satisfy demand. Prospective buyers are being sidelined by both limited choices and home prices that are climbing too fast."

(6/28/2017 11:16 AM, Diana Olick)
VIDEO. Fewer buyers signed contracts to buy existing homes in May, likely because they can't find or afford what they want.

The pending home sales index from the National Association of Realtors dropped 0.8 percent month to month and is now 1.7 percent lower than May 2016. Expectations had been for a slight gain, but even April's reading was revised lower.

"Monthly closings have recently been oscillating back and forth, but this third consecutive decline in contract activity implies a possible topping off in sales," said Lawrence Yun, chief economist of the Realtors. "Buyer interest is solid, but there is just not enough supply to satisfy demand. Prospective buyers are being sidelined by both limited choices and home prices that are climbing too fast."

The number of home sales that closed this spring was slightly higher than a year ago, but the lack of listings clearly held the market back. The supply of homes for sale at the end of May was down more than 8 percent from a year ago, and homes that were listed sold at the fastest rate on record.

Home purchase contract signings declined again in May, another sign of the headwinds working against momentum in the housing market.

The pending home sales index from the National Association of Realtors slid 0.8%, marking the third-straight monthly decline.

The index hit 108.5 in May and its April level was revised lower.

It was lower compared to a year ago for the second month in a row in May, this time by 1.7%. The index forecasts future sales by tracking real estate transactions in which a contract has been signed, but the deal has not yet closed.

Ben Carson's visit to Baltimore met with protesters (WBAL TV, MD)
WBAL TV
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Barry Simms)
Housing secretary meets with mayor, city housing team

BALTIMORE — Housing Secretary Ben Carson is in Baltimore this week, and the former neurosurgeon's trip back was met with protesters.

The protesters are upset with proposed cuts to the Housing and Urban Development budget that they believe will harm families and create more homeless nationwide.

Carson was in Baltimore Wednesday for several private meetings, one of which was with Mayor Catherine Pugh and the city's housing team.

Carson made no comment as he left the Charles Benton Building in downtown Baltimore. His staff termed it as a private meeting, saying he would answer questions during an informal news conference Thursday.

Pugh described what she called a session with the secretary, saying, "What's really important is that continued relationship and the hundreds of millions of dollars that have been invested in Baltimore by HUD, how much we still need those dollars, and as we continue to look at expanding neighborhoods and communities and giving folks opportunities to be in housing that is affordable, that HUD is important to Baltimore City."

Some community activists gathered outside Henderson Hopkins Elementary School in east Baltimore, where Carson attended an event. The activists voiced their discontent with President Donald Trump's proposed cuts of more than $6 billion, and they called for states, local governments and private entities to assist more in handling the needs of affordable housing.

"Community development block grants are being eliminated. The home program is being eliminated. The National Housing Trust Fund is being eliminated. Rather than eliminating things, we need more of them. Baltimore has, oh, we don't know, 45,000 vacant houses, and it has tens of thousands of people who get eviction notices every year. Let's make positive changes, not negative changes," said Jeff Singer, with City Advocates in Solidarity with the Homeless.

Carson has public appearances scheduled Thursday. He will visit two houses where HUD grants have paid for lead remediation work, and he's scheduled to return to Henderson Hopkins Elementary School for a national Healthy Homes Community Family Fair.

Ben Carson, the U.S. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, slipped in and out of an East Baltimore public school today, holding a private meeting with several local officials while about 50 protesters waited patiently outside to express their concerns about the Trump administration's housing policies.

"There was a big black SUV in the parking lot with a chauffeur in a black uniform, and there were people going into the school who said they were going to speak to the secretary. But we never got a chance to even see him," said Jeff Singer, a homeless advocate who helped organize the protest.

Singer identified two of the participants as Greg Sileo, assistant Baltimore health commissioner, and Redonda Miller, president of the Johns Hopkins Hospital. "They told us they were there for a 'listening session' with Carson," Singer said. Sileo and Miller could not be reached for comment this evening.

Last week HUD announced that Carson would come to Baltimore today to meet with local officials at the Henderson-Hopkins public school. The press office later refused to confirm the meeting after it became apparent that several housing groups planned to protest the visit of the retired Johns Hopkins neurosurgeon who was named the top U.S. housing administrator.

The HUD press office, however, stressed that Carson will appear tomorrow (Thursday) in Baltimore to visit two homes that benefited from HUD lead hazard control grants and would be available for a "press gaggle" between 9:30 and 9:37 a.m. at 3104 Gwynns Falls Parkway.

Beware the Agency Leadership Void (Government Executive)
Government Executive
(6/28/2017 1:36 PM, Matthew Dull)
Whatever else transpires, many government workers will remember 2017 as the year of the empty o ce. Almost six months along, the Trump administration's appointments strategy is a slow moving disaster. The administration has not even nominated candidates to fill three-quarters of top Senate-confirmed agency appointee positions, according to the the Political Appointee Tracker developed by the Partnership for Public Service and the Washington Post.

Across federal agencies, anecdotes abound of quiet hallways and pervasive uncertainty. A palpable emptiness fills the southwest corner of the Main Treasury Building's third floor, where empty offices of the department's 27 vacant appointee positions await occupants. Secretary Steven Mnuchin remains the only confirmed Treasury Department appointee. Cabinet secretaries are the only confirmed appointees in the departments of Agriculture (12 vacant positions), Commerce (20), Education (14), Energy (21), Housing and Urban Development (11), Interior (16), Labor (13), and Veterans A airs (10). Even agencies critical to the Trump administration's security agenda are coping with a gaping leadership void. At the Defense Department, 47 of 53 positions are vacant. At Homeland Security, 10 out of 13 appointee positions remain vacant.

LeadingAge Hosts Rally on Capitol Hill to Save HUD 202 (LeadingAge)
LeadingAge
(6/28/2017 1:09 PM, Linda Couch)
More than 1,100 residents of HUD Section 202 Housing for the Elderly communities were joined by members of the U.S. Senate and House, as well as leading advocates for affordable housing for older adults, at a June 27 rally outside the Capitol building in Washington, DC.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

"Save affordable senior housing!" An early chant from the crowd, led by emcee Steve Fleming, president and CEO of WellSpring and chair-elect of LeadingAge, got the juices flowing. Patricia Davis, a resident of Retirement Housing Foundation's North Capitol at Plymouth 202 community in Washington, DC, told the boisterous crowd 13 reasons why she loves her home, including affordability, excellent management, and "our independence."

Representative Al Green (D-TX), a member of the House Committee on Financial Services, which has jurisdiction over housing policy, revved up the crowd and ensured attendees, "I'm going to work as hard as I can to protect your Medicare, to protect your Social Security, and your Section 202 housing!"

Volunteers of America's (VOA) Executive Vice President for Housing Patrick Sheridan told 2 moving stories of residents served by 202 communities sponsored by VOA, one who would otherwise likely be homeless and the other resident who might unnecessarily be in a nursing home without the Section 202 program. Mr. Sheridan implored residents and other advocates to join the Seniors Action Network, a grassroots movement to give America's seniors a greater voice in public policy, which VOA and LeadingAge coordinate jointly.

After Mr. Sheridan, House HUD Appropriations Subcommittee Ranking Member David Price (D-NC) joined the rally stage. "Thank you for fighting for 202 – it is so essential for elderly Americans and, in fact, for all Americans," Rep. Price said. While the budget threats facing the Section 202 and other programs are serious, Rep. Price continued, "There's nothing more essential to human health and well-being than good, decent, and affordable housing!" to loud cheers from the crowd. We must preserve 202 communities and their affordability, but,, "our ultimate goal must be to respond to the need, and this is going to require more, not less!"

[NH] Concord Homeless Shelter Settles With HUD, Victim After Domestic Violence Discrimination Allegations (New Hampshire Public Radio, Concord, NH)
New Hampshire Public Radio
(6/28/2017 10:21 AM, Emily Corwin)
A recent agreement between a Concord homeless shelter and the federal government could help end discrimination against domestic violence survivors who face homelessness.

The settlement includes the US Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Friends Program in Concord, and a female survivor of domestic violence.

In May, 2016, the woman stayed at Friends' Emergency Housing in Concord. When she disclosed to staff that she had recently survived domestic violence, the homeless shelter requested she leave, citing policy: the shelter said it did not have the necessary security measures in place to protect against potential perpetrators. (Read the letter she received below.)

Victoria Horrock, a lawyer with New Hampshire Legal Assistance, says the settlement means this shelter will have to change its policies. Additionally, she said, "It's our hope that other shelters across the state will examine their own policies to make sure they're not placing increased burdens on vulnerable women at this time of most desperate need."

Legal Assistance argued the policy banning recent domestic violence survivors violates the Fair Housing Act. The plaintiff received a $5000 settlement from the shelter. According to Horrock, the funds were used to secure housing.

[CT] MHA seeking $23M loan for Bristol project (My Record Journal, CT)
My Record Journal
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Mary Ellen Godin)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

In 2015, the MHA entered into an agreement with Leasing Innovations Inc. that would allow it to lend Maynard Road Corp. $3 million for the Bristol project. The funds covered pre-development work including geothermal installation, and will be repaid at the project closing. Haynes Construction is the contractor on the Bristol deal.

But the MHA continues to answer questions from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development about the Bristol deal and the role of the MHA and Maynard Road.

A HUD spokeswoman said Monday the MHA has provided answers and is working with HUD on details. The queries are to ensure that no federal funds are being used on the Bristol project.

Maynard Road is also overseeing the Yale Acres redevelopment. The state recently awarded it $5.7 million to rebuild 162 moderate income rental units at Yale Acres. Eight model units have been completed with geothermal heat and solar panels. Construction of the remaining units is expected to begin in the fall, Cappelletti said.

The Meriden Housing Authority, and Maynard Road Corp., have also teamed with Pennrose Properties on a 150-unit mixed income development project called Meriden Commons I and II. The partners were given a $1.5 million grant and subsidy and $2.4 million advance through the Massachusetts Housing Investment Corp. for 75 rental units at Meriden Commons I, now under construction.

[DC] A Housing Stipend for Congress? There's a Better Way (Bloomberg View)
Bloomberg View
(6/28/2017 11:46 AM, Megan McArdle)
Lawmakers should fix the zoning that limits development and drives up DC's cost of living.

Does anyone pity the poor congressman? He spends much of his life on the road, eating rubber chicken or repugnant local specialties, in between making a few speeches and shaking a whole lot of hands. And when he comes off the road, he generally does not go home to whatever fair district where he once chose to live, but to Washington, which may not actually be a badly paved swamp, but sure feels like one come June.

To add insult to injury, it's become a very expensive pseudo-swamp. When I moved here 10 years ago, it was possible to rent a room in a house for a few hundred dollars a month. Now, to hear tell from the young'uns, a mere bedroom in a group house starts around $1,000 a month -- and then heads north at a brisk clip. Apartments in convenient locations are considerably more dear. Which is why some members of Congress spend their time in Washington sleeping on cots in their offices.

Now that he's retiring, and can't be accused of self-interest, Representative Jason Chaffetz of Utah is suggesting that perhaps voters might want to offer their representatives some help affording their own little slice of the quagmire. He's floated the idea of giving our representatives a $2,500 a month housing allowance (that term sounds so much better than "raise"), so that they can actually procure a room with walls and a bed.

It is, in truth, hard to pity the poor congressman. They make $174,000 a year, which may not be private island money, but is a whole heck of a lot more than most Americans make. And while they do have some unusual expenses, even once you net out the suits, the travel incidentals, and the pop psych books on managing a long-distance marriage, they're still doing better than, say, your average trucker.

Yet it seems worth pointing out that our congress critters could do something to help themselves, without even dipping into the federal treasury. Thanks to Washington's unique constitutional status, Congress has more power over its operations than over any other city. The city has "home rule," to be sure, but that home rule was a gift from Congress, and Congress can take back that gift any time they want. Or amend it, to slash through the array of zoning regulations that help to make Washington housing so expensive. At the very least, they could repeal the height limits, dating from 1899, which make it impossible to build true high-rises in downtown Washington, and thereby forces up the price of conveniently located housing.

This is an effort that would be beloved of many conservatives, who are rather fond of the free market. It would be beloved of many progressives, who have come to realize that NIMBYism and strict zoning regulations are forcing the poor out of many desirable cities. And it would do a very good thing for the poor and the middle class who live in and around Washington -- for now, anyway.

But here's the best news of all for politicians who contemplate this plan: The only folks who would get angry about it can't vote any of them out of office. Elsewhere in the country, plans to strip away onerous housing regulations generally die a quick and painful death, because homeowners get very, very angry if you suggest a new law that will help developers change the character of their neighborhood, or lower their property values. We have plenty of those folks in DC, mind you -- theoretically in favor of affordable housing, and practically opposed to any plan that would actually make housing affordable. On the local level, they've done a pretty good job at stymieing various efforts to increase Washington's housing supply. But because DC is not a state, its residents have no vote in the government body that ultimately controls their city.

[VA] Essex Village owner faces 9 criminal charges for building violations (WTOC-TV CBS 11 Savannah, GA)
WTOC-TV CBS 11 Savannah
(6/28/2017 6:08 PM, Ashley Monfort)
VIDEO. NBC12 has been investigating living conditions at Essex Village for months, and we've seen crews cleaning up and doing repairs.

However, Revels says it's not enough.

"They've been very responsive to the notices that we've issued so far, but they're not extending their efforts beyond that to repair all of the neglect that's accumulated over the years," said Revels.

He says there needs to be a comprehensive plan of action.

"I don't believe that's being done," says Revels.

Each charge carries a fine of up to $2,500.

It's unclear how that will affect PK Management, who receives millions of federal dollars from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). NBC12 reached out to PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC and have not yet heard back.

[VA] Henrico County officials to take Essex Village operators to court over building code violations (Richmond Times-Dispatch, VA)
Richmond Times-Dispatch
(6/29/2017 5:12 AM, Debbie Truong)
Henrico County officials are taking the operators of a dilapidated, federally subsidized housing community to court for building-code violations.

Gregory Revels, the county's building official, said the county plans to obtain and serve at least 15 court summonses to Essex VA Investors LLC for a slew of infractions that include failing to properly maintain balconies, roofs and air-conditioning units at Essex Village. Nine of the summonses were issued Tuesday,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Revels told the Henrico Board of Supervisors during its work session later in the day.

Revels said in an email that the county hopes the court will compel the owner to develop an "aggressive plan to rehabilitate the property." Court hearings for the summonses are scheduled for July 14 and 28 in Henrico General District Court.

"Given the state of disrepair that is evident, they have continued to fail the residents in this regard and they are relying too heavily on the county to identify the defects that need attention," Revels said.

Since 2016, more than 180 violation notices by the county were issued to the management company PK Management for the conditions at Essex, which has been the subject of an attempted turnaround by the county. The housing community also received its first failing inspection grade from the Department of Housing and Urban Development earlier this year.

[VA] Henrico serves criminal summonses against Essex Village management (Henrico Citizen, VA)
Henrico Citizen
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Ashlee Korlach)
Essex Village is privately owned but its owners receive funding from the U.S. Housing and Urban Development department. HUD has ultimate authority over the complex.

In December 2015, HUD inspected Essex Village and gave it a passing grade of 74, Middleton said. Then this January, HUD inspected the complex again and gave it a failing grade of 44, Middleton said.

Essex Village is owned by Gregory Pearlman and managed by PK Management, which is also owned by Pearlman. Pearlman manages 18,000 HUD units in the country. Last year, Pearlman received more than $152 million from HUD to subsidize rent, according to CBS 6.

Pearlman attributed the problems at Essex Village to a single manager at PK Management who has since been fired, he said in an interview with CBS 6.

Middleton questioned how one employee's decisions could have resulted in the conditions at Essex Village, he said.

"I think HUD dropped the ball with their inspections, and I'm absolutely confident that Pearlman and PK Management could have cared less," Middleton said.

[VA] Henrico officials respond to Essex Village for sewage overflow (WTVR CBS 6, VA)
WTVR CBS 6
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Vernon Freeman Jr. and Shelby Brown)
HENRICO COUNTY, Va. -- Henrico County officials came out to the Essex Village apartment complex Wednesday afternoon after an anonymous tip said there was a sewer overflow issue.

The Henrico Fire Department and the Public Utilities Department responded to the apartment complex.

The low-income housing complex has been the subject of an on-going CBS 6 investigation.

Residents have told CBS 6 that the company has not done enough to fix things like leaks, flood damage, sewage problems, structural issues, broken lights, and bug infestations.

During the meeting Tuesday night, Henrico Board of Supervisors Chair Patricia O'Bannon said the board will take action and set up meetings with the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in Washington.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

[NC] HUD lifts sanctions on authority (The Robesonian, NC)
The Robesonian
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Bob Shiles)
LUMBERTON — The Robeson County Housing Authority has been given more financial freedom by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Niakeya Jones, the authority's executive director, confirmed that HUD is no longer requiring the local housing authority get federal approval before making purchases and entering into contracts. The regulation, in effect for about three years, was lifted earlier this month.

"We are now in a good place," said Jones, who has been the authority's executive director since Feb. 2. "Everything is going good. I am happy, and the staff is happy."

Jones declined to comment further about the financial upgrades and improvements that led to HUD lifting its strict oversight of the authority's purchasing process. She said Monday that she did not want to comment "at this time" because she was not involved with the Robeson County Housing Authority when HUD put the procurement regulation in place.

But County Attorney Patrick Pait credited Jones with playing a leading role in helping the authority address HUD's concerns.

"I think Miss Jones and the staff at the housing authority have done a good job," Pait said. "That is reflected in HUD removing the zero-tolerance regulation."

The oversight regulations were put in place as a result of findings in a procurement assessment conducted by HUD in January 2014. The report detailed weaknesses and irregularities in the authority's procurement activities and charged mismanagement of federal funds.

Miami-Dade has until June 29 to comply.

[TN] Chattanooga receives funding to build lead-safe homes (Chattanooga Times Free Press, TN)
Chattanooga Times Free Press
(6/29/2017 12:31 AM, Rosana Hughes)
The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development awarded more than $1.6 million to the city of Chattanooga on Tuesday to confront lead hazards in homes.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Chattanooga was one of 48 cities across the country that received one of the grants and the only city in Tennessee.

The funding will be used to abate lead and other safety hazards in 75 Chattanooga homes, and about 7,600 homes in the U.S., according to a press release announcing the funding.

HUD's lead-based paint hazard control grant programs promote local efforts to eliminate dangerous lead paint and other housing-related health hazards from low-income homes, encourages private sector investment in lead hazard control and educates the public about the dangers of hazards in the home.

[IL] HUD Secretary Carson ends contract between ACHA and Local 773, citing financial concerns (The Southern, IL)
The Southern
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Molly Parker)
CAIRO – Housing and Urban Development Secretary Ben Carson, in a memo dated Wednesday, moved to end the collective bargaining agreement between the Alexander County Housing Authority and Laborers' International Union of North America Local 773, which represents housing authority employees.

As a result of that, 19 employees, a mix of part- and full-time workers, were given notice their positions would be eliminated in 30 days. HUD officials announced the news during a morning staff meeting at the ACHA's administrative office in Cairo.

The employees were told that they would have the option of reapplying for a new set of positions that HUD has created as deemed essential to carry out the duties of the housing authority within its financial constraints, said Jereon Brown, deputy assistant secretary for HUD's Office of Public Affairs.

The move is intended solely to save money for the housing authority, and is not a reflection upon the work of the affected employees, Brown said.

Eliminating all existing positions and then rehiring to fill specific needs will save the housing authority about $339,886 annually of the $705,550 it is presently paying in salary and benefits, according to a financial document that was provided to the newspaper. That represents about a 52 percent cut to the ACHA's labor costs.

[OH] Cleveland, Cuyahoga County receive federal money for lead clean up (Cleveland Plain Dealer, OH)
Cleveland Plain Dealer
(6/28/2017 4:14 PM, Rachel Dissell and Brie Zeltner)
CLEVELAND, Ohio--The city of Cleveland and the Cuyahoga County Board of Health each received new federal grants Tuesday aimed at cleaning up lead contamination in area homes. The grants, totaling $6.3 million, continue funding the health departments have received in the past.

The new funding--a total of $127 million to 48 state and local government agencies-- was announced Tuesday by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Cleveland received $3.4 million and Cuyahoga County received $2.9 million.

Lead, a heavy metal that is particularly dangerous to infants and small children, can cause convulsions, coma and death when absorbed in high doses. Even at lower levels, though, the metal is harmful to the nervous system, the developing brain and kidneys.

Young children exposed to lead early in life, even at low levels, often suffer from behavioral and learning problems when they enter school.

Both the city and county are still working through HUD grants awarded in 2015. To date, Cuyahoga County has cleaned up, or abated, lead in 107 homes or rental units with its current grant, with 114 more to be completed by the end of November 2018, according to John Sobolewski, supervisor of the county's lead program.

[IA] UPDATE: Waterloo awarded $3M lead-removal grant (The Courier, IA)
The Courier
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Jim Jamison)
WATERLOO — The city has been awarded a $2.9 million federal grant to help remove lead-based paint and other health hazards from homes and apartments.

Waterloo Mayor Quentin Hart on Wednesday announced the U.S.Department of Housing and Urban Development had approved the lead remediation funds, expected to protect nearly 120 families over the next three years.

"We have older housing stock in some parts of our community, and we want to make sure we are able to address any of the health concerns," Hart said.

Waterloo and Clinton were the only Iowa cities to receive the grants this year through HUD's Lead-Based Paint Hazard Control Program. Waterloo received similar grants in 2003, 2007 and 2011 but failed to win a renewal in 2015.

While lead-based paint was banned for housing use in 1978, many older homes still contain the metal, which is especially dangerous to children. Lead poisoning in young children can cause intellectual disabilities, damage to the nervous system, slowed development and hearing and speech problems.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has granted more than $127 million to 48 government agencies across the country to protect children and families from safety hazards in the home.

The city of Phoenix will receive $2.9 million, while Pima County is set to gain $1.65 million.

The money will protect 7,600 American families "living in homes with significant lead and other home health and safety hazards," according to a statement.

HUD announced the news on Tuesday as part of "a continuous effort to keep families and their children safe from lead-based paint and other home health and safety hazards." The department is headed by former GOP presidential candidate Ben Carson.

(6/28/2017 8:21 PM, Susan Montoya Bryan)
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - The chief executive of the largest American Indian public housing authority in the U.S. will be stepping down as the Navajo Nation looks to rebuild its reputation after concerns were raised about the lack of housing on the vast reservation.

Newly appointed members of the board that oversees the Navajo Housing Authority made the announcement

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Wednesday. Aneva Yazzie's last day will be Friday.

The board says it was a mutual decision and that Yazzie's departure will mark the first step in rebuilding the organization.

Navajo housing officials in recent weeks have defended themselves from accusations that they overspent millions of dollars in federal grant funds. The allegations spurred a congressional investigation, but federal officials have found no evidence of fraud or abuse.

Still, Navajo officials acknowledge that major changes need to be made to meet the tribe's housing demands.

WAMC Northeast Radio
(6/28/2017 12:41 PM, Lucas Willard)
AUDIO. Leaders in Saratoga Springs have made their pitch for three workforce housing proposals that aim to provide more apartments in a city desperate for workers and satisfy federal requirements for affordable housing.

Saratoga Springs Mayor Joanne Yepsen and the city's Housing Task Force have been working for the past three years to find ways to make the Spa City a less expensive place to move to.

Yepsen, a second-term Democrat, said the city's "relatively free market process" has worked to make the city a desirable place to live in recent years.

"But it's not working so well to help our local businesses bring employees and a workforce to Saratoga Springs," said Yepsen.

The city is trying to find new ways and new places to build affordable homes and apartments to satisfy requirements from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

One approach that has gotten a cool reception from developers is called "inclusionary zoning" or IZ. IZ would require new developments to set aside a percentage of units to low- and moderate-income families.

But the Housing Task Force is taking a different approach by pushing three separate workforce housing developments around the city, totaling more than 380 units.

[CA] Los Angeles takes a step toward making evictions more difficult for landlords (Los Angeles Times)
Los Angeles Times
(6/28/2017 7:39 PM, Andrew Khouri)
If a landlord wants to evict a tenant, the process can be simple. In many cases in Los Angeles, and across California, property owners only have to state they are ending the lease.

No justification is needed — only notices of at least 30 days to provide some time to move out.

Now, amid an affordable housing shortage and reports that low-income tenants are being displaced for wealthier renters, Los Angeles is exploring whether to require landlords to show "just cause" to evict, reasons that would include damaging a unit, creating a nuisance or not paying rent.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Tenants of rent-controlled units already have that protection, but landlords of newer, unregulated buildings can end a month-to-month tenancy without providing a reason.

San Francisco Chronicle
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Erin Allday)
What we reported: San Francisco can make a substantial dent in homelessness only by tackling one of society's most intractable problems: mental illness.

People with mental health disorders are the most visible but hardest to reach of San Francisco's homeless. They make up a third of the homeless population and, by some assessments, nearly two-thirds of the chronically homeless — the 2,100 or so people who have been homeless for at least a year.

But treating them requires aggressive, seamless care that isn't consistent with life on the streets. Advocates for people who are homeless and mentally ill understand how best to treat their patients — with individualized care in stable, supportive housing — but the system isn't nearly large enough.

The city needs beds. It needs inpatient psychiatric beds to help stabilize people who are having mental health emergencies, and transitional beds for when they're released from the hospital but still in need of support. It requires beds for people who need addiction treatment and beds in facilities that teach life skills and provide mental health care.

The Atlantic CityLab
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Henry Grabar)
Local politics is always, in one way or another, about housing. In San Francisco, a deep blue city whose fault lines long ago ceased to resemble America's, that politics is a vitriolic civic scrimmage, where people who agree about almost every national issue make sworn enemies over zoning, demolition, and development. It's like a circular firing squad at a co-op meeting.

On June 1, members of a group that advocates for housing growth to lower rents called San Francisco YIMBY (for "Yes, In My Back Yard") helped organize a panel in downtown San Francisco: "The Political Dynamics of Housing." Over food and drink, a group of local experts and activists tried to talk through why, despite widespread local consensus that something must change, San Francisco continues to be the country's most expensive city for renting an apartment.

The day before the event, the San Francisco chapter of the Democratic Socialists of America—an organization founded in 1982 whose membership more than tripled, in the 12 months ending in March 2017, to 19,000 dues-paying members—included a note in their regular membership letter. "The SF YIMBY Party is a pro-development, pro-gentrification, pro-landlord organization," it read. "DSA SF is seeking folks to come up with materials and a plan for challenging this narrative and the disinformation they will undoubtedly be spreading regarding housing at this meeting."

That call, and an ensuing shouting match at the panel, was the most overt skirmish in a feud between the DSA and the YIMBYs, two groups that have more in common than you might expect. Each has harnessed the political energy of young people in West Coast cities. Each considers entrenched wealthy homeowners an enemy. They have a good number of members in common. And the goal, of course, is the same: more affordable housing.

San Francisco's left—tenants and homeowners both—has long been hostile to new development, and the

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

YIMBYs, as a group that claims tenants' interests broadly align with developers' and, therefore, that cities should do everything they can to increase the housing stock, have received particular opprobrium. In a vicious article in TruthOut and the San Francisco Examiner published last month, writers Toshio Meronek and Andrew Szeto called YIMBYism a "libertarian, anti-poor campaign to turn longtime sites of progressive organizing into rich-people-only zones" and compared pro-growth advocates to the white nationalists of the alt-right. (That second charge was later deleted.) San Francisco supervisor Aaron Peskin compared YIMBYism to the U.S. military's destruction of the Vietnamese village of Ben Tre: "They have a very Ayn Rand, bomb-the-village-to-save-it point of view," he told San Francisco magazine in December. (San Francisco, population 850,000, being the village.)

[MN] Landlords sue Minneapolis over Section 8 anti-discrimination ordinance (Minneapolis-St. Paul Star Tribune, MN)
Minneapolis-St. Paul Star Tribune
(6/28/2017 5:24 PM, Eric Roper)
A group of Minneapolis landlords has sued the city over a new law that bars them from discriminating against tenants using Section 8 vouchers.

Who is affected?

A city document from March said less than 6 percent of the city's rental units would be affected by the ordinance. Most apartments in the city are too pricey to qualify for the housing voucher programs like Section 8.

Renters receiving housing vouchers typically pay a portion of their apartment rent, with the voucher making up the rest. The share paid by the tenant depends on their income, the number of bedrooms and whether they pay for heat.

Nearly all Section 8 voucher holders in the city identify as people of color, the city document said, and about half of the 17,000 residents served by the program are children.

Landlords warned in a media campaign that the ordinance would result in "coastal rents" in the city and longer wait times to find an apartment. The council voted unanimously to approve it.

The lawsuit says the ordinance changes landlords' business practices, requiring them to submit rent increases for review and leaving apartments vacant for inspection between tenants. To comply with Section 8 rules, the city's public housing authority must inspect each unit before it is rented out.

"I know that this whole issue of inspections and delay caused by inspections has been raised as a concern," Segal said. "And certainly I think that's something the city and the public housing authority has been looking at, to make sure that that can happen in a timely fashion."

With a new resident social worker, the Brooklyn Public Library is pushing staff and patrons toward a culture of inclusivity.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A little after 10 a.m. on a humid Thursday in June, a fan is already whirring in the Bedford Avenue branch of the Brooklyn Public Library. The building has just opened, but already people are pushing through the doors and posting up at computer stations or tables on the mezzanine. Many will stay put all day.

The library, just down the block from a clanging subway station in the Bed-Stuy neighborhood, is a salve for the chafing street noise and the heat. There's nothing to buy, no time limit, no implication that you've overstayed your welcome. The airy, 17,000-square-foot space is a comfortable homeroom for people with nowhere else to be.

And today, there are donuts. Those are a big draw, explains Harold Holloway, as he rearranges coffee stirrers and packets of sugar. Holloway buzzes around a table just off the reference desk, next to a magazine rack holding Latina Style and Highlights.

Holloway is an advocate with the Street to Home program from Breaking Ground, a nonprofit that aims to connect homeless New Yorkers with housing.

[NY] Rethinking Homeless Shelters From the Ground Up (The Atlantic CityLab)
The Atlantic CityLab
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Krutika Pathi)
One nonprofit wants to reward results, and change the funding model in the process.

Muzzy Rosenblatt takes issue with the conventional way of sheltering the homeless. As the executive director of the Bowery Residents Committee (BRC), a provider of shelter and services to New York City's homeless population, he wants to go beyond just putting up beds. Instead, he proposes a whole new consideration of how shelters are both run and funded.

In a new volume entitled What Matters: Investing in Results to Build Strong, Vibrant Communities, from the Nonprofit Fund (NFF) and the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco (FRBSF), Rosenblatt authors a chapter that charts out a blueprint for change. His suggestion: a shift toward a results-based funding model. Rosenblatt plans to apply this vision for the social sector to the BRC's latest project—an amalgamation of a housing development and a shelter. CityLab spoke with Rosenblatt about the in-progress venture, slated to open in the Bronx in 2018, and about how shelters can maximize their funds and their reach.

How could shelters help more people?

An overarching challenge is to do with expectations—those that funders have, that communities have, and that our users have—of what a shelter is. When you think of a disaster, say like a flood or an earthquake, the expectation to mitigate the aftermath is [along] the lines of temporary assistance, and not necessarily transformation. Similarly, there is a notion to look at shelters and homelessness as a crisis that requires an emergency response. After decades of work and research, we know that it is much more of a public health challenge and a need that demands a more transformative and strategic response than the ones we currently see.

(6/28/2017 5:19 PM, Jacqueline L. Urgo)
The annual survey, NJCounts 2017, counted homeless people on the night of Jan. 24, 2017, finding 8,532 homeless men, women, and children county-by-county across New Jersey — 409 fewer than the year before. The count is facilitated by Monarch Housing Associates, a Somerset County-based affordable housing advocacy group.

"While the slight decrease in homelessness in New Jersey is a positive result, the reality is that the size of the homeless population has remained relatively the same from 2016 to 2017," Taiisa Kelly, a Monarch senior associate who headed the team that conducted the survey, said in a statement. She noted that the results give the agency "hope," but that the overall numbers are within the statistical margin of error.

Burlington County has the third highest homeless population in the state, with 7.1 percent of the total number, or 604 homeless individuals. Essex County ranks first, with 24 percent or 2,048, followed by Hudson County at 9.6 percent of the homeless population, with 822 individuals.

The count is mandated by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to account for sheltered homeless people each year and unsheltered homeless — those living in the street, in cars, under bridges, or other places not meant for human habitation — every other year. This year is a mandated unsheltered-count year.

The day-long conversation involves several local media outlets

For the second year in a row, Seattle media outlets are banding together to tell the stories of those who are often seen but rarely heard through the #SeaHomeless project.

As Seattle grows at a breakneck pace but continues to struggle housing some of its most vulnerable citizens, today is dedicated to the more than 11,000 people in King County grappling with finding safe, permanent and affordable housing.

The project is spearheaded by Crosscut, where you can find a list [HERE] of all stories in the project. You can also follow the conversation on Twitter through the #SeaHomeless hashtag. You can see a full list of participating organizations and learn more about the project [HERE].

SeattlePI.com's contribution this year, written by city affairs reporter Daniel DeMay with photographs by Genna Martin, explores the experience of an entire family experiencing homelessness, as well as the unique challenges faced by children who grow up in poverty. You can read it [HERE].

The idea for the day-long, collaborative project was borrowed from our sister publication, the San Francisco Chronicle. The Chronicle, SFGate.com and other San Francisco media outlets are also hosting a day of stories about homelessness today. You can find them [HERE].

[WA] 'You just hit this wall': The long road taken by many in a 'rapid' homeless housing program (Seattle Times, WA)
Seattle Times
(6/28/2017 10:57 AM, Vernal Coleman)
Even after being placed in a rapid rehousing program, a local single father figured he'd have to hustle to find housing in King County. Two months later, he was still looking.

On a recent Saturday, Townsend Tatterson IV answered his cellphone and listened silently as a property manager told him his rental application was rejected.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

He'd spent the morning organizing documents to prepare for another day of apartment hunting. As he headed toward the building, he got the call about the one-bedroom apartment he'd applied to rent the week before. Unlike some others he'd found sifting through online listings, the place was clean, spacious and most important, the property manager was open to considering subsidized tenants.

In making his pitch, Tatterson was upfront. At 54 years old, he's homeless, self-employed single father, recently enrolled in a program designed to move people without shelter indoors quickly. Called rapid rehousing, the programs provide temporary rental subsidies for those who can't otherwise afford a market-rate apartment.

The letter he handed to the manager says Neighborhood House, a local nonprofit social-service provider, would cover move-in costs and provide rental assistance on the apartment for a year. But the company that owns the complex, a sprawling collection of multiunit buildings in North Seattle, takes a hard line on credit scores, the manager told him. And Tatterson's was south of their mark.

Seattle is undertaking something it hasn't done in 10 years.

The city is overhauling its contracts for services to its homeless population through a competitive bid process.

Mayor Ed Murray officially released the request for proposals (RFP) Wednesday for $30 million in contracts to provide services to Seattle's homeless population.

"Knowing that to be effective, we cannot keep funding in an uncoordinated system, today, for the first time in a decade, the city is rebidding $30 million in homeless service contracts," Murray said at a news conference Wednesday morning.

Women in Black of WHEEL, the Women's Housing, Equality and Enhancement League, for 17 years have been holding vigils for homeless people who have died outside or by violence in King County.

The fliers have names. Willie "Bama" Tedder. Tobias Adams. Kalin Lubben. Nicole Popescu. Kirstyn Outen. They also list causes of death.

The second Wednesday of the month, white paper fliers are either accepted or ignored by downtown Seattle's bustling noontime lunch crowd.

A few people hand out the fliers as others, dressed in mostly black, stand silently from noon until 1 p.m. across Fifth Avenue from City Hall. Then they recite the names of homeless people who have died outside or by violence in King County. Last year, it was 62. Already this year, they have stood for 37 deaths.

"When we first started standing, we usually got word of a death by word-of-mouth, or sometimes, a brief mention in the newspaper," said Anitra Freeman, 67, one of the original Women in Black of WHEEL, the Women's Housing, Equality and Enhancement League, who started the vigils 17 years ago. [CA] 1 in 5 L.A. community college students is homeless, survey finds (Los Angeles Times)
Los Angeles Times
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Gale Holland)
One in every 5 of the Los Angeles Community College District's 230,000 students is homeless, and nearly two-thirds can't afford to eat properly, according to a new survey commissioned by the system's board of trustees.

The study looked at students with unstable housing and "food insecurity," which is defined by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as lacking enough to eat to sustain an active, healthy life.

Nearly half the L.A. community college students surveyed reported struggling with high housing costs. Of the 19% who said they were recently homeless, 8% reported being thrown out of their homes, 4% said they had been evicted, and 6% had stayed in an abandoned building, car or other location not meant for housing, the survey says.

Although college students nationwide face financial constraints that affect their nutrition, the study says, those enrolled at the L.A. district's nine campuses fare worse than the national average. About 65% can't afford balanced meals, and 60% are unable to buy more when their food runs out, the study says.

The Atlantic CityLab
(6/29/2017 5:30 AM, Liz Wolfe)
Providing decent shelter for people experiencing homelessness is both a political and practical challenge.

Los Angeles's infamous Skid Row neighborhood holds anywhere from 8,000 to 11,000 people who are living on the streets, packed into a 50-block stretch of the city. A mural at Skid Row's entrance, designed to look like an official city sign, reads, "Skid Row City Limit. Population: Too Many."

Most Angelenos avoid the area, if they can; it's a typical example of how homelessness can fester out of sight and out of mind.

Properly sheltering the homeless presents a mix of logistical and political challenges. In many cities, NIMBY residents block efforts to build supportive services nearby, concentrating those living in homelessness in dangerous and squalid conditions under highways and in under-populated areas. When shelters are built, they can be far from where people need them and are often plagued by crime, to the point that many people regularly voluntarily forfeit the opportunity to spend the night there.

One possible way around those barriers—design that utilizes cheap, easily-duplicated, pod-based living.

Marchers criticize city, HUD for lack of investment, incompetent leadership

NYCHA residents from the South Bronx joined their counterparts from around the city to protest city and federal policies they say ignore the increasingly desperate need for repairs and other investment to public housing.

A sea of red T-shirts that read "Stop NYCHA from Pushing Out the Poor" could be seen from blocks away as the demonstrators marched through the streets of Harlem on June 24.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Housing advocates argue that the city continues to neglect NYCHA's needs while prioritizing new affordable housing developments to help Mayor Bill de Blasio fulfill his promise to build and restore 200,000 units of affordable housing.

The protesters shouted "NYCHA says get back, we say fight back!" and other slogans while making their way south between East 143rd Street and Lennox Avenue to 110th Street.

Much of the frustration that sparked the protest stems from the city's proposed solution to the budget shortfall for public housing. In 2015, Mayor de Blasio announced the launch of NextGeneration NYCHA, an initiative to bring in $17 billion in capital improvements for dilapidated buildings. Part of the 10-year plan includes selling underutilized land on NYCHA properties, such as parking lots and trash collection areas, to private developers. Additionally, 50 percent of new apartments in developments to be built on NYCHA property would be slated for market-rate tenants, and the other half for those earning up to 60 percent of the Area Median Income. NYCHA estimates that part of the plan could generate between $300 and $600 million, with the goal of "ensuring the Authority's financial sustainability."

(6/29/2017 4:44 AM, Colin Campbell)
RALEIGH - The budget bill that became law after an override vote Wednesday includes an additional $100 million for disaster relief, but it doesn't detail how the money will be spent.

Those details came Wednesday in a new version of Senate Bill 338, which was introduced in the Appropriations Committee and unanimously passed the full House a few hours later.

Under the new version, titled Disaster Recovery Act of 2017, $20 million would go toward housing needs stemming from Hurricane Matthew, including the repair of public housing in Lumberton and Princeville. Another $5 million would be used to build new low-income housing in the town of Fair Bluff.

The nonprofit group Golden LEAF would get $30 million to provide infrastructure grants to communities affected by the hurricane that struck North Carolina in October and by wildfires last year. The N.C. Department of Agriculture would get $20 million for stream debris removal and for road, dam and pond repairs on affected farms.

Unexpected Drop in U.S. Pending Home Sales Shows Inventory Woes (Bloomberg)
Bloomberg
(6/28/2017 12:12 PM, Sho Chandra)
The third consecutive decline in signed contracts to purchase previously owned U.S. homes indicates progress in the housing market is stalling on the heels of lean inventory and rising prices, according to data released Wednesday from the National Association of Realtors in Washington.

Key Takeaways

The housing market is settling back to a slower pace because listings remain limited. That's driving up asking prices and presenting a hurdle for first-time and younger prospective buyers. Nonetheless, steady hiring, easier credit availability and borrowing costs still near historically low levels are supportive for the housing recovery. Economists consider pending sales a leading indicator because they track contract signings. Purchases of existing homes are tabulated when a deal closes, typically a month or two later, and those sales were up in two of the past three months.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Economist Views

"This third consecutive decline in contract activity implies a possible topping off in sales," Lawrence Yun, NAR's chief economist, said in a statement. "Buyer interest is solid, but there is just not enough supply to satisfy demand. Prospective buyers are being sidelined by both limited choices and home prices that are climbing too fast."

VIDEO. Fewer buyers signed contracts to buy existing homes in May, likely because they can't find or afford what they want.

The pending home sales index from the National Association of Realtors dropped 0.8 percent month to month and is now 1.7 percent lower than May 2016. Expectations had been for a slight gain, but even April's reading was revised lower.

"Monthly closings have recently been oscillating back and forth, but this third consecutive decline in contract activity implies a possible topping off in sales," said Lawrence Yun, chief economist of the Realtors. "Buyer interest is solid, but there is just not enough supply to satisfy demand. Prospective buyers are being sidelined by both limited choices and home prices that are climbing too fast."

The number of home sales that closed this spring was slightly higher than a year ago, but the lack of listings clearly held the market back. The supply of homes for sale at the end of May was down more than 8 percent from a year ago, and homes that were listed sold at the fastest rate on record.

Home purchase contract signings declined again in May, another sign of the headwinds working against momentum in the housing market.

The pending home sales index from the National Association of Realtors slid 0.8%, marking the third-straight monthly decline.

The index hit 108.5 in May and its April level was revised lower.

It was lower compared to a year ago for the second month in a row in May, this time by 1.7%. The index forecasts future sales by tracking real estate transactions in which a contract has been signed, but the deal has not yet closed.

Subject: Today's HUD News Briefing

The following items in today's HUD News Briefing are of specific interest to the HUD Richmond Office:

[VA] Essex Village in court over 18 criminal charges (WTVR-TV CBS 6, VA) (7/14/2017 2:27 PM, Brendan King)
VIDEO. RICHMOND, Va., - An attorney representing the owners of the Essex Village apartments appeared in front of a Henrico County General District Court judge for an arraignment on charges related to problems that have been the subject of an ongoing CBS 6 investigation. The defendant, Essex VA Investors LLC, Paraco Inc. of Mechanicsville, has more than a dozen criminal summonses issued by the county. The company faces a total of 18 building code violation charges, according to online records. Two of the five misdemeanor counts brought up in court Friday morning were described on court documents as violating Virginia code section. The violations included failing to properly maintain plumbing fixtures, garbage disposal, and sink pipes leaking to cabinet base; abate mice infestation; and failure to maintain interior structure in good repair, holes, and baseboards in a mechanical closet, which allowed pest and rodent entry. An attorney representing the county said the 18 charges were grouped into three offense topics, including broken porches. That attorney told the judge they plan to go to trial without settling. A woman, who county officials said were representing the Essex Village apartments in court, briefly spoke to reporters after the hearing. "We can't make a comment at this time, I'm sorry," she said. "We will be meeting with our residents." No time frame was given when that meeting may be scheduled. The next court date for the five misdemeanor counts arraigned on Friday is scheduled for Sept. 25. The 13 other building code violation charges are scheduled to be heard on July 28 and August 4. County officials showed CBS 6's original report to the Henrico County Board of Supervisors during a June meeting about problems at the low-income housing complex prior to announcing the criminal summonses. In April, the owner Greg Pearlman told us they had maintained the property well, and in the past couple of months things had not been up to their standards. He promised residents would see major changes by the beginning of May, and some residents said improvements are happening. The Department of Housing and Urban Development paid the company managing Essex Village more than $150 million to subsidize the rent of residents at low-income housing complexes across the country in 2016. The numbers were uncovered by a CBS 6 investigation after Congressman Donald McEachin called for HUD to terminate their business with PK Management, which manages three Section 8 facilities in Henrico County: Essex Village, Woodland Crossing and Hope Village. McEachin said PK Management properties is not meeting the spirit of its obligation to provide safe and sanitary housing. PK Management and their parent company, GHC Housing, received $152,110, 882 from HUD in 2016, according to information obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request submitted to HUD. The company receives more than $7 million a year from HUD to subsidize rent at its housing complexes. Other elected officials are also beginning to respond to the ongoing investigation into the Henrico apartment complex. State Senator Siobhan Dunnavant said the living conditions at Essex Village are "Egregious" and she is currently in the process of drafting a letter to HUD Secretary Ben Carson.

[VA] Roanoke awarded over $2.7 million to eliminate lead based paint hazards (WSET-TV ABC 13 Roanoke, VA) (7/14/2017 10:48 AM, Catherine Doss)
WASHINGTON, D.C. - Virginia Senators Kaine and Warner are announcing more than $7 million in grants from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. This money will go to cities and organizations in Virginia, including Roanoke. The city of Roanoke will be getting $2,719,660 for the 2017 fiscal year. Officials say the grants will go toward eliminating lead based paint in the city's older homes. A total of $5.42 million will go toward funding and eliminating lead based paint hazards in low and "Very low" income private housing in Roanoke and Richmond. According to the World Health Organization, lead can lead to serious health complications for everyone, but especially children.

[VA] Norfolk City Council weighing public housing redevelopment plan (WAVY-TV NBC 10 Portsmouth, VA) (7/14/2017 5:15 PM, Chris Horne)
VIDEO. NORFOLK, Va. - Norfolk City Council will decide next week whether to enter a cooperation agreement with the Redevelopment and Housing Authority that would affect 1,700 public housing units.
The agreement would pave the way for a redevelopment plan for Tidewater Gardens, Young Terrace and Calvert Square. It would demolish the existing structures and replace them with a blend of single family homes, carriage houses, townhouses and apartments. The city says if approved, the proposal would fit into a multipronged approach to revitalize what's referred to as the St. Paul's area. City Manager Doug Smith says, "This initiative at its core is about growing opportunity for our residents." A resident who spoke with 10 On Your Side said she'd like to see more local businesses offer child care so that mothers would have more work opportunities. Councilman Paul Riddick is calling it gentrification. "I don't want this to be a dumping ground for the public housing residents, for Section 8 and programs of that nature," Riddick said. The city says the goal is to strengthen the neighborhood by de-concentrating poverty, increasing self-sufficiency and providing access to better education. Council is expected to vote on the agreement Tuesday. A city spokeswoman says residents in the affected communities would have opportunities for input if the proposal moves forward.

[VA] Newport News has plenty of development work planned (Newport News Daily Press, VA) (7/14/2017 6:40 AM, Tara Bozick)
VIDEO. Newport News wants to accomplish more with its announced development projects before taking on too much more, the city's development director said this week. A key focus will be Ferguson's planned City Center at Oyster Point campus that will bring 1,400 workers, including more than 400 new employees, to the mixed-use development with the city building a 1,500-space parking garage, Mayor McKinley Price and Newport News Development Director Florence Kingston told about 50 attendees of an Urban Land Institute Virginia meeting at Christopher Newport University on Tuesday. Attendee Thomas O'Grady with Clancy & Theys Construction Co. in Newport News wanted to know what the Ferguson campus would mean for City Center, although Kingston said it was too early to gauge interest. "I think the spin-off opportunities are tremendous for City Center for future office, retail and residential," O'Grady said. The city is working on a plan to enliven downtown while still trying to create more attractive housing options across the city, Kingston said, adding the city's aging housing stock is a competitive disadvantage. She said the city needs housing that keeps both younger workers and company leaders living within the city. "We have got to work on some new housing options at all prices," Kingston said. When asked about interest for homes or development for Economic Development Authority-owned land near Endview Plantation, Kingston said she doesn't want to rush and would like to see other projects on the books get started. She said Patrick Henry Place and Huntington Pointe are moving forward and would add new homes. The city is using a $500,000 Choice Neighborhoods Initiative planning grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to find ways to improve the Ridley Place public housing complex and the surrounding area in the Southeast Community, Price said.

OFFICE of the DEPUTY SECRETARY

THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

HUD Further Aligns Mission and Operational Priorities

Any organization that strives for excellence is continually looking within to make certain the right people are in the right jobs. It's a dynamic process that seeks to ensure that senior leaders serve in roles that are matched with their skill. Toward that end, the Department is reassigning several of our Senior Executive Service (SES) members to improve delivery of HUD programs and to empower new individuals to lead our change efforts over the next few years.

Effective today:

- Paula Lincoln becomes our Deputy Chief Administrative Officer
- Jean Lin Pao will direct the Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization
- Todd Richardson will serve as the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy Development, and also becomes the Acting General Deputy Assistant Secretary for the Office of Policy Development and Research
- Dominique Blom will serve as the General Deputy Assistant Secretary for the Office of Public and Indian Housing
- Matt Ammon will serve as Director of the Office of Healthy Homes and Lead Hazard Control
- Helen Goff Foster becomes the Senior Agency Official for Privacy and the Chief FOIA Officer
- Nancy Corsiglia joins OCHCO as the Deputy Assistant Secretary for the Office of the Chief Management Officer
- Jon Gant will serve as senior advisor to the Office of Healthy Homes and Lead Hazard Control
- Jemine Byron will serve as the Deputy Assistant Secretary for the Office of Special Needs Assistance Programs

Instituting a coherent talent strategy which addresses HUD's current challenges is a critical linchpin to stability and the agency's operational success. Over the last few years, the results of HUD's Employee Viewpoint Survey consistently identified the need to strengthen senior leadership. The agency's goal is to create a senior staffing plan that builds on the talents of our SES members, matches those talents with the needs of today's HUD, and empowers them to be successful with HUD's priorities going forward.

Please join us in welcoming our senior leaders to their new roles.

Sincerely,
Janet Golrick

SUMMARY: Essex Village Apartment, Henrico County, Va. a PK Management Company Richmond, Virginia Media Outlets
We received our initial Essex Village Apartments inquiry from CBS6 WTVR-TV reporter Melissa Hipolit on Wednesday, December 14, 2016. Melissa asked for the total amount of Housing Assistance Payments sent to Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia in 2016. At that point, the current annual subsidy was $5,376,299. The apartment complex has 496 units under the Section 8 Housing Assistance Program (HAP) contract. Melissa acknowledged she was new to assisted housing, so I explained that families and individuals pay no more than 30 percent of their income towards their monthly rental—and that the HUD voucher makes up the difference. Because this property is project-based assistance, the voucher is tied to the apartment unit, not the individual or family. She requested a copy of the HAP contract and the most recent HUD REAC Inspection scores—which I let her know were both subject to FOIA.

Over the next few weeks, we received a number in inquiries—mainly resident complaints about water issues, leaks, mold, pests—about the deteriorating living conditions at the property. On January 3, 2017, we confirmed a REAC Inspection was scheduled in two weeks. The inspection was conducted on January 17, 2017. Ms. Hipolit was the first to request a 2017 REAC Inspection report which was not available by FOIA for 120 days. A letter dated February 2 from Henrico County Supervisor Frank Thornton was sent to Richmond Field Office Director Carrie Schmidt making her aware of the County's concern for residents stemming from the many code violations and life safety issues at the complex. Director Schmidt alerted Multifamily and the others impacted by the issues raised in the letter.

A March 30 meeting was scheduled at the Richmond Field Office, but before HUD Multifamily and Field Office leadership met, Henrico County officials dialed up the issue in the press. With CBS6's Melissa Hipolit leading in continuing coverage on Essex Village including the failing REAC Inspection score of 46c, she expanded her storyline to include the PK Management properties in the Richmond area including Woodland Crossings, Richmond, Va. (66b) and Hope Village, Glen Allen, Va. (82). NBC12 WWBT-TV Ashley Monfort has also been following with coverage on all three properties, with "dueling coverage" on who can uncover ongoing resident issues, including the fall of a 7-month pregnant resident from a balcony in disrepair. "Bubbling" sewage, along with other water, mold and infestation issues, continue to be reported by residents at all three properties. Both television stations are working in concert with Henrico County officials to bring resident issues "to light" and to be quickly addressed by PK Management, Navigate (the Performance Based Contract Administrator) and HUD.

U.S. Congressman Donald McEachin (VA-4) toured the property on May 12 with NBC's Ashley Monfort in tow and has been continuing to issue press releases and statements calling for HUD to take action. WRIC-TV anchor/reporter Kerri O'Brien has also visited the properties, interviewed residents and is calling for HUD to provide vouchers for residents to relocate. Richmond Times-Dispatch reporter Debbie Truong and Richmond Free Press reporter Jeremy Lazarus have been adding print and online stories into the mix. We continue to receive notifications of resident issues from the various outlets, and are working to provide updates on resolutions as well as the work underway to upgrade the properties and repair the many issues. In July, we worked with Navigate to craft a "1,2,3 step" communication for residents that includes flyers, an upgraded website portal for complaints, and provided this information to the various media outlets requesting their assistance in helping us help the residents.

Key dates/deliverables include: The Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan for Essex Village Apartments that was received from PK Management on May 25 includes 74 pages of issues/repairs to be addressed by PK Management by July 31. A June 7 conference call with Congressman McEachin and Henrico County officials addressed the many questions/issues the Congressman had raised with HUD [please see attached]. On July 14, an attorney representing the owners of the Essex Village apartments appeared in front of a Henrico County General District Court judge for an arraignment on charges related to five of the 18 building code violation charges that have been issued. The July 28 meeting between Henrico County Board Chairman Pat O'Bannon and senior HUD officials was postponed due to the Secretary's schedule. The meeting is in response to Ms. O'Bannon's email to the President, requesting his assistance. HUD has scheduled a REAC Re-Inspection for August 8. We anticipate that Henrico County officials and the media will be on-hand that day.

In the interim, we continue to field multiple media and FOIA requests almost daily, and will continue to respond to these many requests. Residents continue to contact Henrico County officials, CBS6 Problem Solvers or other media portals for customer complaints—noting timely responses for those who bypassed the work order system. During a July 25 Board of Supervisors Meeting, Henrico County officials cited that HUD repeatedly gave the property passing scores, causing misrepresentation of HUD's ongoing work with the owner and property management agent that follows a failing REAC score.

On Friday, July 28, Public Affairs' GDAS Jerry Brown visited the property as a follow-up to his visit a month earlier. He reported a tremendous difference—and that in conversations with residents, they were thrilled with the repairs and the fact that their maintenance calls were receiving a timely response. He noted Essex Village is old (built in 1981) and the property needs the facelift that is now underway. It is clean, kids were playing in the street and externally it looks like it would pass our inspection. Here is what he saw:

- One, out of every four buildings, has some type of repair work underway. Some of it is extensive.
- Gutters are being replaced.
- Siding is being replaced.
- Dry wall work is occurring inside numerous building.
- Crews were still working and it was 5:50 p.m.
- Nearly every balcony had replacement slacks. Those that didn't were completely rebuilt including flooring.
- Storage containers with sheetrock, siding, gutters were prominent throughout the complex.

At least six crews were working throughout the complex. The only portion of the complex that was not being worked on was the rancher-side of the complex—where seniors reside. That portion of the complex looks much better than the other side. It may just be the density of the housing and the cul-de-sac approach. Jerry has photographs that he is willing to share.

As of August 3, two FOIAs with requests for the Compliance Disposition and Enforcement Plan are outstanding pending submitter objections. An additional FOIA with nearly 150 pages of emails will be shipped later today.

MEDIA INQUIRIES

Wednesday, March 22, 2017

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. The apartment complex has 496 units under the Section 8 Housing Assistance Program (HAP) contract. Melissa withdrew her FOIA request for the last two inspection reports because she is aware there is a subsequent REAC inspection/report out underway. She is asking for specifics as to why the property failed the inspection with a score of 46c*. I let her know that because the most recent inspection was completed on January 11, 2017 and the report was given to Essex Village and HUD on January 19 and that REAC reports are not releasable until 120 days to allow time for appeals. The final REAC report will be available beginning May 19, and subject to any FOIA exemptions. As far as the specific issues at the property, I explained that I am unable to provide any additional information until the final REAC report is released. During a second late-day call, Melissa asked if Gregory Perlman of GH Capital was involved in the project. I mentioned that I was unfamiliar with the name, and the only owner/management company I had knowledge of was PK Management. Today I verified that Gregory Perlman is involved with Essex Village Apartments through both Essex VA Investors LLC and PK Management. I verified that he signed the HAP Basic Renewal Contract as the Manager and authorizing representative. HUD Multifamily leadership has been meeting with Mr. Perlman and others to resolve deficiencies at the property. Melissa is also aware of the meeting between Henrico County officials and HUD scheduled for March 30, so we are anticipating that press will be at the Richmond Field Office that day.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit inquired about Gregory Perlman, the owner involved with Essex Village Apartments through both Essex VA Investors LLC and PK Management. He signed the HAP Basic Renewal Contract as the Manager and authorizing representative and is one of the individuals representing PK Management who is currently working with our team to resolve the issues at Essex Village.

Monday, March 27, 2017

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. Melissa has reached out to Colonel Douglas A. Middleton, Henrico County's Deputy County Manager for Public Safety for a pre-meeting interview to discuss the myriad of county inspections that parallel HUD's failing score. Ten County officials will meet with the Richmond Field Office and multifamily teams on March 30. We are anticipating that press will be at the Richmond Field Office that day.

Tuesday, March 28, 2017

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) reporter Debbie Truong inquired about Essex Village in Henrico County after speaking with with Doug Middleton, the deputy county manager in Henrico who told her the county has cracked down on the number of code violations at Essex in hopes of bettering the quality of life there. She asked about percentage of Section 8 units at Essex and if HUD is supportive of Henrico's efforts to crackdown on code violations. Doug mentioned that the county would like to strengthen its relationship with HUD and if the agency is willing to do the same. She also identified the county said it found 140 code violations at Essex asking how HUD regulates conditions at the properties it provides funding to and how regularly HUD properties are inspected and/or regulated.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) reporter Melissa Hipolit asked about a proposal for a large rent increase at Essex Village. During an interview with Henrico County officials, it was mentioned that numbers that show substantial rent increases have been proposed. She also requested an on-camera interview which was declined.

Wednesday, March 29, 2017
Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) reporter Debbie Truong requested additional information including a follow-up that Middleton stated that Essex Village received the fifth lowest score in the state from HUD though he was unclear about what the scoring was related to. I explained the REAC Inspection process and how the scores determine frequency of inspection and steps HUD/property manager must take to resolve issues. She also submitted a FOIA requesting a list of the property owners/managers since the property was built in 1982.

Friday, March 31, 2017
Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) reporter Jeremy Lazarus was briefed about how Henrico County officials are working with HUD to address the many issues at Essex Village Apartments. I suggested that he follow-up with County officials for specifics, as they are addressing the code violations and health and safety issues their own inspections have uncovered as well as the police and fire calls originating from residents to County responders. I noted our agency has our own inspection process and we are currently working with the property owners and management to address the issues we have identified. There are no proposed rent increases. Independently, we are working on behalf of residents to improve conditions at the property.

Tuesday, April 4, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has requested under FOIA copies of inspection records regarding Essex Village Apartments located in Henrico County, Va. from 2012 to 2017. She has also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. She initially contacted HUD while a meeting between Henrico County officials and HUD multifamily and field office leaders were meeting last Thursday, March 30 about living conditions and issues at the property. She also requested and we declined an on-camera. We are working with PK Management to address the issues. More to follow.

NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) News desk reported there was a fire at Essex Village around 10 p.m. on Wednesday, April 3. Approximately eight households were displaced. The fire department was dispatched and rescued several residents trapped on their balconies; no reported injuries. The cause of the fire is being investigated by the fire department.

Thursday, April 6, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has requested under FOIA copies of inspection records regarding Essex Village Apartments located in Henrico County, Va. from 2012 to 2017. She has also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. The FOIA has been assigned and the inspection reports have been pulled and are being redacted. Multifamily housing is working on the correspondence aspects of the request. Because there is an inspection process currently underway, any correspondence pulled will need to be carefully reviewed before release. Continuing to work this request.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. Melissa is continuing to ask for an on-camera interview which we have declined (three times). She is also follow-up with a resident document that illustrates a substantial rent increase. Yesterday I responded with the note that for a rent increase, the owner/management would have to submit a formal proposal to HUD for approval. Nothing has been submitted to HUD to date. PK Management is contemplating a substantial renovation of the property (ranging from $9 to 19 million), but the initial proposal was incomplete and a new proposal has not been submitted. Will continue to work the various aspects of this question.

Friday, April 7, 2017

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus followed-up on last week's second request about issues at Essex Village Apartments in Henrico, Va. Pending approval from multifamily housing leadership, today's response will address a series of questions including a date or time that a project-based Section 8 property must correct problems; the timeframe HUD will give them time to correct and/or bring the property into compliance as well as what is the actual time-period. Notice: H 2015-02-Subject: Required Actions for Multifamily Housing Projects Receiving Failing Scores from HUD's Real Estate Assessment Center (REAC) which defines the various steps both HUD and the property owner/manager must take following a failed physical inspection. The Notice covers the deliverables with deadlines. The process is basically a decision tree in the event the corrections/deficiencies are not made at the various points in time. I did not cover what happens in the event of a Failure to Comply, but that is also included in the notice. More to come.

Friday, April 21, 2017

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort followed-up with us on a FOIA request she sent over April 4. She requested copies of the REAC property inspection reports from 2012 to 2017 regarding Essex Village located in Henrico County, Va. Inspection scores for 2012 to 2015 have been in the 70s. The most recent inspection in January 2017 resulted in an initial REAC score (46c*). The owners' appeal was granted, bringing the score to 51--still considered a fail. That report will be releasable on May 19, 2017. Corrective actions and timeline has been put in place for the owner/manager. The reporter also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. My guess is she is searching for information about a possible rehabilitation/sale which was initiated by the owner, but never completed. The Richmond Field Office anticipates completing the request early next week. A March 30 online story was updated this week to include a statement by Congressman A. Donald McEachin (VA-04) who issued the following statement about the failing living conditions at Essex Village: "No family deserves to live in conditions such as the one documented at Essex Village. All individuals – no matter their race, socioeconomic status, or sexual orientation – should be treated fairly and have safe and clean shelter. The property managers must address these unhealthy conditions immediately. The families who call this community home, should be able to rest easy in a safe environment after a long day at work and school, not worry about the living conditions."

Thursday, April 27, 2017

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort received the FOIA request she sent over April 4. We shipped the REAC property inspection reports from 2012 to 2017 regarding Essex Village located in Henrico County, Va. Inspection scores for 2012 to 2015 have been in the 70s. The most recent inspection in January 2017 resulted in an initial REAC score (46c*). The final report will be releasable on May 19, 2017. The reporter also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. Documentation within the correspondence validated that GHC Housing had been trying to sell the property, but Henrico County turned down supporting their request for LIHTC to support an estimated $19 million in renovations. I anticipate more follow-up tomorrow.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. Yesterday she submitted three requests for information on GHC Housing properties including specifics Woodland Crossing in Richmond including the most recent inspection report and amount of subsidy for residents annually. She is also seeking any information on Greg Perlman as well as how to research any Section 8 property owners with a history with HUD. She's looking for investigations, sanctions, etc. She has also requested a list of the inspection ratings, resident complaints and overall subsidy GHC Housing Properties received last year (2016). With more than 18,000 units in 24 states, we are determining if any reports can be run with the inspection/funding information. More to follow on that tomorrow.

Friday, April 28, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit expanded her FOIA requests as she prepares for an interview with Greg Perlman, owner/manager of PK Management (Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va.). Today, we confirmed her request for information for a second PK Management property, Woodland Crossing in Richmond Va. She has requested the most recent inspection report (which earned a barely passing 66B) as well as the current annual funding HUD pays on behalf of residents; believe to be approximately $2,146,000. She has requested a listing of any sanctions or investigations involving PK Management; a HUD-2530 report has been pulled by multifamily and indicates there is no current negative activity. She has requested a total of all monies HUD paid to PK Management and/or GHC Housing last year (2016) to subsidize the rent of residents at their properties. This report has been produced by multifamily, but included expired contracts; awaiting update from multifamily. Annual receipts appear to be in the range of $200 million. She has also requested resident complaints for all of PK Management's Virginia properties. We are working with the PBCA agents to generate the requested reports.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Continuing to work on Reporter Melissa Hipolit' s FOIA requests as she prepares for an interview with Greg Perlman, owner/manager of PK Management (Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va.). She has requested a total of all monies HUD paid to PK Management and/or GHC Housing last year (2016) to subsidize the rent of residents at their properties nationwide as well as Woodland Crossings. Multifamily is generating the report. She has also requested resident complaints for all of PK Management's Virginia properties; Tim Shearer of Navigate, the PBCA, will generate the requested reports. HUD Headquarters is also working on the REAC inspection report scores for PK Management properties nationwide. If all goes well, we should be able to ship the FOIA by the end of the week. Her interview is scheduled for Monday, May 8.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Continuing to work on Reporter Melissa Hipolit' s FOIA requests as she prepares for an interview with Greg Perlman, owner/manager of PK Management (Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va.). Her FOIA request has been classified as "complex" and we continue to pull together files including the subsidies paid to PK Management for Woodland Crossings ($1.4 million) and nationwide ($152 million). We also collected the PBCA's complaint numbers—surprisingly low considering the issues at Essex Village. The input from the requested sources (HQ, Baltimore Multifamily HUB, Richmond Field Office Multifamily) are due next Wednesday. We should be able to release a portion of the FOIA before the end of next week.

Tuesday, May 9, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a partial for her last FOIA request on PK Management, the owner of Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. She is currently working on a story about Woodland Crossing, the other almost failing (66b) PK Management property in Richmond, Va. She is hoping to air the story within the next week or so. We have completed several items in her request and should be able to ship partials today and tomorrow.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit visited Hope Village in Glen Allen, Va., a PK Management property, and alerted us that a resident who contacted her claimed her child has elevated lead levels. The reporter reviewed the lab results which confirm the young boy does have an elevated lead level. The resident is scheduled to have all three of her children tested next week. Henrico County officials as well as the health department have been made aware and are responding to the situation. HUD confirmed the property has both lead certification disclosure and reports up-to-date and on file for the property. A follow-up call with the reporter led to further discussions that multiple resident appeals from both Hope Village and Woodland Crossing in Richmond, Va. have gone unanswered. All three are older and deteriorating. We are working with multifamily and the PBCA Navigate to learn more and initiate follow-up actions.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a partial for her last FOIA request on PK Management, the owner of Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. She is currently working on a story about Woodland Crossing, the other almost failing (66b) PK Management property in Richmond, Va. She is hoping to air the story within the next week or so. The redacted REAC inspection report and annual Section 8 funding amount have been submitted to OGC for clearance; hope to ship today or Monday.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit received a follow-up to her request for a listing of the most recent REAC inspection scores for the 164 properties nationwide managed by PK Management. There are five properties that have had recent inspections that are not releasable. Most REAC Inspections are in the 80-99-point range—146 of the 164.

Friday, May 12, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort toured Essex Village Apartments with U.S. Congressman Donald McEachin and called and asked for comment about the Congressman's comment that he is going to try to convince HUD to provide vouchers.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit visited Hope Village in Glen Allen, Va., a PK Management property on May 9, and alerted us that a resident who contacted her claimed her child has elevated lead levels. The reporter reviewed the lab results which confirm the young boy does have an elevated lead level. The resident is scheduled to have all three of her children tested next week. Henrico County officials as well as the health department have been made aware and are responding to the situation. HUD confirmed the property has both lead certification disclosure and reports up-to-date and on file for the property. A follow-up call with the reporter led to further discussions that multiple resident appeals from both Hope Village and Woodland Crossing in Richmond, Va. have gone unanswered. All three are older and deteriorating. We have learned the number of resident complaints from all four of the PK Management properties is surprising low, given the issues of late. Following up with the reporter today.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on the inspection process for HUD REAC Inspections—she was particularly interested in the inspectors are third party contractors or HUD employees. The 2017 REAC Inspection at Essex Village Apartments was performed by HUD Quality Assurance Inspectors.

Monday, May 22, 2017

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a partial for her last FOIA request on PK Management, the owner of Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. She is currently working on a story about Woodland Crossing, the other almost failing (66b) PK Management property in Richmond, Va. The redacted REAC inspection report and annual Section 8 funding amount reports were shipped last Tuesday. On Friday May 19, Melissa interviewed PK Management's Jenne McClain-Blankhead. The story has not yet aired. Jenne will submit a summary of the interview to multifamily by COB on Monday, May 22.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit and NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort previously inquired about the January 11, 2017 REAC Inspection report for Essex Village Apartments that is now available for release. I anticipate FOIAs from both television stations as well as the Richmond Times-Dispatch in the next day or so.

Wednesday, May 24, 2017

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit submitted a FOIA request on the annual subsidy amount paid to PK Management for Hope Village in Glen Allen, Va. The FOIA was completed and shipped today. This is a follow-up to her visit to that property on May 9. The resident's apartment, which she alerted us had evidence of mold and a child with an elevated blood lead level, has been tested and certified there is no lead in the residence. The report has been given to County officials. No further action on this matter anticipated. During the May 23 meeting with Henrico County officials and Congressman McEachin, both the County and Congressman requested that HUD investigate issues at the property.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit contacted us after residents of Essex Village reached out to WTVR CBS 6 News about a sewage issue Sunday afternoon. They said the problems started around 1 p.m. when a woman's toilet overflowed and solid waste continued to flood into her apartment. Outside the unit, sewage also started bubbling up from a drain in a sidewalk because of a blockage. Essex Village's sewage system is privately owned and not maintained by the county, but Henrico utility crews responded, removed the blockage and made sure the line was clear. PK Management investigated and learned it was the fault of the resident. No additional action needed.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out to find out any updates to the PK Management/Essex Village story. She noted Congressman McEachin's letter to Dr. Carson last week expressing concerns about the pregnant woman that fell, as well as the weekend the sewage eruption. Crafted a response to the status of the resident who fell as well as the work underway by HUD, PK Management, Henrico County and others to address the many issues at the property. Multifamily, OPA, OGC and FPM reviewed and approved the response. In response, received a query about the balconies—and a resident rumor that the balconies were going to be removed. Confirmed with PK Management they have contracted for the inspection and repair of the balconies throughout the property.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit continued her investigation/reporting of PK Management properties with a report on Woodland Crossing in Richmond. Her investigation uncovered that PK Management has been cited by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for several health and safety infractions at the complex. The story included evidence of roach infestation, front doors that will not lock, mold and other safety and health hazards.

8NEWS, WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Investigative Reporter Kerri O'Brien contacted me multiple times yesterday for a story regarding complaints about PK Management that included federal lawsuits, involving overcharging and HUD violations in 2009 out of North Carolina. Additional research uncovered two HUD OIG audits. In addition to shipping information on assisted housing, REAC Inspections and specific PK Management REAC Inspection reports, the reporter focused on the question—why is HUD entrusting its resident housing to an unscrupulous company? PK Management has three properties in Henrico County, Va.—all in disrepair.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus submitted three (3) requests over the past few days including an update on the status of the resident who fell from the balcony as well as the work underway to remedy the deficiencies at Essex Village. He noted that the inspections in previous years appeared to overlook the deterioration—not the case—the property has always been scored in the 70s. He requested an update on the letters Congressman McEachin issued to Secretary Carson. He also inquired about the HUD inspection process and the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan. All questions were addressed, status report shipped and closed.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort received the January 11, 2017 REAC Inspection report for Essex Village Apartments that is now available for release. She requested an update on the resident who fell from the balcony and the work underway at Essex (status report shipped). She also requested a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan. As far as the plan, it was just submitted on Friday and is in review, so no copy is available right now. I am trying to get a timetable (line a REAC inspection report) as well as what elements of the plan are releasable by FOIA (and when).

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong contacted me about a story she is writing about Henrico County issuing a violation notice for a balcony at Essex Village that a pregnant woman apparently fell through. She asked if HUD is aware of the issue, and asked for comment. Waiting for legal to advise since there is concern about resident litigation/disclosure. Crafted a response to the status of the resident who fell as well as the work underway by HUD, PK Management, Henrico County and others to address the many issues at the property. Truong directly quoted from the response.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is at Hope Village, the third PK Management property in Henrico County, Va. More than 25 residents are preparing a petition identifying the ongoing issues at that complex including mold, water damage, nonworking smoke detectors/lights as well as other issues. One resident (b)(6) contacted Henrico County official Colonel Doug Middleton who referred the resident to FOD Carrie Schmidt. Yesterday the resident met with PK Management, identified the issues with her apartment and is scheduled for repairs next week. During a call this afternoon, the resident asked me about obtaining a housing choice voucher—an obvious plant. Melissa is also pushing for a follow-up story on Woodland Crossing next week.

Monday, June 5, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her coverage at Hope Village, the third PK Management property in Virginia. She is continuing to interview residents who signed a petition identifying the ongoing issues at that complex including mold, water damage, nonworking smoke detectors/lights as well as other issues. Sourcing information on how residents can contact the PBCA contractor Navigate—a communication "miss" that we identified and are trying to remedy.

Tuesday, June 6, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her coverage of PK Management properties in Virginia. Today, the request was for data sets for tracking safety/security/crime issues in multifamily and public housing. She was specifically looking for public housing because of the criminal activity in Richmond's housing projects here recently. She requested an update on the FOIA that includes the list of complaints fielded by HUD/Navigate related to PK Management properties in Virginia. And, also made us aware the 25 residents signing a petition in Hope Village had decided not to follow through since their issues are being taken care of by PK Management this week.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort inquired about additional information on the 2017 Essex Village REAC Inspection report. The property profile says 26 residential units were sampled. Are different units inspected each year? The inspection reports show that inoperable smoke detectors, infestations and inoperable water heaters were issues for years. Were there follow ups to makes sure these issues were fixed? And even if there was, it seems the issues persisted and became worse. I've been told Essex Village was given a passing score until 2017 after the county started issuing violations as well. Will work to clarify the many myths in her request.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus requested the insight on the Essex Village subsidy. Per the Congressman's request for how much HUD subsidized rents last year, the actual Housing Assistance Payment (HAP) contract amount for Essex was $ 4,226,300. The contract runs from October 1 – September 31, so the figure reflects the contracted amount from October 1, 2015 to September 31, 2016. Monthly vouchers can fluctuate depending on tenant adjustments, vacancy claims etc. so the figure reported on December 23, 2016 (per the CBS6 FOIA request) had not accounted for the adjustments and was based on calendar year. At that point, the reported subsidy was $5,376,299. There was no additional capital--no right/wrong--simply a different period of reporting. Working on a second follow-up about the progress of work underway at Woodland Crossing.

Wednesday, June 7, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out to find out any updates to the PK Management/Essex Village story. She is looking for information from her original FOIA request due June 5. Today, we will be shipping the table of resident complaints from PK Management properties in Virginia submitted to Navigate, the PBCA and the total subsidy funding from PK Management properties nationwide. We are in the process of clarifying her final request for any sanctions and/or investigations involving PK Management and HUD. Checking in with multifamily housing.

8NEWS, WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Investigative Reporter Kerri O'Brien submitted four (4) FOIA requests looking for PK Management property REAC Inspection scores from Jan. 2016 through June 2017 (164 properties nationwide, HUD OIG audit reports, all electronic payment vouchers for Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. from 2013 to 2017 and a copy of the CDE Plan submitted to HUD on Friday, May 16. HQ is working through the requests.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus is looking for an update on the work underway at Woodland Crossings in Richmond, Va. Awaiting multifamily housing's response.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted several follow-up questions based on her review of the Essex Village REAC Inspection Report for January 2017. She's trying to understand the sample size, why multiple reports cite inoperable smoke detectors, infestations and inoperable water heaters were issues for years, how is HUD holding the owner accountable and did HUD respond only after Henrico County reported code violations. All issues circle back to the deterioration of the property and the failing REAC Inspection score.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong is looking for information on how many audits/copies of audits HUD conducted with PK Management. If PK Management needs to notify HUD of any lawsuits filed against the company and if so, how many lawsuits have been filed against the company, where and by whom. She is also requesting HUD's assessment of how PK Management manages the federally subsidized housing it runs and owns as well as a list of the property owners and managers who have overseen Essex Village since it opened. She is writing a story for the weekend edition and is on deadline.

Wednesday, June 7, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out for comment on the Congressman McEachin releasing a statement that he's asking HUD to cease all business with PK Management. No response—after hours.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort requested a response in regards to Congressman McEachin's most recent statement: McEachin requests HUD to address conditions at Essex Village; other PK Management properties:

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted a FOIA request for the 2015 and 2016 REAC Inspection reports for Essex Village, Henrico County, Va. She misunderstood that we declined the availability of correspondence in a previous request, not the reports.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong is following up on her request for information on how many audits/copies of audits HUD conducted with PK Management. If PK Management needs to notify HUD of any lawsuits filed against the company and if so, how many lawsuits have been filed against the company, where and by whom. She is also requesting HUD's assessment of how PK Management manages the federally subsidized housing it runs and owns as well as a list of the property owners and managers who have overseen Essex Village since it opened. She is writing a story for the weekend edition and is on deadline. Multifamily provided guidance on each element; response shipped this afternoon.

Friday, June 9, 2017
NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted a FOIA request for the 2015 and 2016 REAC Inspection reports for Essex Village, Henrico County, Va. The reports had been previously sent under an earlier request. Confirmed receipt.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong submitted a FOIA request for the 2017 REAC Inspection report and appeal report for Essex Village, Henrico County, Va. Both reports were shipped this afternoon.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus requested information on the conference call on June 7 with Congressman McEachin and Henrico County Officials. In subsequent press releases and news articles, the Congressman appeared skeptical that progress is being made as HUD has stated it is and that the plan of action PK provided will be implemented. He asked if HUD provided any response to congressman's request. He also inquired if there is a reason that the Congressman believes PK is not getting the improvements done and that HUD is allowing complex to slide while keeping tenants in unfit apartments. He also asked if HUD is exploring the voucher option. Waiting for the Multifamily/CIR response that is in review; will craft follow-up following release of that information.

WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Anchor/Reporter Kerri O'Brien submitted four FOIA requests for information submitted through the public access link on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. and PK Management. These are in addition to the multiple media inquiries from Kerri that I have been addressing. Kerri has requested copies of all electronic payments made to Essex Village from HUD for a period of two-years; a copy of the CDE Plan that was submitted to HUD on May 25; copies of all REAC Inspection Reports for all of PK Management's 164 properties and any HUD OIG audits and/or investigations of any PK Management properties. The Richmond Field Office is working with HQ to pull the requested files and determine who will provide the final information to the reporter.

WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Kerri O'Brien contacted us about a shooting that occurred in Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. on Sunday, June 10. The victim who was shot in the arm, had been previously banned from the property for shooting dice and is a friend of a resident who has been notified of eviction proceedings. We contacted PK Management and requested information relative to on-site security and camera footage. There is an unmarked auxiliary police unit stationed in an apartment on the property. Followed-up with the reporter with that information as well as the fact the security camera footage had been turned over to police officials.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a comment on Congressman McEachin's announcement that he wanted HUD to cease business with PK Management. She also requested a follow-up on her multi-pronged FOIA on Essex Village Apartments and Woodland Crossings Apartments in Richmond, Va. Of the five item requests, the two on Woodland Crossings have been shipped; awaiting concurrence on the final three items pertaining to Essex Village.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit sent a video about an Essex Village resident complaint about bedbugs and roaches emailed to WTVR Problem Solvers. I forwarded the complaint to multifamily who in turn notified PK Management and Navigate. Both followed-up with the tenant, who had not submitted a work order for the complaint, and was advised PK would have an exterminator follow-up immediately. The issue has been followed-up and resolved.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on the outcome of an investigation by HUD's inspector general back in 1982 into allegations that HUD illegally bypassed procedures to approve the construction of Essex Village. The reporter stated there were allegations of a $2 million cost overrun. The inquiry was transferred to Darryl Madden, HUD OIG Public Affairs, to handle. We were also made aware that HUD OIG is considering opening an investigation at Essex Village.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit shipped an Essex Village resident complaint posted on the station's Facebook live. The woman appeared to have water leaking all over her apartment from a defective water tank or water heater. I forwarded the complaint to multifamily who in turn notified PK Management and Navigate. The following morning, it was reported the leak, from a malfunctioning air conditioning unit, had been repaired overnight. The issue had been followed-up and resolved.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit sent an email about an Essex Village resident complaint about bedbugs emailed to WTVR Problem Solvers. I forwarded the complaint to multifamily who in turn notified PK Management and Navigate. Both followed-up with the tenant, who had not submitted a work order for the complaint, and was advised PK would have an exterminator follow-up immediately. The issue has been followed-up and resolved.

WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Anchor/Reporter Kerri O'Brien received her FOIA requesting copies of all electronic payments made to Essex Village Apartments from HUD for a period of two-years.

Thursday, June 15, 2017

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit received a follow-up to her FOIA request for information that included full amount of housing subsidy paid to PK Management during FY2016 ($152 million) as well as the complaints collected on PK Management properties in Virginia. I spoke with Melissa to further clarification the remaining requested item pertaining to "sanctions" and "investigations."

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out late-day to inquire why NBC12 had the 2017 REAC Inspection report for Essex Village Apartments that she had requested, but had not received. After a series of emails, I determined the FOIA had been shipped on June 1 that included the 2015 and 2017 inspection reports. We determined her station's filters were not accepting the files after I successfully shipped them to her private email account. Her evening report included the "more than $150 million" subsidy report.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted a FOIA request about how much money PK Management received from HUD for Essex Village and Woodland Crossings in the past fiscal year. The FOIA is being handled by the Richmond Field Office and will be shipped on Friday.

Friday, June 16, 2017

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort inquired about the date of HUD's follow-up REAC inspection in July. No date has been set. She is also seeking an on camera with a HUD official, which I politely declined.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus requested information on the conference call on June 7 with Congressman McEachin and Henrico County Officials. In subsequent press releases and news articles, the Congressman appeared skeptical that progress is being made as HUD has stated it is and that the plan of action PK provided will be implemented. He asked if HUD provided any response to congressman's request. He also inquired if there is a reason that the Congressman believes PK is not getting the improvements done and that HUD is allowing complex to slide while keeping tenants in unfit apartments. He also asked if HUD is exploring the voucher option. Waiting for the Multifamily/CIR response that is in review; crafted a follow-up for media. Awaiting approval from both to ship.

Richmond Times Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong is doing a story on Essex Village for the weekend edition and had a few questions to be addressed. She stated that Henrico County manager John Vithoulkas criticized HUD for the way it conducts inspections and suggested that inspecting only sampling of buildings is not adequate. He said that he feels HUD erroneously gave Essex passing REAC inspection scores when the property should not have received them. She requested HUD's response which we did not respond to. We addressed her other questions including the REAC re-inspection has not been scheduled. The other two "troubled" properties are Woodland Crossings in Richmond, Va. and Hope Village in Glen Allen, Va. And, HUD's records reflect GHC Properties as the owner, PK Management as the management company.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested assistance for an Essex Village resident who cited issues with her apartment since she moved into the complex March 23, 2016. She complained of leaks and mold. Forwarded the inquiry to Multifamily and Navigate. She requested a response ASAP.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed with a second inquiry regarding the ongoing calls and emails from residents at Essex Village who are continuing to have issues that have gone unresolved. I requested that Melissa assist us with "getting the word out" about the process we have in place to deal with the issues—particularly since the work to remedy the deficiencies in the CDE report is underway. I crafted a response and forwarded it to Melissa and Colonel Middleton and requested their assistance.

Richmond Times Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong forwarded a Richmond Times-Dispatch article from 1982 stating that an investigation was started over a possible cost overrun as Essex was being constructed. The article doesn't show up online, but she attached a copy. She was requesting a resolution to the inquiry—which I forwarded to HUD OIG to respond.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reviewed the 2015 and 2017 Essex Village HUD inspection reports and inquired about several PK Management employees trying to validate if either one was the senior VP that was allegedly "terminated" by PK Management for poor performance related to the properties in the Richmond area. I directed the reporter to PK Management because of the nature of the personnel issue.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit was confused by the notation of unsuccessful versus successful on the REAC Inspection reports and did not understand that a score of 59 or below constitutes a failing score. I confirmed that Essex Village Apartments failed the REAC Inspection with a 46c/51c and verified the notation on the REAC Inspection report means that the inspection was successfully completed and the inspection file was successfully uploaded to our PASS IT system. The word "successful" has nothing to do with the condition of the property.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit submitted a FOIA for Essex Village and PK Management's Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted on May 26, the appeal for the January 2017 REAC Inspection, the Notice of Default from HUD to PK Management and the Project Owner's Certification form. She also asked if the repair plan has been approved by HUD.

Friday, June 23, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has submitted a FOIA requested the amount of annual subsidy paid to PK Management last year to support the assisted housing in Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. and Woodland Crossings, Richmond, Va. We have pulled the actual amounts, but are also determining the HAP Contract amount for FY2016 for each property. We will most likely release the FOIA on Monday after hearing back from multifamily housing.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) WRIC-TV 8News Where You Live (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Investigative Reporter Kerri O'Brien has requested a response/copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted by PK Management for Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. She also inquired if the REAC re-inspection been scheduled. She informed us there is a meeting tonight with Henrico Board of Supervisors on Essex Village.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit inquired about the FOIA she submitted related to Essex Village Apartments and PK Management. She has requested a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted May 26 (accepted and currently being redacted), the Notice of Default, the Project Owner's Certification Survey and Certification form. We are currently waiting for a response from multifamily housing.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit has yet to clarify what she means by requesting a listing of any sanctions or investigations involving PK Management from an earlier FOIA request. She has until July 5 to respond to our request.

Wednesday, June 28, 2017

NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Online Reporter Megan Woo in her report on the Henrico County Board of Supervisors meeting reported that poor living conditions in Essex Village Apartments was the focus of the meeting. Officials say their goal is to get up to speed on what's being done to fix the problems and to determine the next steps. Officials also say they will continue to work with the chief building inspector, and HUD officials to follow up on notices and violations—but incorrectly reported that "despite the fact that HUD continues to give the facility passing grades." The story noted Congressman Donald McEachin has also sent two letters to HUD Secretary Ben Carson about the problems. A correction was filed on the property's failing REAC Inspection score of 51c*.

WRIC-TV 8News Where You Live (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Reporter Kerri O'Brien alerted us to the fact that Henrico County filed nine (9) criminal summons against the owners of Essex Village and Greg Perlman. They range from failing to maintain balconies to air condition problems to failing to fix plumbing. PK Management stated the violations were received after 5 p.m. last evening. Essex staff is already addressing them and Management is verifying the issues were not previously addressed. Also, a violation, if corrected prior to court date carries no fine, only if not addressed. Carolyn Anastasi will follow-up tomorrow morning.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit contacted us about a resident reporting w/video that there is another sewage overflow in Essex. PK Management made us aware of the issue prior to receiving the reporter's note and alerted us that the plumbing company had been called and was on-site along with Henrico County officials and the fire department. Melissa also sent two additional resident complaints our way—one with an overflowing air conditioner and one with long-term carpet damage. I forwarded the information to Multifamily and Navigate.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is interviewing National Alliance of Housing Tenants Michael Kane about HUD's REAC Inspection process. Delton Nichols and Robert Iber provided insight about the process that was edited and shipped to the reporter. Melissa requested an interview with Deputy Assistant Secretary DJ Lavoy. We will again politely decline.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong submitted a FOIA for the amount of federal funding Essex Village receive last year and what the money was intended for. She asked if HUD require owners of properties that receive federal funding to report how they use their money as well as a copy of reports or any documentation GHC Housing Partners, PK Management and/or Essex VA Investors LLC. submitted related to how they used the federal money they received. The additional questions about the issues with the sewer system have been partially addressed with the remainder forwarded to PK Management.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed-up her Wednesday afternoon inquiry that included how PK Management is being held accountable in any way for not properly taking care of Essex Village. Cited Code of Federal Regulations and guidelines HUD must follow when a multifamily owner fails in the requirement to provide decent, safe, sanitary housing in good repair. The Notice of Default of the Housing Assistance Provider Contract has been issued and the subsequent steps are underway. That If the property fails to pass the REAC Re-Inspection, actions may include considering imposition of civil money penalties (CMPs), abatement of the Section 8 or other rental assistance subsidy, in whole or in part, and possible assignment of an FHA loan and/or foreclosure. She also inquired if HUD is investigating what happened to the money they gave PK Management to maintain Essex Village.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit asked why HUD continues to decline requests for an interview. Jerry Brown agreed to follow-up with the reporter.

I also confirmed the remainder of her requests were shipped to her on June 29 that included the appeal to the January 2017 REAC inspection, the Notice of Default and the "Project Owner's Certification" Survey and Certification form that the project is compliant with HUD's physical condition standards and state and local codes. She has had issues receiving large files before and may not have received the reports/submittals.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on HUD's REAC Inspections including if the inspectors talk to the tenants as well as how much weight are mold/mildew/toxic air issues and bed bugs are given in the inspections. Also, whether inspectors test for mold or if it is just a visual test. The response included the fact that these issues are exigent health and safety issues calling for immediate reaction. I also included extensive information on our bed bug guidance and policies. Melissa followed-up on Wednesday with additional questions concerning inspections.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit made us aware that a meeting had been held between PK Management and the residents of Essex Village Apartments last week and that PK Management said they were looking to sell property to Ernst and Hoss in 60-90 days. She asked if HUD was aware of the meeting and/or sale of the property. We confirmed there was a meeting, but that a sale was not discussed.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested the last four REAC Inspection scores for the Burton Apartments in Cincinnati, Ohio. The scores include: 04.03.17, 73b*; 07.08.16, 33c*; 08.22.12, 90c and 05.07.08, 84b. Burton Apartments is part of a 727-unit portfolio in Cincinnati owned by affiliates of PE Holdings, the principal of which is Chaim Puretz. The portfolio, which includes Burton Apartments, was placed in a Receivership in a joint action brought by the private lender and the City of Cincinnati on February 1, 2016. Burton Apartments experienced a fire and a collapsed roof due to flooding conditions during the period that PE was in control of the asset. The Receiver, Jodi M. Ridings and her agent, Milhaus Management, have had operational control of the properties since February 1, 2016 and have performed roof repairs and brought fire damaged units back on line. The Receiver also performed other stabilization repairs at the property. This could be an explanation for the change in score (from a failing 33c* to 73b*) as the Receiver did not commence substantial stabilization work at Burton until after July of 2016, but did substantial work after that date.

We anticipate the final FOIA to be shipped late this afternoon or tomorrow.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a FOIA request for the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan for Essex Village Apartments that was received from PK Management. When she inquired about the delivery of that plan, we reshipped a description of the submitter notification process, and that it is a requirement under FOIA. Again, we explained the FOIA is on hold because there were some objections to release of documents raised by the submitter. PK Management has been given until tomorrow COB to present those objections in a way that will give us reason to withhold the documents. We will follow-up with PK Management tomorrow, and in turn, the reporter.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT
WASHINGTON, DC 20410-1000

OFFICE OF CONGRESSIONAL AND
INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS

The Honorable A. Donald McEachin
Member, United States
House of Representatives
110 N. Robinson Street, Suite 401
Richmond, VA 23220-4457

Dear Representative McEachin:

On behalf of Secretary Benjamin S. Carson, Sr., thank you for your interest in Essex Village and your continued concern for its residents. The Department is keenly interested in resolving the issues at the property and shares your desire to achieve the best outcome for the residents of the Essex Village community. Specifically, you made a series of inquiries regarding the village. The HUD team has already responded to a series of email inquiries and had numerous conversations with your staff regarding Essex Village. The Department is pleased to work with you in this manner to address these very important concerns.

Initially, given the general scarcity of affordable housing, the Department's policy is to work with owners, residents, and localities to preserve project based Section 8 contracts whenever possible. If the Section 8 Housing Assistance Payment Contract at Essex Village were to be terminated, without first attempting to rectify the physical deficiencies at the property, those 496 units of affordable housing would be lost to Henrico County forever. In addition, many families residing in the property would be displaced. Preserving affordable housing units strengthens neighborhoods and allows families to remain in the communities they call home. This policy of preservation does not override the owner's obligation to provide decent, safe, and sanitary housing according to the terms of the contract. Nor does it override the tenant's right to live in peaceful enjoyment of that housing. The following information is provided by HUD's Office of Multifamily Housing.

Your letters make specific requests of the Department. You also ask that where your request(s) cannot be met, that the Department provide a detailed explanation and "constructive alternative suggestions for ensuring that current residents of Essex Village have access to homes that afford them a decent quality of life." In your letter of May 25, 2017, you requested a call from HUD with your staff and Henrico County officials. Most of your requests resulting from the June 7, 2017, conference call with HUD staff were addressed at that time, and this letter largely reiterates the information provided in that call. HUD has numbered and listed each of your requests below and provided a detailed response.

The following responds to your letter dated, June 13, 2017:

Request 1: Receive a copy of PK Management's report on needed repairs at Essex Village sent to HUD in May 2017.

Response: When Essex Village received a failing REAC inspection score, HUD sent the owner a Notice of Default letter requiring that it perform a 100 percent unit inspection and submit a plan to address all physical deficiencies at the property. HUD reviewed and accepted the owner's plan, which was received on May 25, 2017 (Refer to enclosure #1).

Request 2: Confirmation of the date of HUD's next REAC inspection at Essex Village, which we understand will happen late July/early August.

Response: The date of the next REAC inspection is August 8, 2017.

Request 3: A plan to close Essex Village and provide vouchers to residents as soon as possible.

Response: As discussed on our June 7, 2017, conference call, after the failing REAC inspection from January 2017, the owner was given a Notice of Default and an opportunity to cure the deficiencies. The repairs are expected to be completed by July 31, 2017. In accordance with this process, if the owner fails the second REAC inspection, the Department will take enforcement action, which can include requiring a change in management; encouraging a sale of the property; or abating the Section 8 subsidy. If the determination is made to abate and terminate the subsidy, the residents will receive vouchers.

If the REAC inspection reflects that the owner is maintaining the physical condition of the property to standard, HUD will continue to monitor the conditions at the property and work with Henrico County officials to ensure that ownership continues to meet its obligations. As discussed during our conference call, if Henrico County condemns the units or revokes the rental license, the owner will be considered in violation of the Section 8 contract. This will result in HUD terminating the contract and making vouchers available to the residents.

Request 4: Allow Henrico County officials to join HUD for future inspections of Essex Village.

Response: HUD cannot accept this request because the HUD inspection process and standards of the locality are different than REAC's. Conducting two different inspections at the same time can present confusion for the resident, owner, and the inspectors. As we discussed on our call and provided in our written responses to earlier questions posed by your office, the Department's policy is to allow only property participants (owner, management, resident) to accompany the REAC inspector. HUD's policy minimizes the number of people for a good reason: Too many people on inspections can become distracting to the inspector as well to residents. In addition, the policy also protects the tenants' right to privacy by ensuring that physical inspections are not viewed as an intrusion into tenants' homes. Many tenants take issue if people other than the property's representative are present. This is a long-standing policy in existence since REAC's inception.

HUD will continue to work with the County and the owner on resolution of the outstanding code violations.

Request 5: Terminate or abate HUD's contracts with PK Management at all properties.

Response: At present, Essex Village is the only PK Management affiliated property that is experiencing a default. Therefore, HUD has no grounds to terminate contracts at other affiliated properties. To do so would violate the respective property business agreements and be contrary to our mission of preserving scarce affordable housing resources across the country. As was discussed on the call, the Department monitors all of its 30,000 properties using a variety of sources in addition to the REAC inspection. HUD will provide closer scrutiny to the 171 PK affiliated properties, with particular attention to the Virginia-based assets.

Request 6: Please provide constructive alternative suggestions for addressing Essex Village.

Response: The Department shares your goal of ensuring that all Americans, including residents of Essex Village and all HUD-affiliated housing, have access to safe, decent, affordable housing. As stated above, HUD also has the goal of preserving limited housing stock. Therefore, HUD cannot abate the contract without first attempting to improve the physical condition of this property. Currently, Henrico County administers approximately 250 vouchers. Given the significantly rising rents in nearly every city in the country, there is concern that a significant increase in vouchers may not be easily accommodated by the existing units in the county. HUD is committed to working with you to find the best solution. HUD works with local stakeholders to balance the needs of residents, communities, and the due process protections that are basic to all property participants. HUD will continue to ensure that our owner and management partners adhere to their business agreements and provide decent, safe, and sanitary housing. If they do not, the Department will enforce compliance or will terminate our relationship and provide alternative housing for residents.

In addition to the specific actions HUD is taking with Essex Village as the federal agency charged with ensuring the potentially competing goals of preservation and compliance, the Department developed a series of initiatives to more quickly identify troubled properties; enhance enforcement actions; and improve our communication concerning such properties with residents, communities, and local governments and can share them with you and your staff.

The following responds to your letter dated, June 22, 2017:

Request 7: You referenced general concerns regarding the property, specifically the sewage system.

Response: The owner/management reported a sewer line camera inspection was completed by Dillon Plumbing, a local third party plumbing and sewer company, over the course of two weeks in late May and early June. The final written report was due on June 16, 2017, but was delayed. To expedite the receipt of the report, the videos were forwarded to UIS Engineering, who provided an initial response on Wednesday June 22, 2017. The initial report was a review of 1,000 lineal feet of the lines.

Verbally, Dillon Plumbing conveyed to County inspectors that no material damage was noted in their review of the camera videos. The cause of the backups was primarily due to improper disposal of grease, pampers, baby wipes, etc. Dillon Plumbing also noted that the lines were previously obstructed by bottles and other large objects. Preliminary results of the report from UIS show that over 63 percent of the lines were clear and that the 36 percent of apparent obstruction was grease build up. Management provided a notice detailing items that are not flushable and proper grease disposal instructions in May and this notice will be redistributed and included in the July Newsletter (Refer to enclosure #2). Management has a contract to jet the lines quarterly (Refer to enclosure #3).

The owner/management reported that recent backups (including the one highlighted by the media over the Memorial Day weekend) were due to grease, pampers, and wipes. They have no record of recent incidents of the backup of actual raw sewage. Bill Mohr, Facilities Director for PK

Management, was on site at Essex and personally observed one of the backups in question at the cleanout. He reported that the backup consisted of clear waste water (no feces or urine).

Request 8: You noted residents stated they were told not to contact the County and that PK staff did not respond to requests for assistance. PK Management reports the following:

Response: According to management, residents have not been told not to contact the County and encouraged to contact the leasing office (during the business day) and to use the emergency after hours service (after business hours) to report maintenance issues. In addition, the contact information and grievance protocol for Navigate Housing, the Contract Administrator for Essex, was redistributed to residents and reposted in the leasing office.

Last week, management instituted a customer service email where residents can voice concerns about repair quality, maintenance promptness, or any other management concern. This email is monitored and goes directly to the centralized Customer Service center located at the PK Corporate office.

Management is also aware that recently, some residents voiced that calls to the emergency after hours' line went unanswered. To address this, management added a second "on-call" maintenance technician. Each shift will now include one HVAC technician at all times, and the technicians are authorized to use 3rd party HVAC contractors, as needed, to expedite service.

These customer service enhancements were reiterated via hand delivered tenant notices, as well as, during the resident meetings held the week of June 19, 2017. (Refer to enclosures #4).

The Department encourages residents to contact management first, then the Navigate Housing, then contract administrator, and then HUD staff.

Request 9: You requested a list of all properties in Virginia's 4th Congressional district with failing REAC scores and the names of the owner operators of those housing complexes.

Response: The list of properties is enclosure #5.

I hope this information is helpful.

Sincerely,

Aaron Santa Anna
Acting General Deputy Assistant Secretary
for Congressional and Intergovernmental Relations

RE: Essex Village Apartments – VA36-H027-196
REAC Inspection CDE

Dear Ms. Anastasi:

As a follow up to our original submission dated April 28, 2017, please accept this as our final CDE and improvement plan for Essex Village Apartments.

EHS

All EHS items noted on the REAC inspection were addressed and documented to HUD on January 13, 2017 (see attached report). In addition, from the 100% unit inspection survey, all items of this type have been addressed.

Interior Units

Total Point Loss Units (b)(6)

As previously noted, following the receipt of the final REAC score of 51, a 100% unit inspection was conducted. Attached please find the revised CDE report including completed service requests.

Management utilized several third-party contractors including flooring contractors, plumbers, HVAC contractors, carpenters, and exterminators, to address unit deficiencies.

Unless noted, repair work has been completed. Any open items will be addressed by July 31, 2017. Due to the number of units at Essex, as well as the comprehensive nature of this inspection, management will be revisiting units and ensuring that 3rd party contractor work as well as on-site work has been completed up to UPCS standards. We expect this secondary review to be completed by July 31, 2017.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Exterior

Fencing and Gates – Point Loss – 2.23
All fencing and gates that were damaged were repaired. Some sections are being reviewed for replacement and will be done by July 31, 2017 if needed.

Gutters/Downspouts/Soffits/Fascia – Point Loss – 2.47
All gutters, downspouts, soffits, and fascia noted on the REAC inspection report have been repaired/replaced as needed. The entire property was surveyed and repairs to gutters, downspouts, soffits and fascia were made by our 3rd party contractors on site.

Siding – Point Loss – 3.63
All siding has been repaired and is up to UPCS standards, however, the owner has approved to begin siding replacements over the next 60 days, beginning with the 100 Series. We anticipate that this first series of 5 buildings will be completed by July 31, 2017.

Common Areas – Point Loss – 1.08/Stair Repairs (Breezeways) – Point Loss - .01
Common Areas have been inspected and repairs have been made as needed including in the office, community room, laundry rooms, and breezeways. All breezeways have been power washed and all several stair risers have been repaired and stairs replaced as needed. All common areas will continue to be inspected weekly and repairs will be made as needed.

Grounds (Landscaping) Overgrown Vegetation – Point Loss- 5.57
Landscaping upgrades have been extensive since March 1, 2017. Specifically mulch, shrubs, and other plantings have been added. In addition, tree trimming and bush trimming have been completed to address any areas of overgrown vegetation. Landscaping and the monitoring of vegetation will be ongoing and continuous.

Grounds (Landscaping) Erosion – Point Loss – 7.43
Erosion has been addressed by seeding and straw coverings. This will be ongoing with major areas addressed by July 31, 2017.

Playgrounds – Point Loss – 5.57
All playgrounds have been repaired and swing seats replaced. Playgrounds will be monitored daily and any needed repairs will be addressed immediately.

Paving – Point Loss - 0
No deductions related to paving were made on the REAC report. However, the owner authorized a full seal coating and striping of all lots which will occur on May 31, 2017.

Extermination (Infestation) – Point Loss – 4.20
Service has been transferred to Terminix. All units on the property have been treated during a "cleanout" process. Terminix is now contracted for the ongoing service as well. Cleanouts for both roaches and mice have been completed. Mice exclusion and extraction will continue as needed. Units will be treated a minimum of four times per year – more as needed.
Note – the point loss in Extermination is also reflected in the total unit interior point deduction above.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Other Items

Sewer Backups – No point deductions related to Sewer backups were made on the REAC report. However, this issue was discussed during the meeting held on March 29, 2017. To address this issue, all lines were jetted during the first week of May 2017. This procedure will be continued, as needed, but is planned for a minimum of twice annually. In addition, the owner has agreed to conduct a camera inspection of all lines. The latter is planned for the first week of June.

Balconies – All balconies were inspected on May 25, 2017. Repairs and replacement will be made by third party contractors as needed.

Refuse Disposal – It was determined that the number of refuse pickups was not adequate. Management increased the refuse service from:

- Old Service: 20-8 yd. dumpsters on site
  4-8yds emptied 3x week
  12- 8yds emptied 2x week
  4-8yds emptied 1x week (senior side)

- New Service: 20 - 8yd dumpsters on site
  16-8 cubic yard dumpsters each emptied 3x week and the 4-8yds emptied 1x week (senior side)

Security

Guard Service - Security was discussed during the meeting held with Management and HUD on March 29, 2017. Since that meeting security guard service at Essex is now setup on a 16 hour day schedule utilizing 2 off-duty Henrico Police Officers per shift.

Day Shift will operate from approximately 12:00 pm – 4:00 pm daily.
Evening Shifts will operate from approximately 2:00 pm – 2am daily.
(7 days per week)

Officers will utilize marked police vehicles while on duty for mobile patrols, and also be spending most of their shifts on foot patrol when weather permits.

Essex also has a HPD sub-station "office" where officers can take breaks from the elements and do any report writing. Other On-Duty Police often do foot patrols with the Essex officers on a regular basis. Officers will enforce all local and state laws, including but not limited to: Trespassing, Curfew Violation, Loud Music, Domestic Calls, Firearm Violations, Alcohol/Drug Violations, etc. Reports will be emailed to our distribution group daily for review.

Cameras – Currently, the property has a camera system covering certain areas of heavy traffic. This system will be augmented over the next 90 days, by August 31, 2017 to have additional coverage in all three series (100, 200, and 300), as well as on the senior side.

Customer Service/Nuisance Calls

Management has requested the most recent log of nuisance calls from the County and will follow up with Colonel Middleton on this matter. In the meantime, management has reiterated its grievance procedure to the residents as well as all after-hour's emergency numbers, service request procedures, etc.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Tenant Relations

In an effort to improve tenant relations, management conducted one on one meetings with tenants in April to discuss the House Rules and to address concerns.

A new Property Manager was hired on March 27, 2017 and will ensure follow up meetings are being scheduled to check in with residents, discuss any concerns they have and to solicit constructive criticism and feedback from the residents regarding the recent repairs and the management team in general.

Social Services

Essex currently has one full-time Social Service Coordinator. Management is in the process of hiring another Service Coordinator who will be assigned to augment services specifically for the children who reside at Essex. We look to have this new position in place by July 15, 2017. In the meantime, Essex will continue with a robust services and programming schedule.

If you have any questions regarding this matter, please contact me at (216) 472-1870x115.

RE: Grease and Bathroom Toilet Disposal

To all residents:

This is a REMINDER of proper disposal of oil and grease and what should NOT be flushed down your bathroom toilet.

Don't Forget – Proper Methods for Disposing of Oil & Grease in your Home...

- DO Use an old coffee can or tin can as a grease collector.
- DO Pour greasy or oily food waste into the container, NOT down the drain or garbage disposal.
- DO Freeze or cool animal fats before disposing in the trash.
- DO Mix liquid vegetable fats with an absorbent material such as kitty litter or coffee grounds in a sealable container before disposing in the trash.
- DO NOT Pour oil or grease down the garbage disposal or sink.

Bathroom:

- Always flush your toilet after every use and NEVER place objects in the toilet that cannot dissolve in water, e.g., paper towels, sanitary pads/tampons, baby wipes, wash cloths, diapers or products such as Depends.

PROTECTING THE ENVIRONMENT IS EVERYONE'S ROLE!!

If you have any concerns or have questions on how to dispose of oil and grease or questions on what can be flushed down the toilet, please contact the management office at 804-329-5820.

Thank you,

Essex Village Management

UPDATED MEDIA REPORT, PK Management Properties
Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va., Woodland Crossings Apartments, Richmond, Va. and Hope Village Apartments, Glen Allen, Va.
FROM WHITE HOUSE REPORTING: March 22, 2017 through August 3, 2017
Contact: Lisa Wolfe, Regional Public Affairs Officer, lisa.a.wolfe@hud.gov

SUMMARY: Essex Village Apartment, Henrico County, Va. a PK Management Company Richmond, Virginia Media Outlets
We received our initial Essex Village Apartments inquiry from CBS6 WTVR-TV reporter Melissa Hipolit on Wednesday, December 14, 2016. Melissa asked for the total amount of Housing Assistance Payments sent to Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia in 2016. At that point, the current annual subsidy was $5,376,299. The apartment complex has 496 units under the Section 8 Housing Assistance Program (HAP) contract. Melissa acknowledged she was new to assisted housing, so I explained that families and individuals pay no more than 30 percent of their income towards their monthly rental—and that the HUD voucher makes up the difference. Because this property is project-based assistance, the voucher is tied to the apartment unit, not the individual or family. She requested a copy of the HAP contract and the most recent HUD REAC Inspection scores—which I let her know were both subject to FOIA.

Over the next few weeks, we received a number in inquiries—mainly resident complaints about water issues, leaks, mold, pests—about the deteriorating living conditions at the property. On January 3, 2017, we confirmed a REAC Inspection was scheduled in two weeks. The inspection was conducted on January 17, 2017. Ms. Hipolit was the first to request a 2017 REAC Inspection report which was not available by FOIA for 120 days. A letter dated February 2 from Henrico County Supervisor Frank Thornton was sent to Richmond Field Office Director Carrie Schmidt making her aware of the County's concern for residents stemming from the many code violations and life safety issues at the complex. Director Schmidt alerted Multifamily and the others impacted by the issues raised in the letter.

A March 30 meeting was scheduled at the Richmond Field Office, but before HUD Multifamily and Field Office leadership met, Henrico County officials dialed up the issue in the press. With CBS6's Melissa Hipolit leading in continuing coverage on Essex Village including the failing REAC Inspection score of 46c, she expanded her storyline to include the PK Management properties in the Richmond area including Woodland Crossings, Richmond, Va. (66b) and Hope Village, Glen Allen, Va. (82). NBC12 WWBT-TV Ashley Monfort has also been following with coverage on all three properties, with "dueling coverage" on who can uncover ongoing resident issues, including the fall of a 7-month pregnant resident from a balcony in disrepair. "Bubbling" sewage, along with other water, mold and infestation issues, continue to be reported by residents at all three properties. Both television stations are working in concert with Henrico County officials to bring resident issues "to light" and to be quickly addressed by PK Management, Navigate (the Performance Based Contract Administrator) and HUD.

U.S. Congressman Donald McEachin (VA-4) toured the property on May 12 with NBC's Ashley Monfort in tow and has been continuing to issue press releases and statements calling for HUD to take action. WRIC-TV anchor/reporter Kerri O'Brien has also visited the properties, interviewed residents and is calling for HUD to provide vouchers for residents to relocate. Richmond Times-Dispatch reporter Debbie Truong and Richmond Free Press reporter Jeremy Lazarus have been adding print and online stories into the mix. We continue to receive notifications of resident issues from the various outlets, and are working to provide updates on resolutions as well as the work underway to upgrade the properties and repair the many issues. In July, we worked with Navigate to craft a "1,2,3 step" communication for residents that includes flyers, an upgraded website portal for complaints, and provided this information to the various media outlets requesting their assistance in helping us help the residents.

Key dates/deliverables include: The Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan for Essex Village Apartments that was received from PK Management on May 25 includes 74 pages of issues/repairs to be addressed by PK Management by July 31. A June 7 conference call with Congressman McEachin and Henrico County officials addressed the many questions/issues the Congressman had raised with HUD [please see attached]. On July 14, an attorney representing the owners of the Essex Village apartments appeared in front of a Henrico County General District Court judge for an arraignment on charges related to five of the 18 building code violation charges that have been issued. The July 28 meeting between Henrico County Board Chairman Pat O'Bannon and senior HUD officials was postponed due to the Secretary's schedule. The meeting is in response to Ms. O'Bannon's email to the President, requesting his assistance. HUD has scheduled a REAC Re-Inspection for August 8. We anticipate that Henrico County officials and the media will be on-hand that day.

In the interim, we continue to field multiple media and FOIA requests almost daily, and will continue to respond to these many requests. Residents continue to contact Henrico County officials, CBS6 Problem Solvers or other media portals for customer complaints—noting timely responses for those who bypassed the work order system. During a July 25 Board of Supervisors Meeting, Henrico County officials cited that HUD repeatedly gave the property passing scores, causing misrepresentation of HUD's ongoing work with the owner and property management agent that follows a failing REAC score.

On Friday, July 28, Public Affairs' GDAS Jerry Brown visited the property as a follow-up to his visit a month earlier. He reported a tremendous difference—and that in conversations with residents, they were thrilled with the repairs and the fact that their maintenance calls were receiving a timely response. He noted Essex Village is old (built in 1981) and the property needs the facelift that is now underway. It is clean, kids were playing in the street and externally it looks like it would pass our inspection. Here is what he saw:

- One, out of every four buildings, has some type of repair work underway. Some of it is extensive.
- Gutters are being replaced.
- Siding is being replaced.
- Dry wall work is occurring inside numerous building.
- Crews were still working and it was 5:50 p.m.
- Nearly every balcony had replacement slacks. Those that didn't were completely rebuilt including flooring.
- Storage containers with sheetrock, siding, gutters were prominent throughout the complex.

At least six crews were working throughout the complex. The only portion of the complex that was not being worked on was the rancher-side of the complex—where seniors reside. That portion of the complex looks much better than the other side. It may just be the density of the housing and the cul-de-sac approach. Jerry has photographs that he is willing to share.

As of August 3, two FOIAs with requests for the Compliance Disposition and Enforcement Plan are outstanding pending submitter objections. An additional FOIA with nearly 150 pages of emails will be shipped later today.

MEDIA INQUIRIES

Wednesday, March 22, 2017

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. The apartment complex has 496 units under the Section 8 Housing Assistance Program (HAP) contract. Melissa withdrew her FOIA request for the last two inspection reports because she is aware there is a subsequent REAC inspection/report out underway. She is asking for specifics as to why the property failed the inspection with a score of 46c*. I let her know that because the most recent inspection was completed on January 11, 2017 and the report was given to Essex Village and HUD on January 19 and that REAC reports are not releasable until 120 days to allow time for appeals. The final REAC report will be available beginning May 19, and subject to any FOIA exemptions. As far as the specific issues at the property, I explained that I am unable to provide any additional information until the final REAC report is released. During a second late-day call, Melissa asked if Gregory Perlman of GH Capital was involved in the project. I mentioned that I was unfamiliar with the name, and the only owner/management company I had knowledge of was PK Management. Today I verified that Gregory Perlman is involved with Essex Village Apartments through both Essex VA Investors LLC and PK Management. I verified that he signed the HAP Basic Renewal Contract as the Manager and authorizing representative. HUD Multifamily leadership has been meeting with Mr. Perlman and others to resolve deficiencies at the property. Melissa is also aware of the meeting between Henrico County officials and HUD scheduled for March 30, so we are anticipating that press will be at the Richmond Field Office that day.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit inquired about Gregory Perlman, the owner involved with Essex Village Apartments through both Essex VA Investors LLC and PK Management. He signed the HAP Basic Renewal Contract as the Manager and authorizing representative and is one of the individuals representing PK Management who is currently working with our team to resolve the issues at Essex Village.

Monday, March 27, 2017

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. Melissa has reached out to Colonel Douglas A. Middleton, Henrico County's Deputy County Manager for Public Safety for a pre-meeting interview to discuss the myriad of county inspections that parallel HUD's failing score. Ten County officials will meet with the Richmond Field Office and multifamily teams on March 30. We are anticipating that press will be at the Richmond Field Office that day.

Tuesday, March 28, 2017

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) reporter Debbie Truong inquired about Essex Village in Henrico County after speaking with Doug Middleton, the deputy county manager in Henrico who told her the county has cracked down on the number of code violations at Essex in hopes of bettering the quality of life there. She asked about percentage of Section 8 units at Essex and if HUD is supportive of Henrico's efforts to crackdown on code violations. Doug mentioned that the county would like to strengthen its relationship with HUD and if the agency is willing to do the same. She also identified the county said it found 140 code violations at Essex asking how HUD regulates conditions at the properties it provides funding to and how regularly HUD properties are inspected and/or regulated.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) reporter Melissa Hipolit asked about a proposal for a large rent increase at Essex Village. During an interview with Henrico County officials, it was mentioned that numbers that show substantial rent increases have been proposed. She also requested an on-camera interview which was declined.

Wednesday, March 29, 2017
Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) reporter Debbie Truong requested additional information including a follow-up that Middleton stated that Essex Village received the fifth lowest score in the state from HUD though he was unclear about what the scoring was related to. I explained the REAC Inspection process and how the scores determine frequency of inspection and steps HUD/property manager must take to resolve issues. She also submitted a FOIA requesting a list of the property owners/managers since the property was built in 1982.

Friday, March 31, 2017
Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) reporter Jeremy Lazarus was briefed about how Henrico County officials are working with HUD to address the many issues at Essex Village Apartments. I suggested that he follow-up with County officials for specifics, as they are addressing the code violations and health and safety issues their own inspections have uncovered as well as the police and fire calls originating from residents to County responders. I noted our agency has our own inspection process and we are currently working with the property owners and management to address the issues we have identified. There are no proposed rent increases. Independently, we are working on behalf of residents to improve conditions at the property.

Tuesday, April 4, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has requested under FOIA copies of inspection records regarding Essex Village Apartments located in Henrico County, Va. from 2012 to 2017. She has also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. She initially contacted HUD while a meeting between Henrico County officials and HUD multifamily and field office leaders were meeting last Thursday, March 30 about living conditions and issues at the property. She also requested and we declined an on-camera. We are working with PK Management to address the issues. More to follow.

NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) News desk reported there was a fire at Essex Village around 10 p.m. on Wednesday, April 3. Approximately eight households were displaced. The fire department was dispatched and rescued several residents trapped on their balconies; no reported injuries. The cause of the fire is being investigated by the fire department.

Thursday, April 6, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has requested under FOIA copies of inspection records regarding Essex Village Apartments located in Henrico County, Va. from 2012 to 2017. She has also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. The FOIA has been assigned and the inspection reports have been pulled and are being redacted. Multifamily housing is working on the correspondence aspects of the request. Because there is an inspection process currently underway, any correspondence pulled will need to be carefully reviewed before release. Continuing to work this request.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. Melissa is continuing to ask for an on-camera interview which we have declined (three times). She is also follow-up with a resident document that illustrates a substantial rent increase. Yesterday I responded with the note that for a rent increase, the owner/management would have to submit a formal proposal to HUD for approval. Nothing has been submitted to HUD to date. PK Management is contemplating a substantial renovation of the property (ranging from $9 to 19 million), but the initial proposal was incomplete and a new proposal has not been submitted. Will continue to work the various aspects of this question.

Friday, April 7, 2017
Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus followed-up on last week's second request about issues at Essex Village Apartments in Henrico, Va. Pending approval from multifamily housing leadership, today's response will address a series of questions including a date or time that a project-based Section 8 property must correct problems; the timeframe HUD will give them time to correct and/or bring the property into compliance as well as what is the actual time-period. Notice: H 2015-02-Subject: Required Actions for Multifamily Housing Projects Receiving Failing Scores from HUD's Real Estate Assessment Center (REAC) which defines the various steps both HUD and the property owner/manager must take following a failed physical inspection. The Notice covers the deliverables with deadlines. The process is basically a decision tree in the event the corrections/deficiencies are not made at the various points in time. I did not cover what happens in the event of a Failure to Comply, but that is also included in the notice. More to come.

Friday, April 21, 2017
NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort followed-up with us on a FOIA request she sent over April 4. She requested copies of the REAC property inspection reports from 2012 to 2017 regarding Essex Village located in Henrico County, Va. Inspection scores for 2012 to 2015 have been in the 70s. The most recent inspection in January 2017 resulted in an initial REAC score (46c*). The owners' appeal was granted, bringing the score to 51--still considered a fail. That report will be releasable on May 19, 2017. Corrective actions and timeline has been put in place for the owner/manager. The reporter also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. My guess is she is searching for information about a possible rehabilitation/sale which was initiated by the owner, but never completed. The Richmond Field Office anticipates completing the request early next week. A March 30 online story was updated this week to include a statement by Congressman A. Donald McEachin (VA-04) who issued the following statement about the failing living conditions at Essex Village: "No family deserves to live in conditions such as the one documented at Essex Village. All individuals – no matter their race, socioeconomic status, or sexual orientation – should be treated fairly and have safe and clean shelter. The property managers must address these unhealthy conditions immediately. The families who call this community home, should be able to rest easy in a safe environment after a long day at work and school, not worry about the living conditions."

Thursday, April 27, 2017
NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort received the FOIA request she sent over April 4. We shipped the REAC property inspection reports from 2012 to 2017 regarding Essex Village located in Henrico County, Va. Inspection scores for 2012 to 2015 have been in the 70s. The most recent inspection in January 2017 resulted in an initial REAC score (46c*). The final report will be releasable on May 19, 2017. The reporter also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. Documentation within the correspondence validated that GHC Housing had been trying to sell the property, but Henrico County turned down supporting their request for LIHTC to support an estimated $19 million in renovations. I anticipate more follow-up tomorrow.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. Yesterday she submitted three requests for information on GHC Housing properties including specifics Woodland Crossing in Richmond including the most recent inspection report and amount of subsidy for residents annually. She is also seeking any information on Greg Perlman as well as how to research any Section 8 property owners with a history with HUD. She's looking for investigations, sanctions, etc. She has also requested a list of the inspection ratings, resident complaints and overall subsidy GHC Housing Properties received last year (2016). With more than 18,000 units in 24 states, we are determining if any reports can be run with the inspection/funding information. More to follow on that tomorrow.

Friday, April 28, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit expanded her FOIA requests as she prepares for an interview with Greg Perlman, owner/manager of PK Management (Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va.). Today, we confirmed her request for information for a second PK Management property, Woodland Crossing in Richmond Va. She has requested the most recent inspection report (which earned a barely passing 66B) as well as the current annual funding HUD pays on behalf of residents; believe to be approximately $2,146,000. She has requested a listing of any sanctions or investigations involving PK Management; a HUD-2530 report has been pulled by multifamily and indicates there is no current negative activity. She has requested a total of all monies HUD paid to PK Management and/or GHC Housing last year (2016) to subsidize the rent of residents at their properties. This report has been produced by multifamily, but included expired contracts; awaiting update from multifamily. Annual receipts appear to be in the range of $200 million. She has also requested resident complaints for all of PK Management's Virginia properties. We are working with the PBCA agents to generate the requested reports.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Continuing to work on Reporter Melissa Hipolit' s FOIA requests as she prepares for an interview with Greg Perlman, owner/manager of PK Management (Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va.). She has requested a total of all monies HUD paid to PK Management and/or GHC Housing last year (2016) to subsidize the rent of residents at their properties nationwide as well as Woodland Crossings. Multifamily is generating the report. She has also requested resident complaints for all of PK Management's Virginia properties; Tim Shearer of Navigate, the PBCA, will generate the requested reports. HUD Headquarters is also working on the REAC inspection report scores for PK Management properties nationwide. If all goes well, we should be able to ship the FOIA by the end of the week. Her interview is scheduled for Monday, May 8.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Continuing to work on Reporter Melissa Hipolit' s FOIA requests as she prepares for an interview with Greg Perlman, owner/manager of PK Management (Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va.). Her FOIA request has been classified as "complex" and we continue to pull together files including the subsidies paid to PK Management for Woodland Crossings ($1.4 million) and nationwide ($152 million). We also collected the PBCA's complaint numbers—surprisingly low considering the issues at Essex Village. The input from the requested sources (HQ, Baltimore Multifamily HUB, Richmond Field Office Multifamily) are due next Wednesday. We should be able to release a portion of the FOIA before the end of next week.

Tuesday, May 9, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a partial for her last FOIA request on PK Management, the owner of Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. She is currently working on a story about Woodland Crossing, the other almost failing (66b) PK Management property in Richmond, Va. She is hoping to air the story within the next week or so. We have completed several items in her request and should be able to ship partials today and tomorrow.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit visited Hope Village in Glen Allen, Va., a PK Management property, and alerted us that a resident who contacted her claimed her child has elevated lead levels. The reporter reviewed the lab results which confirm the young boy does have an elevated lead level. The resident is scheduled to have all three of her children tested next week. Henrico County officials as well as the health department have been made aware and are responding to the situation. HUD confirmed the property has both lead certification disclosure and reports up-to-date and on file for the property. A follow-up call with the reporter led to further discussions that multiple resident appeals from both Hope Village and Woodland Crossing in Richmond, Va. have gone unanswered. All three are older and deteriorating. We are working with multifamily and the PBCA Navigate to learn more and initiate follow-up actions.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a partial for her last FOIA request on PK Management, the owner of Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. The redacted REAC inspection report and annual Section 8 funding amount have been submitted to OGC for clearance; hope to ship today or Monday.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit received a follow-up to her request for a listing of the most recent REAC inspection scores for the 164 properties nationwide managed by PK Management. There are five properties that have had recent inspections that are not releasable. Most REAC Inspections are in the 80-99-point range—146 of the 164.

Friday, May 12, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort toured Essex Village Apartments with U.S. Congressman Donald McEachin and called and asked for comment about the Congressman's comment that he is going to try to convince HUD to provide vouchers.

Tuesday, May 16, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested the amount of money HUD provides GHC Housing/PK Management to subsidize the rent of residents at Hope Village annually. She also requested an update on her other open FOIA requests.
Wednesday, May 17, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit received an interim response to her FOIA request which included the HUD subsidy information and the 2016 REAC Inspection on Woodland Crossings Apartments in Richmond, Va. The score was a barely passing 66c.

A follow-up call with the reporter led to further discussions that multiple resident appeals from both Hope Village and Woodland Crossing in Richmond, Va. have gone unanswered. All three are older and deteriorating. We have learned the number of resident complaints from all four of the PK Management properties is surprising low, given the issues of late. Following up with the reporter today.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on the inspection process for HUD REAC Inspections—she was particularly interested in the inspectors are third party contractors or HUD employees. The 2017 REAC Inspection at Essex Village Apartments was performed by HUD Quality Assurance Inspectors.

Monday, May 22, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a partial for her last FOIA request on PK Management, the owner of Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. She is currently working on a story about Woodland Crossing, the other almost failing (66b) PK Management property in Richmond, Va. The redacted REAC inspection report and annual Section 8 funding amount reports were shipped last Tuesday. On Friday May 19, Melissa interviewed PK Management's Jenne McClain-Blankhead. The story has not yet aired. Jenne will submit a summary of the interview to multifamily by COB on Monday, May 22.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit and NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort previously inquired about the January 11, 2017 REAC Inspection report for Essex Village Apartments that is now available for release. I anticipate FOIAs from both television stations as well as the Richmond Times-Dispatch in the next day or so.

Wednesday, May 24, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit submitted a FOIA request on the annual subsidy amount paid to PK Management for Hope Village in Glen Allen, Va. The FOIA was completed and shipped today. This is a follow-up to her visit to that property on May 9. The resident's apartment, which she alerted us had evidence of mold and a child with an elevated blood lead level, has been tested and certified there is no lead in the residence. The report has been given to County officials. No further action on this matter anticipated. During the May 23 meeting with Henrico County officials and Congressman McEachin, both the County and Congressman requested that HUD investigate issues at the property.

Friday, May 26, 2017
Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus followed-up on his April 10 request about issues at Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. He inquired about the status of the pregnant woman who fell from a second-floor balcony and was injured. U.S. Rep. Donald McEachin is now calling on the Secretary of HUD to explain what HUD is doing to force the landlord to make improvements. Jeremy is asking what HUD is doing, aside from flunking the complex as well as if the agency is planning more inspections and imposing requirements for fixes. Working with multifamily housing and legal on a response to the steps underway to bring the complex into compliance. Also, received a Congressional request as a follow-up to the May 23 call on our discussion on vouchers during the conference call about Essex Village, the Congressman's staff is hoping to get more information about how residents can vacate their contracts.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit contacted us after residents of Essex Village reached out to WTVR CBS 6 News about a sewage issue Sunday afternoon. They said the problems started around 1 p.m. when a woman's toilet overflowed and solid waste continued to flood into her apartment. Outside the unit, sewage also started bubbling up from a drain in a sidewalk because of a blockage. Essex Village's sewage system is privately owned and not maintained by the county, but Henrico utility crews responded, removed the blockage and made sure the line was clear. PK Management investigated and learned it was the fault of the resident. No additional action needed.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out to find out any updates to the PK Management/Essex Village story. She noted Congressman McEachin's letter to Dr. Carson last week expressing concerns about the pregnant woman that fell, as well as the weekend the sewage eruption. Crafted a response to the status of the resident who fell as well as the work underway by HUD, PK Management, Henrico County and others to address the many issues at the property. Multifamily, OPA, OGC and FPM reviewed and approved the response. In response, received a query about the balconies—and a resident rumor that the balconies were going to be removed. Confirmed with PK Management they have contracted for the inspection and repair of the balconies throughout the property.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit continued her investigation/reporting of PK Management properties with a report on Woodland Crossing in Richmond. Her investigation uncovered that PK Management has been cited by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for several health and safety infractions at the complex. The story included evidence of roach infestation, front doors that will not lock, mold and other safety and health hazards.

8NEWS, WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Investigative Reporter Kerri O'Brien contacted me multiple times yesterday for a story regarding complaints about PK Management that included federal lawsuits, involving overcharging and HUD violations in 2009 out of North Carolina. Additional research uncovered two HUD OIG audits. In addition to shipping information on assisted housing, REAC Inspections and specific PK Management REAC Inspection reports, the reporter focused on the question—why is HUD entrusting its resident housing to an unscrupulous company? PK Management has three properties in Henrico County, Va.—all in disrepair.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus submitted three (3) requests over the past few days including an update on the status of the resident who fell from the balcony as well as the work underway to remedy the deficiencies at Essex Village. He noted that the inspections in previous years appeared to overlook the deterioration—not the case—the property has always been scored in the 70s. He requested an update on the letters Congressman McEachin issued to Secretary Carson. He also inquired about the HUD inspection process and the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan. All questions were addressed, status report shipped and closed.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort received the January 11, 2017 REAC Inspection report for Essex Village Apartments that is now available for release. She requested an update on the resident who fell from the balcony and the work underway at Essex (status report shipped). She also requested a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan. As far as the plan, it was just submitted on Friday and is in review, so no copy is available right now. I am trying to get a timetable (line a REAC inspection report) as well as what elements of the plan are releasable by FOIA (and when).

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong contacted me about a story she is writing about Henrico County issuing a violation notice for a balcony at Essex Village that a pregnant woman apparently fell through. She asked if HUD is aware of the issue, and asked for comment. Waiting for legal to advise since there is concern about resident litigation/disclosure. Crafted a response to the status of the resident who fell as well as the work underway by HUD, PK Management, Henrico County and others to address the many issues at the property. Truong directly quoted from the response.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is at Hope Village, the third PK Management property in Henrico County, Va. More than 25 residents are preparing a petition identifying the ongoing issues at that complex including mold, water damage, nonworking smoke detectors/lights as well as other issues. One resident, Christin Hardy, contacted Henrico County official Colonel Doug Middleton who referred the resident to FOD Carrie Schmidt. Yesterday the resident met with PK Management, identified the issues with her apartment and is scheduled for repairs next week. During a call this afternoon, the resident asked me about obtaining a housing choice voucher—an obvious plant. Melissa is also pushing for a follow-up story on Woodland Crossing next week.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her coverage of PK Management properties in Virginia. Today, the request was for data sets for tracking safety/security/crime issues in multifamily and public housing. She was specifically looking for public housing because of the criminal activity in Richmond's housing projects here recently. She requested an update on the FOIA that includes the list of complaints fielded by HUD/Navigate related to PK Management properties in Virginia. And, also made us aware the 25 residents signing a petition in Hope Village had decided not to follow through since their issues are being taken care of by PK Management this week.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort inquired about additional information on the 2017 Essex Village REAC Inspection report. The property profile says 26 residential units were sampled. Are different units inspected each year? The inspection reports show that inoperable smoke detectors, infestations and inoperable water heaters were issues for years. Were there follow ups to makes sure these issues were fixed? And even if there was, it seems the issues persisted and became worse. I've been told Essex Village was given a passing score until 2017 after the county started issuing violations as well. Will work to clarify the many myths in her request.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus requested the insight on the Essex Village subsidy. Per the Congressman's request for how much HUD subsidized rents last year, the actual Housing Assistance Payment (HAP) contract amount for Essex was $ 4,226,300. The contract runs from October 1 – September 31, so the figure reflects the contracted amount from October 1, 2015 to September 31, 2016. Monthly vouchers can fluctuate depending on tenant adjustments, vacancy claims etc. so the figure reported on December 23, 2016 (per the CBS6 FOIA request) had not accounted for the adjustments and was based on calendar year. At that point, the reported subsidy was $5,376,299. There was no additional capital--no right/wrong--simply a different period of reporting. Working on a second follow-up about the progress of work underway at Woodland Crossing.

Wednesday, June 7, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out to find out any updates to the PK Management/Essex Village story. She is looking for information from her original FOIA request due June 5. Today, we will be shipping the table of resident complaints from PK Management properties in

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Virginia submitted to Navigate, the PBCA and the total subsidy funding from PK Management properties nationwide. We are in the process of clarifying her final request for any sanctions and/or investigations involving PK Management and HUD. Checking in with multifamily housing.

8NEWS, WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Investigative Reporter Kerri O'Brien submitted four (4) FOIA requests looking for PK Management property REAC Inspection scores from Jan. 2016 through June 2017 (164 properties nationwide, HUD OIG audit reports, all electronic payment vouchers for Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. from 2013 to 2017 and a copy of the CDE Plan submitted to HUD on Friday, May 16. HQ is working through the requests.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus is looking for an update on the work underway at Woodland Crossings in Richmond, Va. Awaiting multifamily housing's response.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted several follow-up questions based on her review of the Essex Village REAC Inspection Report for January 2017. She's trying to understand the sample size, why multiple reports cite inoperable smoke detectors, infestations and inoperable water heaters were issues for years, how is HUD holding the owner accountable and did HUD respond only after Henrico County reported code violations. All issues circle back to the deterioration of the property and the failing REAC Inspection score.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong is looking for information on how many audits/copies of audits HUD conducted with PK Management. If PK Management needs to notify HUD of any lawsuits filed against the company and if so, how many lawsuits have been filed against the company, where and by whom. She is also requesting HUD's assessment of how PK Management manages the federally subsidized housing it runs and owns as well as a list of the property owners and managers who have overseen Essex Village since it opened. She is writing a story for the weekend edition and is on deadline.

Wednesday, June 7, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out for comment on the Congressman McEachin releasing a statement that he's asking HUD to cease all business with PK Management. No response—after hours.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort requested a response in regards to Congressman McEachin's most recent statement: McEachin requests HUD to address conditions at Essex Village; other PK Management properties:

Thursday, June 8, 2017
NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted a FOIA request for the 2015 and 2016 REAC Inspection reports for Essex Village, Henrico County, Va. She misunderstood that we declined the availability of correspondence in a previous request, not the reports.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong is following up on her request for information on how many audits/copies of audits HUD conducted with PK Management. If PK Management needs to notify HUD of any lawsuits filed against the company and if so, how many lawsuits have been filed against the company, where and by whom. She is also requesting HUD's assessment of how PK Management manages the federally subsidized housing it runs and owns as well as a list of the property owners and managers who have overseen Essex Village since it opened. She is writing a story for the weekend edition and is on deadline. Multifamily provided guidance on each element; response shipped this afternoon.

Friday, June 9, 2017
NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted a FOIA request for the 2015 and 2016 REAC Inspection reports for Essex Village, Henrico County, Va. The reports had been previously sent under an earlier request. Confirmed receipt.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong submitted a FOIA request for the 2017 REAC Inspection report and appeal report for Essex Village, Henrico County, Va. Both reports were shipped this afternoon.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus requested information on the conference call on June 7 with Congressman McEachin and Henrico County Officials. In subsequent press releases and news articles, the Congressman appeared skeptical that progress is being made as HUD has stated it is and that the plan of action PK provided will be implemented. He asked if HUD provided any response to congressman's request. He also inquired if there is a reason that the Congressman believes PK is not getting the improvements done and that HUD is allowing complex to slide while keeping tenants in unfit apartments. He also asked if HUD is exploring the voucher option. Waiting for the Multifamily/CIR response that is in review; will craft follow-up following release of that information.

WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Anchor/Reporter Kerri O'Brien submitted four FOIA requests for information submitted through the public access link on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. and PK Management. These are in addition to the multiple media inquiries from Kerri that I have been addressing. Kerri has requested copies of all electronic payments made to Essex Village from HUD for a period of two-years; a copy of the CDE Plan that was submitted to HUD on May 25; copies of all REAC Inspection Reports for all of PK Management's 164 properties and any HUD OIG audits and/or investigations of any PK Management properties. The Richmond Field Office is working with HQ to pull the requested files and determine who will provide the final information to the reporter.

WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Kerri O'Brien contacted us about a shooting that occurred in Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. on Sunday, June 10. The victim who was shot in the arm, had been previously banned from the property for shooting dice and is a friend of a resident who has been notified of eviction proceedings. We contacted PK Management and requested information relative to on-site security and camera footage. There is an unmarked auxiliary police unit stationed in an apartment on the property. Followed-up with the reporter with that information as well as the fact the security camera footage had been turned over to police officials.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a comment on Congressman McEachin's announcement that he wanted HUD to cease business with PK Management. She also requested a follow-up on her multi-pronged FOIA on Essex Village Apartments and Woodland Crossings Apartments in Richmond, Va. Of the five item requests, the two on Woodland Crossings have been shipped; awaiting concurrence on the final three items pertaining to Essex Village.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit sent a video about an Essex Village resident complaint about bedbugs and roaches emailed to WTVR Problem Solvers. I forwarded the complaint to multifamily who in turn notified PK Management and Navigate. Both followed-up with the tenant, who had not submitted a work order for the complaint, and was advised PK would have an exterminator follow-up immediately. The issue has been followed-up and resolved.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on the outcome of an investigation by HUD's inspector general back in 1982 into allegations that HUD illegally bypassed procedures to approve the construction of Essex Village. The reporter stated there were allegations of a $2 million cost overrun. The inquiry was transferred to Darryl Madden, HUD OIG Public Affairs, to handle. We were also made aware that HUD OIG is considering opening an investigation at Essex Village.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit shipped an Essex Village resident complaint posted on the station's Facebook live. The woman appeared to have water leaking all over her apartment from a defective water tank or water heater. I forwarded the complaint to multifamily who in turn notified PK Management and Navigate. The following morning, it was reported the leak, from a malfunctioning air conditioning unit, had been repaired overnight. The issue had been followed-up and resolved.

Tuesday, June 13, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit sent an email about an Essex Village resident complaint about bedbugs emailed to WTVR Problem Solvers. I forwarded the complaint to multifamily who in turn notified PK Management and Navigate. Both followed-up with the tenant, who had not submitted a work order for the complaint, and was advised PK would have an exterminator follow-up immediately. The issue has been followed-up and resolved.

WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Anchor/Reporter Kerri O'Brien received her FOIA requesting copies of all electronic payments made to Essex Village Apartments from HUD for a period of two-years.

Thursday, June 15, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit received a follow-up to her FOIA request for information that included full amount of housing subsidy paid to PK Management during FY2016 ($152 million) as well as the complaints collected on PK Management properties in Virginia. I spoke with Melissa to further clarification the remaining requested item pertaining to "sanctions" and "investigations."

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out late-day to inquire why NBC12 had the 2017 REAC Inspection report for Essex Village Apartments that she had requested, but had not received. After a series of emails, I determined the FOIA had been shipped on June 1 that included the 2015 and 2017 inspection reports. We determined her station's filters were not accepting the files after I successfully shipped them to her private email account. Her evening report included the "more than $150 million" subsidy report.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted a FOIA request about how much money PK Management received from HUD for Essex Village and Woodland Crossings in the past fiscal year. The FOIA is being handled by the Richmond Field Office and will be shipped on Friday.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Friday, June 16, 2017
NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort inquired about the date of HUD's follow-up REAC inspection in July. No date has been set. She is also seeking an on camera with a HUD official, which I politely declined.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus requested information on the conference call on June 7 with Congressman McEachin and Henrico County Officials. In subsequent press releases and news articles, the Congressman appeared skeptical that progress is being made as HUD has stated it is and that the plan of action PK provided will be implemented. He asked if HUD provided any response to congressman's request. He also inquired if there is a reason that the Congressman believes PK is not getting the improvements done and that HUD is allowing complex to slide while keeping tenants in unfit apartments. He also asked if HUD is exploring the voucher option. Waiting for the Multifamily/CIR response that is in review; crafted a follow-up for media. Awaiting approval from both to ship.

Richmond Times Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong is doing a story on Essex Village for the weekend edition and had a few questions to be addressed. She stated that Henrico County manager John Vithoulkas criticized HUD for the way it conducts inspections and suggested that inspecting only sampling of buildings is not adequate. He said that he feels HUD erroneously gave Essex passing REAC inspection scores when the property should not have received them. She requested HUD's response which we did not respond to. We addressed her other questions including the REAC re-inspection has not been scheduled. The other two "troubled" properties are Woodland Crossings in Richmond, Va. and Hope Village in Glen Allen, Va. And, HUD's records reflect GHC Properties as the owner, PK Management as the management company.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested assistance for an Essex Village resident who cited issues with her apartment since she moved into the complex March 23, 2016. She complained of leaks and mold. Forwarded the inquiry to Multifamily and Navigate. She requested a response ASAP.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed with a second inquiry regarding the ongoing calls and emails from residents at Essex Village who are continuing to have issues that have gone unresolved. I requested that Melissa assist us with "getting the word out" about the process we have in place to deal with the issues—particularly since the work to remedy the deficiencies in the CDE report is underway. I crafted a response and forwarded it to Melissa and Colonel Middleton and requested their assistance.

Monday, June 19, 2017
Richmond Times Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong forwarded a Richmond Times-Dispatch article from 1982 stating that an investigation was started over a possible cost overrun as Essex was being constructed. The article doesn't show up online, but she attached a copy. She was requesting a resolution to the inquiry—which I forwarded to HUD OIG to respond.

Tuesday, June 20, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reviewed the 2015 and 2017 Essex Village HUD inspection reports and inquired about several PK Management employees trying to validate if either one was the senior VP that was allegedly "terminated" by PK Management for poor performance related to the properties in the Richmond area. I directed the reporter to PK Management because of the nature of the personnel issue.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit was confused by the notation of unsuccessful versus successful on the REAC Inspection reports and did not understand that a score of 59 or below constitutes a failing score. I confirmed that Essex Village Apartments failed the REAC Inspection with a 46c/51c and verified the notation on the REAC Inspection report means that the inspection was successfully completed and the inspection file was successfully uploaded to our PASS IT system. The word "successful" has nothing to do with the condition of the property.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit submitted a FOIA for Essex Village and PK Management's Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted on May 26, the appeal for the January 2017 REAC Inspection, the Notice of Default from HUD to PK Management and the Project Owner's Certification form. She also asked if the repair plan has been approved by HUD.

Friday, June 23, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has submitted a FOIA requested the amount of annual subsidy paid to PK Management last year to support the assisted housing in Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. and Woodland Crossings, Richmond, Va. We have pulled the actual amounts, but are also determining the HAP Contract amount for FY2016 for each property. We will most likely release the FOIA on Monday after hearing back from multifamily housing.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed up on her FOIA request for Essex Village and PK Management's Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted on May 26, the appeal for the January 2017 REAC Inspection, the Notice of Default from HUD to PK Management and the Project Owner's Certification form. She also asked if the repair plan has been approved by HUD. Awaiting available documents and a response about plan acceptance from multifamily housing.

NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has submitted a FOIA requested the amount of annual subsidy paid to PK Management last year to support the assisted housing in Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. and Woodland Crossings, Richmond, Va. We have pulled the actual amounts, but are also determining the HAP Contract amount for FY2016 for each property. Waiting on a response/clarification from multifamily housing.

WRIC-TV 8News Where You Live (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Investigative Reporter Kerri O'Brien has requested a response/copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted by PK Management for Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. She also inquired if the REAC re-inspection been scheduled. She informed us there is a meeting tonight with Henrico Board of Supervisors on Essex Village.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit inquired about the FOIA she submitted related to Essex Village Apartments and PK Management. She has requested a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted May 26 (accepted and currently being redacted), the Notice of Default, the Project Owner's Certification Survey and Certification form. We are currently waiting for a response from multifamily housing.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit has yet to clarify what she means by requesting a listing of any sanctions or investigations involving PK Management from an earlier FOIA request. She has until July 5 to respond to our request.

Wednesday, June 28, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Online Reporter Megan Woo in her report on the Henrico County Board of Supervisors meeting reported that poor living conditions in Essex Village Apartments was the focus of the meeting. Officials say their goal is to get up to speed on what's being done to fix the problems and to determine the next steps. Officials also say they will continue to work with the chief building inspector, and HUD officials to follow up on notices and violations—but incorrectly reported that "despite the fact that HUD continues to give the facility passing grades." The story noted Congressman Donald McEachin has also sent two letters to HUD Secretary Ben Carson about the problems. A correction was filed on the property's failing REAC Inspection score of 51c*.

WRIC-TV 8News Where You Live (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Reporter Kerri O'Brien alerted us to the fact that Henrico County filed nine (9) criminal summons against the owners of Essex Village and Greg Perlman. They range from failing to maintain balconies to air condition problems to failing to fix plumbing. PK Management stated the violations were received after 5 p.m. last evening. Essex staff is already addressing them and Management is verifying the issues were not previously addressed. Also, a violation, if corrected prior to court date carries no fine, only if not addressed. Carolyn Anastasi will follow-up tomorrow morning.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit contacted us about a resident reporting w/video that there is another sewage overflow in Essex. PK Management made us aware of the issue prior to receiving the reporter's note and alerted us that the plumbing company had been called and was on-site along with Henrico County officials and the fire department. Melissa also sent two additional resident complaints our way—one with an overflowing air conditioner and one with long-term carpet damage. I forwarded the information to Multifamily and Navigate.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is interviewing National Alliance of Housing Tenants Michael Kane about HUD's REAC Inspection process. Delton Nichols and Robert Iber provided insight about the process that was edited and shipped to the reporter. Melissa requested an interview with Deputy Assistant Secretary DJ Lavoy. We will again politely decline.
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort received her FOIA requesting the amount of annual subsidy paid to PK Management last year to support the assisted housing in Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. and Woodland Crossings, Richmond, Va. The decision was to pull actual payments, not HAP Contract amount.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong submitted a FOIA for the amount of federal funding Essex Village receive last year and what the money was intended for. She asked if HUD require owners of properties that receive federal funding to report how they use their money as well as a copy of reports or any documentation GHC Housing Partners, PK Management and/or Essex VA Investors LLC. submitted related to how they used the federal money they received. She also requested a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan for the property.

Thursday, June 29, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Investigative Reporter Melissa Hipolit received an interim response her FOIA (June 20) that included the Notice of Default sent by HUD to the Owner of Essex Village on February 24, 2017. The other requested documents have been submitted to HUD by either the ownership or the management entity for Essex Village, and may contain commercial or financial information that is arguably protected from disclosure under Exemption 4 of the Act (42 U.S.C. 552(b)(4)) and require submitter notification--which has been made.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Friday, June 30, 2017
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit contacted us about a resident reporting w/video that there is another sewage overflow in Essex. PK Management made us aware of the issue prior to receiving the reporter's note and alerted us that the plumbing company had been called and was on-site along with Henrico County officials and the fire department. The additional questions about the issues with the sewer system have been partially addressed with the remainder forwarded to PK Management.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed-up her Wednesday afternoon inquiry that included how PK Management is being held accountable in any way for not properly taking care of Essex Village. Cited Code of Federal Regulations and guidelines HUD must follow when a multifamily owner fails in the requirement to provide decent, safe, sanitary housing in good repair. The Notice of Default of the Housing Assistance Provider Contract has been issued and the subsequent steps are underway. That If the property fails to pass the REAC Re-Inspection, actions may include considering imposition of civil money penalties (CMPs), abatement of the Section 8 or other rental assistance subsidy, in whole or in part, and possible assignment of an FHA loan and/or foreclosure. She also inquired if HUD is investigating what happened to the money they gave PK Management to maintain Essex Village.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit asked why HUD continues to decline requests for an interview. Jerry Brown agreed to follow-up with the reporter.

Monday, July 10
Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong received a partial delivery on her FOIA request for federal funding Essex Village received last year and what the money was intended for. She asked if HUD require owners of properties that receive federal funding to report how they use their money as well as a copy of reports or any documentation GHC Housing Partners, PK Management and/or Essex VA Investors LLC. submitted related to how they used the federal money they received. This documentation has been shipped. She also requested a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan for the property which is still under submitter notification.

Tuesday, July 11
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed-up on her FOIA for relating to Essex Village and PK Management. She is looking for the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted May 26 (still in submitter notification and unavailable for release) as well as the appeal to the January 2017 REAC inspection, the Notice of Default and the "Project Owner's Certification" Survey and Certification form that the project is compliant with HUD's physical condition standards and state and local codes (this was to be submitted within 60 days of receipt of NOD). A partial is available for release. Melissa requested a verification of the dates of the submitter notification.

Tuesday, July 11
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed-up on her FOIA for relating to Essex Village and PK Management. She is looking for the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted May 26 (still in submitter notification and unavailable for release). I confirmed the period of the submitter notification. I also confirmed the remainder of her requests were shipped to her on June 29 that included the appeal to the January 2017 REAC inspection, the Notice of Default and the "Project Owner's Certification" Survey and Certification form that the project is compliant with HUD's physical condition standards and state and local codes. She has had issues receiving large files before and may not have received the reports/submittals.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on HUD's REAC Inspections including if the inspectors talk to the tenants as well as how much weight are mold/mildew/toxic air issues and bed bugs are given in the inspections. Also, whether inspectors test for mold or if it is just a visual test. The response included the fact that these issues are exigent health and safety issues calling for immediate reaction. I also included extensive information on our bed bug guidance and policies. Melissa followed-up on Wednesday with additional questions concerning inspections.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit made us aware that a meeting had been held between PK Management and the residents of Essex Village Apartments last week and that PK Management said they were looking to sell property to Ernst and Hoss in 60-90 days. She asked if HUD was aware of the meeting and/or sale of the property. We confirmed there was a meeting, but that a sale was not discussed.

Wednesday, July 12
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a new FOIA request related to Essex Village and PK Management. She has requested digital copies of all emails written to and from DJ Lavoy, Lisa Wolfe, Greg Perlman, Jenee McClain-Blankhead, and Carrie Schmidt between the following dates: January 19 and February 2, April 19 and May 3, and May 25 and June 8, 2017. Richmond Field Office will be handling that request.

Thursday, July 13
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a FOIA request related to Essex Village and PK Management. She has requested digital copies of all emails written to and from DJ Lavoy, Lisa Wolfe, Greg Perlman, Jenee MCClain-Bankhead, and Carrie Schmidt between the following dates: January 19 and February 2, April 19 and May 3, and May 25 and June 8, 2017. We have been back and forth clarifying exactly what the reporter is looking for; she has requested any emails in the time periods noted that include information about Essex Village, PK Management, GHC Housing, Melissa Hipolit and WTVR. We are beginning to pull emails in response.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on any mold testing conducted at Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. Her request has been forwarded to PK Management for response.

Friday, July 14
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested the last four REAC Inspection scores for the Burton Apartments in Cincinnati, Ohio. The scores include: 04.03.17, 73b*; 07.08.16, 33c*; 08.22.12, 90c and 05.07.08, 84b. Burton Apartments is part of a 727-unit portfolio in Cincinnati owned by affiliates of PE Holdings, the principal of which is Chaim Puretz. The portfolio, which includes Burton Apartments, was placed in a Receivership in a joint action brought by the private lender and the City of Cincinnati on February 1, 2016. Burton Apartments experienced a fire and a collapsed roof due to flooding conditions during the period that PE was in control of the asset. The Receiver, Jodi M. Ridings

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

and her agent, Milhaus Management, have had operational control of the properties since February 1, 2016 and have performed roof repairs and brought fire damaged units back on line. The Receiver also performed other stabilization repairs at the property. This could be an explanation for the change in score (from a failing 33c* to 73b*) as the Receiver did not commence substantial stabilization work at Burton until after July of 2016, but did substantial work after that date.

Friday, July 14
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit and Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong have both submitted requests for the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan for Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. As expected, the attorney for GHC Housing and PK Management has sent an objection to the release of the media requested materials which include this document. We anticipate a ruling about next steps on July 18.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Brendan King filed the story Essex Village in court over 18 criminal charges and called asking for comment, which we declined.

NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort filed the story Essex Village owners dodge questions outside courthouse and left a message, also asking for a call-back if able to comment.

Saturday, July 15
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested assistance with an Essex Village resident complaint about (b)(6) Her mother, (b)(6), contacted the reporter about rodent and bed bug infestations and a request for a transfer. PK Management immediately followed-up and (b)(6) apartment is scheduled for extermination.

Monday, July 17
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested assistance with an Essex Village resident complaint for (b)(6). The new mother with two additional young children has been staying with her sister for the last seven months because of an ongoing rodent infestation. PK Management immediately followed-up and (b)(6) apartment is scheduled for extermination.

Wednesday, July 19
Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong followed-up on her FOIA requesting a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan for Essex Village in Henrico County, Va. PK Management objected to the release of the document, so the Plan will be unavailable until August 1.

Friday, July 28
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a FOIA request related to Essex Village and PK Management. She has requested digital copies of all emails written to and from DJ Lavoy, Lisa Wolfe, Greg Perlman, Jenee MCClain-Bankhead, and Carrie Schmidt between the following dates: January 19 and February 2, April 19 and May 3, and May 25 and June 8, 2017. She has requested any emails in the time periods noted that include information about Essex Village, PK Management, GHC Housing, Melissa Hipolit and WTVR. Completed pulling and culling the records; forwarded to Anne Davis, Richmond Field Office FOIA Lead.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Thursday, August 3

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a FOIA request related to Essex Village and PK Management. She has requested digital copies of all emails written to and from DJ Lavoy, Lisa Wolfe, Greg Perlman, Jenee MCClain-Bankhead, and Carrie Schmidt between the following dates: January 19 and February 2, April 19 and May 3, and May 25 and June 8, 2017. She has requested any emails in the time periods noted that include information about Essex Village, PK Management, GHC Housing, Melissa Hipolit and WTVR. Completed the review of and concurred on the final two documents and letter and submitted to Anne Davis, Richmond Field Office FOIA Lead. We anticipate the final FOIA to be shipped late this afternoon or tomorrow.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a FOIA request for the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan for Essex Village Apartments that was received from PK Management. When she inquired about the delivery of that plan, we reshipped a description of the submitter notification process, and that it is a requirement under FOIA. Again, we explained the FOIA is on hold because there were some objections to release of documents raised by the submitter. PK Management has been given until tomorrow COB to present those objections in a way that will give us reason to withhold the documents. We will follow-up with PK Management tomorrow, and in turn, the reporter.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT
WASHINGTON, DC 20410-1000

OFFICE OF CONGRESSIONAL AND
INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS

The Honorable A. Donald McEachin
Member, United States
House of Representatives
110 N. Robinson Street, Suite 401
Richmond, VA 23220-4457

Dear Representative McEachin:

On behalf of Secretary Benjamin S. Carson, Sr., thank you for your interest in Essex Village and your continued concern for its residents. The Department is keenly interested in resolving the issues at the property and shares your desire to achieve the best outcome for the residents of the Essex Village community. Specifically, you made a series of inquiries regarding the village. The HUD team has already responded to a series of email inquiries and had numerous conversations with your staff regarding Essex Village. The Department is pleased to work with you in this manner to address these very important concerns.

Initially, given the general scarcity of affordable housing, the Department's policy is to work with owners, residents, and localities to preserve project based Section 8 contracts whenever possible. If the Section 8 Housing Assistance Payment Contract at Essex Village were to be terminated, without first attempting to rectify the physical deficiencies at the property, those 496 units of affordable housing would be lost to Henrico County forever. In addition, many families residing in the property would be displaced. Preserving affordable housing units strengthens neighborhoods and allows families to remain in the communities they call home. This policy of preservation does not override the owner's obligation to provide decent, safe, and sanitary housing according to the terms of the contract. Nor does it override the tenant's right to live in peaceful enjoyment of that housing. The following information is provided by HUD's Office of Multifamily Housing.

Your letters make specific requests of the Department. You also ask that where your request(s) cannot be met, that the Department provide a detailed explanation and "constructive alternative suggestions for ensuring that current residents of Essex Village have access to homes that afford them a decent quality of life." In your letter of May 25, 2017, you requested a call from HUD with your staff and Henrico County officials. Most of your requests resulting from the June 7, 2017, conference call with HUD staff were addressed at that time, and this letter largely reiterates the information provided in that call. HUD has numbered and listed each of your requests below and provided a detailed response.

The following responds to your letter dated, June 13, 2017:

Request 1: Receive a copy of PK Management's report on needed repairs at Essex Village sent to HUD in May 2017.

Response: When Essex Village received a failing REAC inspection score, HUD sent the owner a Notice of Default letter requiring that it perform a 100 percent unit inspection and submit a plan to address all physical deficiencies at the property. HUD reviewed and accepted the owner's plan, which was received on May 25, 2017 (Refer to enclosure #1).

Request 2: Confirmation of the date of HUD's next REAC inspection at Essex Village, which we understand will happen late July/early August.

Response: The date of the next REAC inspection is August 8, 2017.

Request 3: A plan to close Essex Village and provide vouchers to residents as soon as possible.

Response: As discussed on our June 7, 2017, conference call, after the failing REAC inspection from January 2017, the owner was given a Notice of Default and an opportunity to cure the deficiencies. The repairs are expected to be completed by July 31, 2017. In accordance with this process, if the owner fails the second REAC inspection, the Department will take enforcement action, which can include requiring a change in management; encouraging a sale of the property; or abating the Section 8 subsidy. If the determination is made to abate and terminate the subsidy, the residents will receive vouchers.

If the REAC inspection reflects that the owner is maintaining the physical condition of the property to standard, HUD will continue to monitor the conditions at the property and work with Henrico County officials to ensure that ownership continues to meet its obligations. As discussed during our conference call, if Henrico County condemns the units or revokes the rental license, the owner will be considered in violation of the Section 8 contract. This will result in HUD terminating the contract and making vouchers available to the residents.

Request 4: Allow Henrico County officials to join HUD for future inspections of Essex Village.

Response: HUD cannot accept this request because the HUD inspection process and standards of the locality are different than REAC's. Conducting two different inspections at the same time can present confusion for the resident, owner, and the inspectors. As we discussed on our call and provided in our written responses to earlier questions posed by your office, the Department's policy is to allow only property participants (owner, management, resident) to accompany the REAC inspector. HUD's policy minimizes the number of people for a good reason: Too many people on inspections can become distracting to the inspector as well to residents. In addition, the policy also protects the tenants' right to privacy by ensuring that physical inspections are not viewed as an intrusion into tenants' homes. Many tenants take issue if people other than the property's representative are present. This is a long-standing policy in existence since REAC's inception.

HUD will continue to work with the County and the owner on resolution of the outstanding code violations.

Request 5: Terminate or abate HUD's contracts with PK Management at all properties.

Response: At present, Essex Village is the only PK Management affiliated property that is experiencing a default. Therefore, HUD has no grounds to terminate contracts at other affiliated properties. To do so would violate the respective property business agreements and be contrary to our mission of preserving scarce affordable housing resources across the country. As was discussed on the call, the Department monitors all of its 30,000 properties using a variety of sources in addition to the REAC inspection. HUD will provide closer scrutiny to the 171 PK affiliated properties, with particular attention to the Virginia-based assets.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Request 6: Please provide constructive alternative suggestions for addressing Essex Village.

Response: The Department shares your goal of ensuring that all Americans, including residents of Essex Village and all HUD-affiliated housing, have access to safe, decent, affordable housing. As stated above, HUD also has the goal of preserving limited housing stock. Therefore, HUD cannot abate the contract without first attempting to improve the physical condition of this property. Currently, Henrico County administers approximately 250 vouchers. Given the significantly rising rents in nearly every city in the country, there is concern that a significant increase in vouchers may not be easily accommodated by the existing units in the county. HUD is committed to working with you to find the best solution. HUD works with local stakeholders to balance the needs of residents, communities, and the due process protections that are basic to all property participants. HUD will continue to ensure that our owner and management partners adhere to their business agreements and provide decent, safe, and sanitary housing. If they do not, the Department will enforce compliance or will terminate our relationship and provide alternative housing for residents.

In addition to the specific actions HUD is taking with Essex Village as the federal agency charged with ensuring the potentially competing goals of preservation and compliance, the Department developed a series of initiatives to more quickly identify troubled properties; enhance enforcement actions; and improve our communication concerning such properties with residents, communities, and local governments and can share them with you and your staff.

The following responds to your letter dated, June 22, 2017:

Request 7: You referenced general concerns regarding the property, specifically the sewage system.

Response: The owner/management reported a sewer line camera inspection was completed by Dillon Plumbing, a local third party plumbing and sewer company, over the course of two weeks in late May and early June. The final written report was due on June 16, 2017, but was delayed. To expedite the receipt of the report, the videos were forwarded to UIS Engineering, who provided an initial response on Wednesday June 22, 2017. The initial report was a review of 1,000 lineal feet of the lines.

Verbally, Dillon Plumbing conveyed to County inspectors that no material damage was noted in their review of the camera videos. The cause of the backups was primarily due to improper disposal of grease, pampers, baby wipes, etc. Dillon Plumbing also noted that the lines were previously obstructed by bottles and other large objects. Preliminary results of the report from UIS show that over 63 percent of the lines were clear and that the 36 percent of apparent obstruction was grease build up. Management provided a notice detailing items that are not flushable and proper grease disposal instructions in May and this notice will be redistributed and included in the July Newsletter (Refer to enclosure #2). Management has a contract to jet the lines quarterly (Refer to enclosure #3).

The owner/management reported that recent backups (including the one highlighted by the media over the Memorial Day weekend) were due to grease, pampers, and wipes. They have no record of recent incidents of the backup of actual raw sewage. Bill Mohr, Facilities Director for PK

Management, was on site at Essex and personally observed one of the backups in question at the cleanout. He reported that the backup consisted of clear waste water (no feces or urine).

Request 8: You noted residents stated they were told not to contact the County and that PK staff did not respond to requests for assistance. PK Management reports the following:

Response: According to management, residents have not been told not to contact the County and encouraged to contact the leasing office (during the business day) and to use the emergency after hours service (after business hours) to report maintenance issues. In addition, the contact information and grievance protocol for Navigate Housing, the Contract Administrator for Essex, was redistributed to residents and reposted in the leasing office.

Last week, management instituted a customer service email where residents can voice concerns about repair quality, maintenance promptness, or any other management concern. This email is monitored and goes directly to the centralized Customer Service center located at the PK Corporate office.

Management is also aware that recently, some residents voiced that calls to the emergency after hours' line went unanswered. To address this, management added a second "on-call" maintenance technician. Each shift will now include one HVAC technician at all times, and the technicians are authorized to use 3rd party HVAC contractors, as needed, to expedite service.

These customer service enhancements were reiterated via hand delivered tenant notices, as well as, during the resident meetings held the week of June 19, 2017. (Refer to enclosures #4).

The Department encourages residents to contact management first, then the Navigate Housing, then contract administrator, and then HUD staff.

Request 9: You requested a list of all properties in Virginia's 4th Congressional district with failing REAC scores and the names of the owner operators of those housing complexes.

Response: The list of properties is enclosure #5.

I hope this information is helpful.

Sincerely,

Aaron Santa Anna
Acting General Deputy Assistant Secretary

REAC Inspection CDE

Dear Ms. Anastasi:

As a follow up to our original submission dated April 28, 2017, please accept this as our final CDE and improvement plan for Essex Village Apartments.

EHS

All EHS items noted on the REAC inspection were addressed and documented to HUD on January 13, 2017 (see attached report). In addition, from the 100% unit inspection survey, all items of this type have been addressed.

Interior Units

Total Point Loss Units - (b)(6)

As previously noted, following the receipt of the final REAC score of 51, a 100% unit inspection was conducted. Attached please find the revised CDE report including completed service requests.

Management utilized several third-party contractors including flooring contractors, plumbers, HVAC contractors, carpenters, and exterminators, to address unit deficiencies.

Unless noted, repair work has been completed. Any open items will be addressed by July 31, 2017. Due to the number of units at Essex, as well as the comprehensive nature of this inspection, management will be revisiting units and ensuring that 3rd party contractor work as well as on-site work has been completed up to UPCS standards. We expect this secondary review to be completed by July 31, 2017.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Exterior

Fencing and Gates – Point Loss – 2.23
All fencing and gates that were damaged were repaired. Some sections are being reviewed for replacement and will be done by July 31, 2017 if needed.

Gutters/Downspouts/Soffits/Fascia – Point Loss – 2.47
All gutters, downspouts, soffits, and fascia noted on the REAC inspection report have been repaired/replaced as needed. The entire property was surveyed and repairs to gutters, downspouts, soffits and fascia were made by our 3rd party contractors on site.

Siding – Point Loss – 3.63
All siding has been repaired and is up to UPCS standards, however, the owner has approved to begin siding replacements over the next 60 days, beginning with the 100 Series. We anticipate that this first series of 5 buildings will be completed by July 31, 2017.

Common Areas – Point Loss – 1.08/Stair Repairs (Breezeways) – Point Loss - .01
Common Areas have been inspected and repairs have been made as needed including in the office, community room, laundry rooms, and breezeways. All breezeways have been power washed and all several stair risers have been repaired and stairs replaced as needed. All common areas will continue to be inspected weekly and repairs will be made as needed.

Grounds (Landscaping) Overgrown Vegetation – Point Loss- 5.57
Landscaping upgrades have been extensive since March 1, 2017. Specifically mulch, shrubs, and other plantings have been added. In addition, tree trimming and bush trimming have been completed to address any areas of overgrown vegetation. Landscaping and the monitoring of vegetation will be ongoing and continuous.

Grounds (Landscaping) Erosion – Point Loss – 7.43
Erosion has been addressed by seeding and straw coverings. This will be ongoing with major areas addressed by July 31, 2017.

Playgrounds – Point Loss – 5.57
All playgrounds have been repaired and swing seats replaced. Playgrounds will be monitored daily and any needed repairs will be addressed immediately.

Paving – Point Loss - 0
No deductions related to paving were made on the REAC report. However, the owner authorized a full seal coating and striping of all lots which will occur on May 31, 2017.

Extermination (Infestation) – Point Loss – 4.20
Service has been transferred to Terminix. All units on the property have been treated during a "cleanout" process. Terminix is now contracted for the ongoing service as well. Cleanouts for both roaches and mice have been completed. Mice exclusion and extraction will continue as needed. Units will be treated a minimum of four times per year – more as needed.
Note – the point loss in Extermination is also reflected in the total unit interior point deduction above.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Other Items

Sewer Backups – No point deductions related to Sewer backups were made on the REAC report. However, this issue was discussed during the meeting held on March 29, 2017. To address this issue, all lines were jetted during the first week of May 2017. This procedure will be continued, as needed, but is planned for a minimum of twice annually. In addition, the owner has agreed to conduct a camera inspection of all lines. The latter is planned for the first week of June.

Balconies – All balconies were inspected on May 25, 2017. Repairs and replacement will be made by third party contractors as needed.

Refuse Disposal – It was determined that the number of refuse pickups was not adequate. Management increased the refuse service from:

- Old Service: 20-8 yd. dumpsters on site
  4-8yds emptied 3x week
  12- 8yds emptied 2x week
  4-8yds emptied 1x week (senior side)

- New Service: 20 - 8yd dumpsters on site
  16-8 cubic yard dumpsters each emptied 3x week and the 4-8yds emptied 1x week (senior side)

Security

Guard Service - Security was discussed during the meeting held with Management and HUD on March 29, 2017. Since that meeting security guard service at Essex is now setup on a 16 hour day schedule utilizing 2 off-duty Henrico Police Officers per shift.

Day Shift will operate from approximately 12:00 pm – 4:00 pm daily.
Evening Shifts will operate from approximately 2:00 pm – 2am daily.
(7 days per week)

Officers will utilize marked police vehicles while on duty for mobile patrols, and also be spending most of their shifts on foot patrol when weather permits.

Essex also has a HPD sub-station "office" where officers can take breaks from the elements and do any report writing. Other On-Duty Police often do foot patrols with the Essex officers on a regular basis. Officers will enforce all local and state laws, including but not limited to: Trespassing, Curfew Violation, Loud Music, Domestic Calls, Firearm Violations, Alcohol/Drug Violations, etc. Reports will be emailed to our distribution group daily for review.

Cameras – Currently, the property has a camera system covering certain areas of heavy traffic. This system will be augmented over the next 90 days, by August 31, 2017 to have additional coverage in all three series (100, 200, and 300), as well as on the senior side.

Customer Service/Nuisance Calls

Management has requested the most recent log of nuisance calls from the County and will follow up with Colonel Middleton on this matter. In the meantime, management has reiterated its grievance procedure to the residents as well as all after-hour's emergency numbers, service request procedures, etc.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Tenant Relations

In an effort to improve tenant relations, management conducted one on one meetings with tenants in April to discuss the House Rules and to address concerns.

A new Property Manager was hired on March 27, 2017 and will ensure follow up meetings are being scheduled to check in with residents, discuss any concerns they have and to solicit constructive criticism and feedback from the residents regarding the recent repairs and the management team in general.

Social Services

Essex currently has one full-time Social Service Coordinator. Management is in the process of hiring another Service Coordinator who will be assigned to augment services specifically for the children who reside at Essex. We look to have this new position in place by July 15, 2017. In the meantime, Essex will continue with a robust services and programming schedule.

If you have any questions regarding this matter, please contact me at (216) 472-1870x115.

RE: Grease and Bathroom Toilet Disposal

To all residents:

This is a REMINDER of proper disposal of oil and grease and what should NOT be flushed down your bathroom toilet.

Don't Forget – Proper Methods for Disposing of Oil & Grease in your Home...

- DO Use an old coffee can or tin can as a grease collector.
- DO Pour greasy or oily food waste into the container, NOT down the drain or garbage disposal.
- DO Freeze or cool animal fats before disposing in the trash.
- DO Mix liquid vegetable fats with an absorbent material such as kitty litter or coffee grounds in a sealable container before disposing in the trash.
- DO NOT Pour oil or grease down the garbage disposal or sink.

Bathroom:

- Always flush your toilet after every use and NEVER place objects in the toilet that cannot dissolve in water, e.g., paper towels, sanitary pads/tampons, baby wipes, wash cloths, diapers or products such as Depends.

PROTECTING THE ENVIRONMENT IS EVERYONE'S ROLE!!

If you have any concerns or have questions on how to dispose of oil and grease or questions on what can be flushed down the toilet, please contact the management office at 804-329-5820.

Thank you,

Essex Village Management

UPDATED MEDIA REPORT, PK Management Properties
Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va., Woodland Crossings Apartments, Richmond, Va. and Hope Village Apartments, Glen Allen, Va.
FROM WHITE HOUSE REPORTING: March 22, 2017 through August 3, 2017
Contact: Lisa Wolfe, Regional Public Affairs Officer, lisa.a.wolfe@hud.gov

SUMMARY: Essex Village Apartment, Henrico County, Va. a PK Management Company Richmond, Virginia Media Outlets
We received our initial Essex Village Apartments inquiry from CBS6 WTVR-TV reporter Melissa Hipolit on Wednesday, December 14, 2016. Melissa asked for the total amount of Housing Assistance Payments sent to Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia in 2016. At that point, the current annual subsidy was $5,376,299. The apartment complex has 496 units under the Section 8 Housing Assistance Program (HAP) contract. Melissa acknowledged she was new to assisted housing, so I explained that families and individuals pay no more than 30 percent of their income towards their monthly rental—and that the HUD voucher makes up the difference. Because this property is project-based assistance, the voucher is tied to the apartment unit, not the individual or family. She requested a copy of the HAP contract and the most recent HUD REAC Inspection scores—which I let her know were both subject to FOIA.

Over the next few weeks, we received a number in inquiries—mainly resident complaints about water issues, leaks, mold, pests—about the deteriorating living conditions at the property. On January 3, 2017, we confirmed a REAC Inspection was scheduled in two weeks. The inspection was conducted on January 17, 2017. Ms. Hipolit was the first to request a 2017 REAC Inspection report which was not available by FOIA for 120 days. A letter dated February 2 from Henrico County Supervisor Frank Thornton was sent to Richmond Field Office Director Carrie Schmidt making her aware of the County's concern for residents stemming from the many code violations and life safety issues at the complex. Director Schmidt alerted Multifamily and the others impacted by the issues raised in the letter.

A March 30 meeting was scheduled at the Richmond Field Office, but before HUD Multifamily and Field Office leadership met, Henrico County officials dialed up the issue in the press. With CBS6's Melissa Hipolit leading in continuing coverage on Essex Village including the failing REAC Inspection score of 46c, she expanded her storyline to include the PK Management properties in the Richmond area including Woodland Crossings, Richmond, Va. (66b) and Hope Village, Glen Allen, Va. (82). NBC12 WWBT-TV Ashley Monfort has also been following with coverage on all three properties, with "dueling coverage" on who can uncover ongoing resident issues, including the fall of a 7-month pregnant resident from a balcony in disrepair. "Bubbling" sewage, along with other water, mold and infestation issues, continue to be reported by residents at all three properties. Both television stations are working in concert with Henrico County officials to bring resident issues "to light" and to be quickly addressed by PK Management, Navigate (the Performance Based Contract Administrator) and HUD.

U.S. Congressman Donald McEachin (VA-4) toured the property on May 12 with NBC's Ashley Monfort in tow and has been continuing to issue press releases and statements calling for HUD to take action. WRIC-TV anchor/reporter Kerri O'Brien has also visited the properties, interviewed residents and is calling for HUD to provide vouchers for residents to relocate. Richmond Times-Dispatch reporter Debbie Truong and Richmond Free Press reporter Jeremy Lazarus have been adding print and online stories into the mix. We continue to receive notifications of resident issues from the various outlets, and are working to provide updates on resolutions as well as the work underway to upgrade the properties and repair the many issues. In July, we worked with Navigate to craft a "1,2,3 step" communication for residents that includes flyers, an upgraded website portal for complaints, and provided this information to the various media outlets requesting their assistance in helping us help the residents.

Key dates/deliverables include: The Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan for Essex Village Apartments that was received from PK Management on May 25 includes 74 pages of issues/repairs to be addressed by PK Management by July 31. A June 7 conference call with Congressman McEachin and Henrico County officials addressed the many questions/issues the Congressman had raised with HUD [please see attached]. On July 14, an attorney representing the owners of the Essex Village apartments appeared in front of a Henrico County General District Court judge for an arraignment on charges related to five of the 18 building code violation charges that have been issued. The July 28 meeting between Henrico County Board Chairman Pat O'Bannon and senior HUD officials was postponed due to the Secretary's schedule. The meeting is in response to Ms. O'Bannon's email to the President, requesting his assistance. HUD has scheduled a REAC Re-Inspection for August 8. We anticipate that Henrico County officials and the media will be on-hand that day.

In the interim, we continue to field multiple media and FOIA requests almost daily, and will continue to respond to these many requests. Residents continue to contact Henrico County officials, CBS6 Problem Solvers or other media portals for customer complaints—noting timely responses for those who bypassed the work order system. During a July 25 Board of Supervisors Meeting, Henrico County officials cited that HUD repeatedly gave the property passing scores, causing misrepresentation of HUD's ongoing work with the owner and property management agent that follows a failing REAC score.

On Friday, July 28, Public Affairs' GDAS Jerry Brown visited the property as a follow-up to his visit a month earlier. He reported a tremendous difference—and that in conversations with residents, they were thrilled with the repairs and the fact that their maintenance calls were receiving a timely response. He noted Essex Village is old (built in 1981) and the property needs the facelift that is now underway. It is clean, kids were playing in the street and externally it looks like it would pass our inspection. Here is what he saw:

- One, out of every four buildings, has some type of repair work underway. Some of it is extensive.
- Gutters are being replaced.
- Siding is being replaced.
- Dry wall work is occurring inside numerous building.
- Crews were still working and it was 5:50 p.m.
- Nearly every balcony had replacement slacks. Those that didn't were completely rebuilt including flooring.
- Storage containers with sheetrock, siding, gutters were prominent throughout the complex.

At least six crews were working throughout the complex. The only portion of the complex that was not being worked on was the rancher-side of the complex—where seniors reside. That portion of the complex looks much better than the other side. It may just be the density of the housing and the cul-de-sac approach. Jerry has photographs that he is willing to share.

As of August 3, two FOIAs with requests for the Compliance Disposition and Enforcement Plan are outstanding pending submitter objections. An additional FOIA with nearly 150 pages of emails will be shipped later today.

MEDIA INQUIRIES

Wednesday, March 22, 2017

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. The apartment complex has 496 units under the Section 8 Housing Assistance Program (HAP) contract. Melissa withdrew her FOIA request for the last two inspection reports because she is aware there is a subsequent REAC inspection/report out underway. She is asking for specifics as to why the property failed the inspection with a score of 46c*. I let her know that because the most recent inspection was completed on January 11, 2017 and the report was given to Essex Village and HUD on January 19 and that REAC reports are not releasable until 120 days to allow time for appeals. The final REAC report will be available beginning May 19, and subject to any FOIA exemptions. As far as the specific issues at the property, I explained that I am unable to provide any additional information until the final REAC report is released. During a second late-day call, Melissa asked if Gregory Perlman of GH Capital was involved in the project. I mentioned that I was unfamiliar with the name, and the only owner/management company I had knowledge of was PK Management. Today I verified that Gregory Perlman is involved with Essex Village Apartments through both Essex VA Investors LLC and PK Management. I verified that he signed the HAP Basic Renewal Contract as the Manager and authorizing representative. HUD Multifamily leadership has been meeting with Mr. Perlman and others to resolve deficiencies at the property. Melissa is also aware of the meeting between Henrico County officials and HUD scheduled for March 30, so we are anticipating that press will be at the Richmond Field Office that day.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit inquired about Gregory Perlman, the owner involved with Essex Village Apartments through both Essex VA Investors LLC and PK Management. He signed the HAP Basic Renewal Contract as the Manager and authorizing representative and is one of the individuals representing PK Management who is currently working with our team to resolve the issues at Essex Village.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. Melissa has reached out to Colonel Douglas A. Middleton, Henrico County's Deputy County Manager for Public Safety for a pre-meeting interview to discuss the myriad of county inspections that parallel HUD's failing score. Ten County officials will meet with the Richmond Field Office and multifamily teams on March 30. We are anticipating that press will be at the Richmond Field Office that day.

Tuesday, March 28, 2017

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) reporter Debbie Truong inquired about Essex Village in Henrico County after speaking with Doug Middleton, the deputy county manager in Henrico who told her the county has cracked down on the number of code violations at Essex in hopes of bettering the quality of life there. She asked about percentage of Section 8 units at Essex and if HUD is supportive of Henrico's efforts to crackdown on code violations. Doug mentioned that the county would like to strengthen its relationship with HUD and if the agency is willing to do the same. She also identified the county said it found 140 code violations at Essex asking how HUD regulates conditions at the properties it provides funding to and how regularly HUD properties are inspected and/or regulated.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) reporter Melissa Hipolit asked about a proposal for a large rent increase at Essex Village. During an interview with Henrico County officials, it was mentioned that numbers that show substantial rent increases have been proposed. She also requested an on-camera interview which was declined.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) reporter Debbie Truong requested additional information including a follow-up that Middleton stated that Essex Village received the fifth lowest score in the state from HUD though he was unclear about what the scoring was related to. I explained the REAC Inspection process and how the scores determine frequency of inspection and steps HUD/property manager must take to resolve issues. She also submitted a FOIA requesting a list of the property owners/managers since the property was built in 1982.

Friday, March 31, 2017
Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) reporter Jeremy Lazarus was briefed about how Henrico County officials are working with HUD to address the many issues at Essex Village Apartments. I suggested that he follow-up with County officials for specifics, as they are addressing the code violations and health and safety issues their own inspections have uncovered as well as the police and fire calls originating from residents to County responders. I noted our agency has our own inspection process and we are currently working with the property owners and management to address the issues we have identified. There are no proposed rent increases. Independently, we are working on behalf of residents to improve conditions at the property.

Tuesday, April 4, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has requested under FOIA copies of inspection records regarding Essex Village Apartments located in Henrico County, Va. from 2012 to 2017. She has also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. She initially contacted HUD while a meeting between Henrico County officials and HUD multifamily and field office leaders were meeting last Thursday, March 30 about living conditions and issues at the property. She also requested and we declined an on-camera. We are working with PK Management to address the issues. More to follow.

NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) News desk reported there was a fire at Essex Village around 10 p.m. on Wednesday, April 3. Approximately eight households were displaced. The fire department was dispatched and rescued several residents trapped on their balconies; no reported injuries. The cause of the fire is being investigated by the fire department.

Thursday, April 6, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has requested under FOIA copies of inspection records regarding Essex Village Apartments located in Henrico County, Va. from 2012 to 2017. She has also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. The FOIA has been assigned and the inspection reports have been pulled and are being redacted. Multifamily housing is working on the correspondence aspects of the request. Because there is an inspection process currently underway, any correspondence pulled will need to be carefully reviewed before release. Continuing to work this request.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. Melissa is continuing to ask for an on-camera interview which we have declined (three times). She is also follow-up with a resident document that illustrates a substantial rent increase. Yesterday I responded with the note that for a rent increase, the owner/management would have to submit a formal proposal to HUD for approval. Nothing has been submitted to HUD to date. PK Management is contemplating a substantial renovation of the property (ranging from $9 to 19 million), but the initial proposal was incomplete and a new proposal has not been submitted. Will continue to work the various aspects of this question.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus followed-up on last week's second request about issues at Essex Village Apartments in Henrico, Va. Pending approval from multifamily housing leadership, today's response will address a series of questions including a date or time that a project-based Section 8 property must correct problems; the timeframe HUD will give them time to correct and/or bring the property into compliance as well as what is the actual time-period. Notice: H 2015-02-Subject: Required Actions for Multifamily Housing Projects Receiving Failing Scores from HUD's Real Estate Assessment Center (REAC) which defines the various steps both HUD and the property owner/manager must take following a failed physical inspection. The Notice covers the deliverables with deadlines. The process is basically a decision tree in the event the corrections/deficiencies are not made at the various points in time. I did not cover what happens in the event of a Failure to Comply, but that is also included in the notice. More to come.

Friday, April 21, 2017
NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort followed-up with us on a FOIA request she sent over April 4. She requested copies of the REAC property inspection reports from 2012 to 2017 regarding Essex Village located in Henrico County, Va. Inspection scores for 2012 to 2015 have been in the 70s. The most recent inspection in January 2017 resulted in an initial REAC score (46c*). The owners' appeal was granted, bringing the score to 51--still considered a fail. That report will be releasable on May 19, 2017. Corrective actions and timeline has been put in place for the owner/manager. The reporter also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. My guess is she is searching for information about a possible rehabilitation/sale which was initiated by the owner, but never completed. The Richmond Field Office anticipates completing the request early next week. A March 30 online story was updated this week to include a statement by Congressman A. Donald McEachin (VA-04) who issued the following statement about the failing living conditions at Essex Village: "No family deserves to live in conditions such as the one documented at Essex Village. All individuals – no matter their race, socioeconomic status, or sexual orientation – should be treated fairly and have safe and clean shelter. The property managers must address these unhealthy conditions immediately. The families who call this community home, should be able to rest easy in a safe environment after a long day at work and school, not worry about the living conditions."

Thursday, April 27, 2017
NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort received the FOIA request she sent over April 4. We shipped the REAC property inspection reports from 2012 to 2017 regarding Essex Village located in Henrico County, Va. Inspection scores for 2012 to 2015 have been in the 70s. The most recent inspection in January 2017 resulted in an initial REAC score (46c*). The final report will be releasable on May 19, 2017. The reporter also requested any correspondence between HUD and PK Management and Essex VA Investors, LLC in regards to Essex Village from 2015 to 2017. Documentation within the correspondence validated that GHC Housing had been trying to sell the property, but Henrico County turned down supporting their request for LIHTC to support an estimated $19 million in renovations. I anticipate more follow-up tomorrow.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her follow-up on several earlier inquiries on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Virginia. Yesterday she submitted three requests for information on GHC Housing properties including specifics Woodland Crossing in Richmond including the most recent inspection report and amount of subsidy for residents annually. She is also seeking any information on Greg Perlman as well as how to research any Section 8 property owners with a history with HUD. She's looking for investigations, sanctions, etc. She has also requested a list of the inspection ratings, resident complaints and overall subsidy GHC Housing Properties received last year (2016). With more than 18,000 units in 24 states, we are determining if any reports can be run with the inspection/funding information. More to follow on that tomorrow.

Friday, April 28, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit expanded her FOIA requests as she prepares for an interview with Greg Perlman, owner/manager of PK Management (Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va.). Today, we confirmed her request for information for a second PK Management property, Woodland Crossing in Richmond Va. She has requested the most recent inspection report (which earned a barely passing 66B) as well as the current annual funding HUD pays on behalf of residents; believe to be approximately $2,146,000. She has requested a listing of any sanctions or investigations involving PK Management; a HUD-2530 report has been pulled by multifamily and indicates there is no current negative activity. She has requested a total of all monies HUD paid to PK Management and/or GHC Housing last year (2016) to subsidize the rent of residents at their properties. This report has been produced by multifamily, but included expired contracts; awaiting update from multifamily. Annual receipts appear to be in the range of $200 million. She has also requested resident complaints for all of PK Management's Virginia properties. We are working with the PBCA agents to generate the requested reports.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Continuing to work on Reporter Melissa Hipolit' s FOIA requests as she prepares for an interview with Greg Perlman, owner/manager of PK Management (Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va.). She has requested a total of all monies HUD paid to PK Management and/or GHC Housing last year (2016) to subsidize the rent of residents at their properties nationwide as well as Woodland Crossings. Multifamily is generating the report. She has also requested resident complaints for all of PK Management's Virginia properties; Tim Shearer of Navigate, the PBCA, will generate the requested reports. HUD Headquarters is also working on the REAC inspection report scores for PK Management properties nationwide. If all goes well, we should be able to ship the FOIA by the end of the week. Her interview is scheduled for Monday, May 8.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Continuing to work on Reporter Melissa Hipolit' s FOIA requests as she prepares for an interview with Greg Perlman, owner/manager of PK Management (Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va.). Her FOIA request has been classified as "complex" and we continue to pull together files including the subsidies paid to PK Management for Woodland Crossings ($1.4 million) and nationwide ($152 million). We also collected the PBCA's complaint numbers—surprisingly low considering the issues at Essex Village. The input from the requested sources (HQ, Baltimore Multifamily HUB, Richmond Field Office Multifamily) are due next Wednesday. We should be able to release a portion of the FOIA before the end of next week.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a partial for her last FOIA request on PK Management, the owner of Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. She is currently working on a story about Woodland Crossing, the other almost failing (66b) PK Management property in Richmond, Va. She is hoping to air the story within the next week or so. We have completed several items in her request and should be able to ship partials today and tomorrow.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit visited Hope Village in Glen Allen, Va., a PK Management property, and alerted us that a resident who contacted her claimed her child has elevated lead levels. The reporter reviewed the lab results which confirm the young boy does have an elevated lead level. The resident is scheduled to have all three of her children tested next week. Henrico County officials as well as the health department have been made aware and are responding to the situation. HUD confirmed the property has both lead certification disclosure and reports up-to-date and on file for the property. A follow-up call with the reporter led to further discussions that multiple resident appeals from both Hope Village and Woodland Crossing in Richmond, Va. have gone unanswered. All three are older and deteriorating. We are working with multifamily and the PBCA Navigate to learn more and initiate follow-up actions.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit received a follow-up to her request for a listing of the most recent REAC inspection scores for the 164 properties nationwide managed by PK Management. There are five properties that have had recent inspections that are not releasable. Most REAC Inspections are in the 80-99-point range—146 of the 164.

Friday, May 12, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort toured Essex Village Apartments with U.S. Congressman Donald McEachin and called and asked for comment about the Congressman's comment that he is going to try to convince HUD to provide vouchers.

Tuesday, May 16, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested the amount of money HUD provides GHC Housing/PK Management to subsidize the rent of residents at Hope Village annually. She also requested an update on her other open FOIA requests.
Wednesday, May 17, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit received an interim response to her FOIA request which included the HUD subsidy information and the 2016 REAC Inspection on Woodland Crossings Apartments in Richmond, Va. The score was a barely passing 66c.

Following up with the reporter today.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on the inspection process for HUD REAC Inspections—she was particularly interested in the inspectors are third party contractors or HUD employees. The 2017 REAC Inspection at Essex Village Apartments was performed by HUD Quality Assurance Inspectors.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a partial for her last FOIA request on PK Management, the owner of Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. She is currently working on a story about Woodland Crossing, the other almost failing (66b) PK Management property in Richmond, Va. The redacted REAC inspection report and annual Section 8 funding amount reports were shipped last Tuesday. On Friday May 19, Melissa interviewed PK Management's Jenne McClain-Blankhead. The story has not yet aired. Jenne will submit a summary of the interview to multifamily by COB on Monday, May 22.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit and NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort previously inquired about the January 11, 2017 REAC Inspection report for Essex Village Apartments that is now available for release. Wednesday, May 24, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit submitted a FOIA request on the annual subsidy amount paid to PK Management for Hope Village in Glen Allen, Va. The FOIA was completed and shipped today. This is a follow-up to her visit to that property on May 9. The resident's apartment, which she alerted us had evidence of mold and a child with an elevated blood lead level, has been tested and certified there is no lead in the residence. The report has been given to County officials. No further action on this matter anticipated. During the May 23 meeting with Henrico County officials and Congressman McEachin, both the County and Congressman requested that HUD investigate issues at the property.

Friday, May 26, 2017
Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus followed-up on his April 10 request about issues at Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. He inquired about the status of the pregnant woman who fell from a second-floor balcony and was injured. U.S. Rep. Donald McEachin is now calling on the Secretary of HUD to explain what HUD is doing to force the landlord to make improvements. Jeremy is asking what HUD is doing, aside from flunking the complex as well as if the agency is planning more inspections and imposing requirements for fixes. Working with multifamily housing and legal on a response to the steps underway to bring the complex into compliance. Also, received a Congressional request as a follow-up to the May 23 call on our discussion on vouchers during the conference call about Essex Village, the Congressman's staff is hoping to get more information about how residents can vacate their contracts.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit contacted us after residents of Essex Village reached out to WTVR CBS 6 News about a sewage issue Sunday afternoon. They said the problems started around 1 p.m. when a woman's toilet overflowed and solid waste continued to flood into her apartment. Outside the unit, sewage also started bubbling up from a drain in a sidewalk because of a blockage. Essex Village's sewage system is privately owned and not maintained by the county, but Henrico utility crews responded, removed the blockage and made sure the line was clear. PK Management investigated and learned it was the fault of the resident. No additional action needed.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out to find out any updates to the PK Management/Essex Village story. She noted Congressman McEachin's letter to Dr. Carson last week expressing concerns about the pregnant woman that fell, as well as the weekend the sewage eruption. Crafted a response to the status of the resident who fell as well as the work underway by HUD, PK Management, Henrico County and others to address the many issues at the property. Multifamily, OPA, OGC and FPM reviewed and approved the response. In response, received a query about the balconies—and a resident rumor that the balconies were going to be removed. Confirmed with PK Management they have contracted for the inspection and repair of the balconies throughout the property.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit continued her investigation/reporting of PK Management properties with a report on Woodland Crossing in Richmond. Her investigation uncovered that PK Management has been cited by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for several health and safety infractions at the complex. The story included evidence of roach infestation, front doors that will not lock, mold and other safety and health hazards.

8NEWS, WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Investigative Reporter Kerri O'Brien contacted me multiple times yesterday for a story regarding complaints about PK Management that included federal lawsuits, involving overcharging and HUD violations in 2009 out of North Carolina. Additional research uncovered two HUD OIG audits. In addition to shipping information on assisted housing, REAC Inspections and specific PK Management REAC Inspection reports, the reporter focused on the question—why is HUD entrusting its resident housing to an unscrupulous company? PK Management has three properties in Henrico County, Va.—all in disrepair.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus submitted three (3) requests over the past few days including an update on the status of the resident who fell from the balcony as well as the work underway to remedy the deficiencies at Essex Village. He noted that the inspections in previous years appeared to overlook the deterioration—not the case—the property has always been scored in the 70s. He requested an update on the letters Congressman McEachin issued to Secretary Carson. He also inquired about the HUD inspection process and the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan. All questions were addressed, status report shipped and closed.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort received the January 11, 2017 REAC Inspection report for Essex Village Apartments that is now available for release. She requested an update on the resident who fell from the balcony and the work underway at Essex (status report shipped). She also requested a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan. As far as the plan, it was just submitted on Friday and is in review, so no copy is available right now. I am trying to get a timetable (line a REAC inspection report) as well as what elements of the plan are releasable by FOIA (and when).

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong contacted me about a story she is writing about Henrico County issuing a violation notice for a balcony at Essex Village that a pregnant woman apparently fell through. She asked if HUD is aware of the issue, and asked for comment. Waiting for legal to advise since there is concern about resident litigation/disclosure. Truong directly quoted from the response.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is at Hope Village, the third PK Management property in Henrico County, Va. More than 25 residents are preparing a petition identifying the ongoing issues at that complex including mold, water damage, nonworking smoke detectors/lights as well as other issues. One resident, Christin Hardy, contacted Henrico County official Colonel Doug Middleton who referred the resident to FOD Carrie Schmidt. Yesterday the resident met with PK Management, identified the issues with her apartment and is scheduled for repairs next week. During a call this afternoon, the resident asked me about obtaining a housing choice voucher—an obvious plant. Melissa is also pushing for a follow-up story on Woodland Crossing next week.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her coverage at Hope Village, the third PK Management property in Virginia. She is continuing to interview residents who signed a petition identifying the ongoing issues at that complex including mold, water damage, nonworking smoke detectors/lights as well as other issues. Sourcing information on how residents can contact the PBCA contractor Navigate—a communication "miss" that we identified and are trying to remedy.

Tuesday, June 6, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is continuing her coverage of PK Management properties in Virginia. Today, the request was for data sets for tracking safety/security/crime issues in multifamily and public housing. She was specifically looking for public housing because of the criminal activity in Richmond's housing projects here recently. She requested an update on the FOIA that includes the list of complaints fielded by HUD/Navigate related to PK Management properties in Virginia. And, also made us aware the 25 residents signing a petition in Hope Village had decided not to follow through since their issues are being taken care of by PK Management this week.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort inquired about additional information on the 2017 Essex Village REAC Inspection report. The property profile says 26 residential units were sampled. Are different units inspected each year? The inspection reports show that inoperable smoke detectors, infestations and inoperable water heaters were issues for years. Were there follow ups to makes sure these issues were fixed? And even if there was, it seems the issues persisted and became worse. I've been told Essex Village was given a passing score until 2017 after the county started issuing violations as well. Will work to clarify the many myths in her request.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus requested the insight on the Essex Village subsidy. Per the Congressman's request for how much HUD subsidized rents last year, the actual Housing Assistance Payment (HAP) contract amount for Essex was $ 4,226,300. The contract runs from October 1 – September 31, so the figure reflects the contracted amount from October 1, 2015 to September 31, 2016. Monthly vouchers can fluctuate depending on tenant adjustments, vacancy claims etc. so the figure reported on December 23, 2016 (per the CBS6 FOIA request) had not accounted for the adjustments and was based on calendar year. At that point, the reported subsidy was $5,376,299. There was no additional capital--no right/wrong--simply a different period of reporting. Working on a second follow-up about the progress of work underway at Woodland Crossing.

Wednesday, June 7, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out to find out any updates to the PK Management/Essex Village story. She is looking for information from her original FOIA request due June 5. Today, we will be shipping the table of resident complaints from PK Management properties in Virginia submitted to Navigate, the PBCA and the total subsidy funding from PK Management properties nationwide. We are in the process of clarifying her final request for any sanctions and/or investigations involving PK Management and HUD. Checking in with multifamily housing.

8NEWS, WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Investigative Reporter Kerri O'Brien submitted four (4) FOIA requests looking for PK Management property REAC Inspection scores from Jan. 2016 through June 2017 (164 properties nationwide, HUD OIG audit reports, all electronic payment vouchers for Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. from 2013 to 2017 and a copy of the CDE Plan submitted to HUD on Friday, May 16. HQ is working through the requests.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus is looking for an update on the work underway at Woodland Crossings in Richmond, Va. Awaiting multifamily housing's response.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted several follow-up questions based on her review of the Essex Village REAC Inspection Report for January 2017. She's trying to understand the sample size, why multiple reports cite inoperable smoke detectors, infestations and inoperable water heaters were issues for years, how is HUD holding the owner accountable and did HUD respond only after Henrico County reported code violations. All issues circle back to the deterioration of the property and the failing REAC Inspection score.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong is looking for information on how many audits/copies of audits HUD conducted with PK Management. If PK Management needs to notify HUD of any lawsuits filed against the company and if so, how many lawsuits have been filed against the company, where and by whom. She is also requesting HUD's assessment of how PK Management manages the federally subsidized housing it runs and owns as well as a list of the property owners and managers who have overseen Essex Village since it opened. She is writing a story for the weekend edition and is on deadline.

Wednesday, June 7, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out for comment on the Congressman McEachin releasing a statement that he's asking HUD to cease all business with PK Management. No response—after hours.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort requested a response in regards to Congressman McEachin's most recent statement: McEachin requests HUD to address conditions at Essex Village; other PK Management properties:

Thursday, June 8, 2017
NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted a FOIA request for the 2015 and 2016 REAC Inspection reports for Essex Village, Henrico County, Va. She misunderstood that we declined the availability of correspondence in a previous request, not the reports.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong is following up on her request for information on how many audits/copies of audits HUD conducted with PK Management. If PK Management needs to notify HUD of any lawsuits filed against the company and if so, how many lawsuits have been filed against the company, where and by whom. She is also requesting HUD's assessment of how PK Management manages the federally subsidized housing it runs and owns as well as a list of the property owners and managers who have overseen Essex Village since it opened. She is writing a story for the weekend edition and is on deadline. Multifamily provided guidance on each element; response shipped this afternoon.

Friday, June 9, 2017
NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted a FOIA request for the 2015 and 2016 REAC Inspection reports for Essex Village, Henrico County, Va. The reports had been previously sent under an earlier request. Confirmed receipt.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong submitted a FOIA request for the 2017 REAC Inspection report and appeal report for Essex Village, Henrico County, Va. Both reports were shipped this afternoon.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus requested information on the conference call on June 7 with Congressman McEachin and Henrico County Officials. In subsequent press releases and news articles, the Congressman appeared skeptical that progress is being made as HUD has stated it is and that the plan of action PK provided will be implemented. He asked if HUD provided any response to congressman's request. He also inquired if there is a reason that the Congressman believes PK is not getting the improvements done and that HUD is allowing complex to slide while keeping tenants in unfit apartments. He also asked if HUD is exploring the voucher option. Waiting for the Multifamily/CIR response that is in review; will craft follow-up following release of that information.

WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Anchor/Reporter Kerri O'Brien submitted four FOIA requests for information submitted through the public access link on Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. and PK Management. These are in addition to the multiple media inquiries from Kerri that I have been addressing. Kerri has requested copies of all electronic payments made to Essex Village from HUD for a period of two-years; a copy of the CDE Plan that was submitted to HUD on May 25; copies of all REAC Inspection Reports for all of PK Management's 164 properties and any HUD OIG audits and/or investigations of any PK Management properties. The Richmond Field Office is working with HQ to pull the requested files and determine who will provide the final information to the reporter.

WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Kerri O'Brien contacted us about a shooting that occurred in Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. on Sunday, June 10. The victim who was shot in the arm, had been previously banned from the property for shooting dice and is a friend of a resident who has been notified of eviction proceedings. We contacted PK Management and requested information relative to on-site security and camera footage. There is an unmarked auxiliary police unit stationed in an apartment on the property. Followed-up with the reporter with that information as well as the fact the security camera footage had been turned over to police officials.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested a comment on Congressman McEachin's announcement that he wanted HUD to cease business with PK Management. She also requested a follow-up on her multi-pronged FOIA on Essex Village Apartments and Woodland Crossings Apartments in Richmond, Va. Of the five item requests, the two on Woodland Crossings have been shipped; awaiting concurrence on the final three items pertaining to Essex Village.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit sent a video about an Essex Village resident complaint about bedbugs and roaches emailed to WTVR Problem Solvers. I forwarded the complaint to multifamily who in turn notified PK Management and Navigate. Both followed-up with the tenant, who had not submitted a work order for the complaint, and was advised PK would have an exterminator follow-up immediately. The issue has been followed-up and resolved.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on the outcome of an investigation by HUD's inspector general back in 1982 into allegations that HUD illegally bypassed procedures to approve the construction of Essex Village. The reporter stated there were allegations of a $2 million cost overrun. The inquiry was transferred to Darryl Madden, HUD OIG Public Affairs, to handle. We were also made aware that HUD OIG is considering opening an investigation at Essex Village.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit shipped an Essex Village resident complaint posted on the station's Facebook live. The woman appeared to have water leaking all over her apartment from a defective water tank or water heater. I forwarded the complaint to multifamily who in turn notified PK Management and Navigate. The following morning, it was reported the leak, from a malfunctioning air conditioning unit, had been repaired overnight. The issue had been followed-up and resolved.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit sent an email about an Essex Village resident complaint about bedbugs emailed to WTVR Problem Solvers. I forwarded the complaint to multifamily who in turn notified PK Management and Navigate. Both followed-up with the tenant, who had not submitted a work order for the complaint, and was advised PK would have an exterminator follow-up immediately. The issue has been followed-up and resolved.

WRIC-TV (Richmond, Va.) Anchor/Reporter Kerri O'Brien received her FOIA requesting copies of all electronic payments made to Essex Village Apartments from HUD for a period of two-years.

Thursday, June 15, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit received a follow-up to her FOIA request for information that included full amount of housing subsidy paid to PK Management during FY2016 ($152 million) as well as the complaints collected on PK Management properties in Virginia. I spoke with Melissa to further clarification the remaining requested item pertaining to "sanctions" and "investigations."

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reached out late-day to inquire why NBC12 had the 2017 REAC Inspection report for Essex Village Apartments that she had requested, but had not received. After a series of emails, I determined the FOIA had been shipped on June 1 that included the 2015 and 2017 inspection reports. We determined her station's filters were not accepting the files after I successfully shipped them to her private email account. Her evening report included the "more than $150 million" subsidy report.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort submitted a FOIA request about how much money PK Management received from HUD for Essex Village and Woodland Crossings in the past fiscal year. The FOIA is being handled by the Richmond Field Office and will be shipped on Friday.

NBC12, WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort inquired about the date of HUD's follow-up REAC inspection in July. No date has been set. She is also seeking an on camera with a HUD official, which I politely declined.

Richmond Free Press (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Jeremy Lazarus requested information on the conference call on June 7 with Congressman McEachin and Henrico County Officials. In subsequent press releases and news articles, the Congressman appeared skeptical that progress is being made as HUD has stated it is and that the plan of action PK provided will be implemented. He asked if HUD provided any response to congressman's request. He also inquired if there is a reason that the Congressman believes PK is not getting the improvements done and that HUD is allowing complex to slide while keeping tenants in unfit apartments. He also asked if HUD is exploring the voucher option. Waiting for the Multifamily/CIR response that is in review; crafted a follow-up for media. Awaiting approval from both to ship.

Richmond Times Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong is doing a story on Essex Village for the weekend edition and had a few questions to be addressed. She stated that Henrico County manager John Vithoulkas criticized HUD for the way it conducts inspections and suggested that inspecting only sampling of buildings is not adequate. He said that he feels HUD erroneously gave Essex passing REAC inspection scores when the property should not have received them. She requested HUD's response which we did not respond to. We addressed her other questions including the REAC re-inspection has not been scheduled. The other two "troubled" properties are Woodland Crossings in Richmond, Va. and Hope Village in Glen Allen, Va. And, HUD's records reflect GHC Properties as the owner, PK Management as the management company.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested assistance for an Essex Village resident who cited issues with her apartment since she moved into the complex March 23, 2016. She complained of leaks and mold. Forwarded the inquiry to Multifamily and Navigate. She requested a response ASAP.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed with a second inquiry regarding the ongoing calls and emails from residents at Essex Village who are continuing to have issues that have gone unresolved. I requested that Melissa assist us with "getting the word out" about the process we have in place to deal with the issues—particularly since the work to remedy the deficiencies in the CDE report is underway. I crafted a response and forwarded it to Melissa and Colonel Middleton and requested their assistance.

Monday, June 19, 2017

Richmond Times Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong forwarded a Richmond Times-Dispatch article from 1982 stating that an investigation was started over a possible cost overrun as Essex was being constructed. The article doesn't show up online, but she attached a copy. She was requesting a resolution to the inquiry—which I forwarded to HUD OIG to respond.

Tuesday, June 20, 2017

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit reviewed the 2015 and 2017 Essex Village HUD inspection reports and inquired about several PK Management employees trying to validate if either one was the senior VP that was allegedly "terminated" by PK Management for poor performance related to the properties in the Richmond area. I directed the reporter to PK Management because of the nature of the personnel issue.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit was confused by the notation of unsuccessful versus successful on the REAC Inspection reports and did not understand that a score of 59 or below constitutes a failing score. I confirmed that Essex Village Apartments failed the REAC Inspection with a 46c/51c and verified the notation on the REAC Inspection report means that the inspection was successfully completed and the inspection file was successfully uploaded to our PASS IT system. The word "successful" has nothing to do with the condition of the property.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit submitted a FOIA for Essex Village and PK Management's Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted on May 26, the appeal for the January 2017 REAC Inspection, the Notice of Default from HUD to PK Management and the Project Owner's Certification form. She also asked if the repair plan has been approved by HUD.

Friday, June 23, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has submitted a FOIA requested the amount of annual subsidy paid to PK Management last year to support the assisted housing in Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. and Woodland Crossings, Richmond, Va. We have pulled the actual amounts, but are also determining the HAP Contract amount for FY2016 for each property. We will most likely release the FOIA on Monday after hearing back from multifamily housing.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed up on her FOIA request for Essex Village and PK Management's Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted on May 26, the appeal for the January 2017 REAC Inspection, the Notice of Default from HUD to PK Management and the Project Owner's Certification form. She also asked if the repair plan has been approved by HUD. Awaiting available documents and a response about plan acceptance from multifamily housing.

NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort has submitted a FOIA requested the amount of annual subsidy paid to PK Management last year to support the assisted housing in Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. and Woodland Crossings, Richmond, Va. We have pulled the actual amounts, but are also determining the HAP Contract amount for FY2016 for each property. Waiting on a response/clarification from multifamily housing.

WRIC-TV 8News Where You Live (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Investigative Reporter Kerri O'Brien has requested a response/copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted by PK Management for Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. She also inquired if the REAC re-inspection been scheduled. She informed us there is a meeting tonight with Henrico Board of Supervisors on Essex Village.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit inquired about the FOIA she submitted related to Essex Village Apartments and PK Management. She has requested a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted May 26 (accepted and currently being redacted), the Notice of Default, the Project Owner's Certification Survey and Certification form. We are currently waiting for a response from multifamily housing.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit has yet to clarify what she means by requesting a listing of any sanctions or investigations involving PK Management from an earlier FOIA request. She has until July 5 to respond to our request.

Wednesday, June 28, 2017
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Online Reporter Megan Woo in her report on the Henrico County Board of Supervisors meeting reported that poor living conditions in Essex Village Apartments was the focus of the meeting. Officials say their goal is to get up to speed on what's being done to fix the problems and to determine the next steps. Officials also say they will continue to work with the chief building inspector, and HUD officials to follow up on notices and violations—but incorrectly reported that "despite the fact that HUD continues to give the facility passing grades." The story noted Congressman Donald McEachin has also sent two letters to HUD Secretary Ben Carson about the problems. A correction was filed on the property's failing REAC Inspection score of 51c*.

WRIC-TV 8News Where You Live (Richmond, Va.) Noon Anchor/Reporter Kerri O'Brien alerted us to the fact that Henrico County filed nine (9) criminal summons against the owners of Essex Village and Greg Perlman. They range from failing to maintain balconies to air condition problems to failing to fix plumbing. PK Management stated the violations were received after 5 p.m. last evening. Essex staff is already addressing them and Management is verifying the issues were not previously addressed. Also, a violation, if corrected prior to court date carries no fine, only if not addressed. Carolyn Anastasi will follow-up tomorrow morning.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit contacted us about a resident reporting w/video that there is another sewage overflow in Essex. PK Management made us aware of the issue prior to receiving the reporter's note and alerted us that the plumbing company had been called and was on-site along with Henrico County officials and the fire department. Melissa also sent two additional resident complaints our way—one with an overflowing air conditioner and one with long-term carpet damage. I forwarded the information to Multifamily and Navigate.

CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit is interviewing National Alliance of Housing Tenants Michael Kane about HUD's REAC Inspection process. Delton Nichols and Robert Iber provided insight about the process that was edited and shipped to the reporter. Melissa requested an interview with Deputy Assistant Secretary DJ Lavoy. We will again politely decline.
NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort received her FOIA requesting the amount of annual subsidy paid to PK Management last year to support the assisted housing in Essex Village Apartments, Henrico County, Va. and Woodland Crossings, Richmond, Va. The decision was to pull actual payments, not HAP Contract amount.

Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong submitted a FOIA for the amount of federal funding Essex Village receive last year and what the money was intended for. She asked if HUD require owners of properties that receive federal funding to report how they use their money as well as a copy of reports or any documentation GHC Housing Partners, PK Management and/or Essex VA Investors LLC. submitted related to how they used the federal money they received. She also requested a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan for the property.

Thursday, June 29, 2017
CBS6 WTVR-TV (Richmond, Va.) Investigative Reporter Melissa Hipolit received an interim response her FOIA (June 20) that included the Notice of Default sent by HUD to the Owner of Essex Village on February 24, 2017. The other requested documents have been submitted to HUD by either the ownership or the management entity for Essex Village, and may contain commercial or financial information that is arguably protected from disclosure under Exemption 4 of the Act (42 U.S.C. 552(b)(4)) and require submitter notification--which has been made.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Friday, June 30, 2017
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit contacted us about a resident reporting w/video that there is another sewage overflow in Essex. PK Management made us aware of the issue prior to receiving the reporter's note and alerted us that the plumbing company had been called and was on-site along with Henrico County officials and the fire department. The additional questions about the issues with the sewer system have been partially addressed with the remainder forwarded to PK Management.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed-up her Wednesday afternoon inquiry that included how PK Management is being held accountable in any way for not properly taking care of Essex Village. Cited Code of Federal Regulations and guidelines HUD must follow when a multifamily owner fails in the requirement to provide decent, safe, sanitary housing in good repair. The Notice of Default of the Housing Assistance Provider Contract has been issued and the subsequent steps are underway. That If the property fails to pass the REAC Re-Inspection, actions may include considering imposition of civil money penalties (CMPs), abatement of the Section 8 or other rental assistance subsidy, in whole or in part, and possible assignment of an FHA loan and/or foreclosure. She also inquired if HUD is investigating what happened to the money they gave PK Management to maintain Essex Village.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit asked why HUD continues to decline requests for an interview. Jerry Brown agreed to follow-up with the reporter.

Monday, July 10
Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong received a partial delivery on her FOIA request for federal funding Essex Village received last year and what the money was intended for. She asked if HUD require owners of properties that receive federal funding to report how they use their money as well as a copy of reports or any documentation GHC Housing Partners, PK Management and/or Essex VA Investors LLC. submitted related to how they used the federal money they received. This documentation has been shipped. She also requested a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan for the property which is still under submitter notification.

Tuesday, July 11
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed-up on her FOIA for relating to Essex Village and PK Management. She is looking for the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted May 26 (still in submitter notification and unavailable for release) as well as the appeal to the January 2017 REAC inspection, the Notice of Default and the "Project Owner's Certification" Survey and Certification form that the project is compliant with HUD's physical condition standards and state and local codes (this was to be submitted within 60 days of receipt of NOD). A partial is available for release. Melissa requested a verification of the dates of the submitter notification.

Tuesday, July 11
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit followed-up on her FOIA for relating to Essex Village and PK Management. She is looking for the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan submitted May 26 (still in submitter notification and unavailable for release). I confirmed the period of the submitter notification. I also confirmed the remainder of her requests were shipped to her on June 29 that included the appeal to the January 2017 REAC inspection, the Notice of Default and the "Project Owner's Certification" Survey and Certification form that the project is compliant with HUD's physical condition standards and state and local codes. She has had issues receiving large files before and may not have received the reports/submittals.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on HUD's REAC Inspections including if the inspectors talk to the tenants as well as how much weight are mold/mildew/toxic air issues and bed bugs are given in the inspections. Also, whether inspectors test for mold or if it is just a visual test. The response included the fact that these issues are exigent health and safety issues calling for immediate reaction. I also included extensive information on our bed bug guidance and policies. Melissa followed-up on Wednesday with additional questions concerning inspections.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit made us aware that a meeting had been held between PK Management and the residents of Essex Village Apartments last week and that PK Management said they were looking to sell property to Ernst and Hoss in 60-90 days. She asked if HUD was aware of the meeting and/or sale of the property. We confirmed there was a meeting, but that a sale was not discussed.

Wednesday, July 12
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a new FOIA request related to Essex Village and PK Management. She has requested digital copies of all emails written to and from DJ Lavoy, Lisa Wolfe, Greg Perlman, Jenee McClain-Blankhead, and Carrie Schmidt between the following dates: January 19 and February 2, April 19 and May 3, and May 25 and June 8, 2017. Richmond Field Office will be handling that request.

Thursday, July 13
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a FOIA request related to Essex Village and PK Management. She has requested digital copies of all emails written to and from DJ Lavoy, Lisa Wolfe, Greg Perlman, Jenee MCClain-Bankhead, and Carrie Schmidt between the following dates: January 19 and February 2, April 19 and May 3, and May 25 and June 8, 2017. We have been back and forth clarifying exactly what the reporter is looking for; she has requested any emails in the time periods noted that include information about Essex Village, PK Management, GHC Housing, Melissa Hipolit and WTVR. We are beginning to pull emails in response.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested information on any mold testing conducted at Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. Her request has been forwarded to PK Management for response.

Friday, July 14
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested the last four REAC Inspection scores for the Burton Apartments in Cincinnati, Ohio. The scores include: 04.03.17, 73b*; 07.08.16, 33c*; 08.22.12, 90c and 05.07.08, 84b. Burton Apartments is part of a 727-unit portfolio in Cincinnati owned by affiliates of PE Holdings, the principal of which is Chaim Puretz. The portfolio, which includes Burton Apartments, was placed in a Receivership in a joint action brought by the private lender and the City of Cincinnati on February 1, 2016. Burton Apartments experienced a fire and a collapsed roof due to flooding conditions during the period that PE was in control of the asset. The Receiver, Jodi M. Ridings

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

and her agent, Milhaus Management, have had operational control of the properties since February 1, 2016 and have performed roof repairs and brought fire damaged units back on line. The Receiver also performed other stabilization repairs at the property. This could be an explanation for the change in score (from a failing 33c* to 73b*) as the Receiver did not commence substantial stabilization work at Burton until after July of 2016, but did substantial work after that date.

Friday, July 14
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit and Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong have both submitted requests for the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan for Essex Village Apartments in Henrico County, Va. As expected, the attorney for GHC Housing and PK Management has sent an objection to the release of the media requested materials which include this document. We anticipate a ruling about next steps on July 18.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Brendan King filed the story Essex Village in court over 18 criminal charges and called asking for comment, which we declined.

NBC12 WWBT-TV (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Ashley Monfort filed the story Essex Village owners dodge questions outside courthouse and left a message, also asking for a call-back if able to comment.

Saturday, July 15
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested assistance with an Essex Village resident complaint about (b)(6) Her mother, (b)(6) contacted the reporter about rodent and bed bug infestations and a request for a transfer. PK Management immediately followed-up and (b)(6) apartment is scheduled for extermination.

Monday, July 17
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa Hipolit requested assistance with an Essex Village resident complaint for (b)(6) The new mother with two additional young children has been staying with her sister for the last seven months because of an ongoing rodent infestation. PK Management immediately followed-up and (b)(6) apartment is scheduled for extermination.

Wednesday, July 19
Richmond Times-Dispatch (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Debbie Truong followed-up on her FOIA requesting a copy of the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement Plan for Essex Village in Henrico County, Va. PK Management objected to the release of the document, so the Plan will be unavailable until August 1.

Friday, July 28
WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a FOIA request related to Essex Village and PK Management. She has requested digital copies of all emails written to and from DJ Lavoy, Lisa Wolfe, Greg Perlman, Jenee MCClain-Bankhead, and Carrie Schmidt between the following dates: January 19 and February 2, April 19 and May 3, and May 25 and June 8, 2017. She has requested any emails in the time periods noted that include information about Essex Village, PK Management, GHC Housing, Melissa Hipolit and WTVR. Completed pulling and culling the records; forwarded to Anne Davis, Richmond Field Office FOIA Lead.

Thursday, August 3

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a FOIA request related to Essex Village and PK Management. She has requested digital copies of all emails written to and from DJ Lavoy, Lisa Wolfe, Greg Perlman, Jenee MCClain-Bankhead, and Carrie Schmidt between the following dates: January 19 and February 2, April 19 and May 3, and May 25 and June 8, 2017. She has requested any emails in the time periods noted that include information about Essex Village, PK Management, GHC Housing, Melissa Hipolit and WTVR. Completed the review of and concurred on the final two documents and letter and submitted to Anne Davis, Richmond Field Office FOIA Lead. We anticipate the final FOIA to be shipped late this afternoon or tomorrow.

WTVR-TV CBS6 (Richmond, Va.) Reporter Melissa submitted a FOIA request for the Compliance, Disposition and Enforcement (CDE) Plan for Essex Village Apartments that was received from PK Management. When she inquired about the delivery of that plan, we reshipped a description of the submitter notification process, and that it is a requirement under FOIA. Again, we explained the FOIA is on hold because there were some objections to release of documents raised by the submitter. PK Management has been given until tomorrow COB to present those objections in a way that will give us reason to withhold the documents. We will follow-up with PK Management tomorrow, and in turn, the reporter.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT
WASHINGTON, DC 20410-1000

OFFICE OF CONGRESSIONAL AND
INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS

The Honorable A. Donald McEachin
Member, United States
House of Representatives
110 N. Robinson Street, Suite 401
Richmond, VA 23220-4457

Dear Representative McEachin:

On behalf of Secretary Benjamin S. Carson, Sr., thank you for your interest in Essex Village and your continued concern for its residents. The Department is keenly interested in resolving the issues at the property and shares your desire to achieve the best outcome for the residents of the Essex Village community. Specifically, you made a series of inquiries regarding the village. The HUD team has already responded to a series of email inquiries and had numerous conversations with your staff regarding Essex Village. The Department is pleased to work with you in this manner to address these very important concerns.

Initially, given the general scarcity of affordable housing, the Department's policy is to work with owners, residents, and localities to preserve project based Section 8 contracts whenever possible. If the Section 8 Housing Assistance Payment Contract at Essex Village were to be terminated, without first attempting to rectify the physical deficiencies at the property, those 496 units of affordable housing would be lost to Henrico County forever. In addition, many families residing in the property would be displaced. Preserving affordable housing units strengthens neighborhoods and allows families to remain in the communities they call home. This policy of preservation does not override the owner's obligation to provide decent, safe, and sanitary housing according to the terms of the contract. Nor does it override the tenant's right to live in peaceful enjoyment of that housing. The following information is provided by HUD's Office of Multifamily Housing.

Your letters make specific requests of the Department. You also ask that where your request(s) cannot be met, that the Department provide a detailed explanation and "constructive alternative suggestions for ensuring that current residents of Essex Village have access to homes that afford them a decent quality of life." In your letter of May 25, 2017, you requested a call from HUD with your staff and Henrico County officials. Most of your requests resulting from the June 7, 2017, conference call with HUD staff were addressed at that time, and this letter largely reiterates the information provided in that call. HUD has numbered and listed each of your requests below and provided a detailed response.

The following responds to your letter dated, June 13, 2017:

Request 1: Receive a copy of PK Management's report on needed repairs at Essex Village sent to HUD in May 2017.

Response: When Essex Village received a failing REAC inspection score, HUD sent the owner a Notice of Default letter requiring that it perform a 100 percent unit inspection and submit a plan to address all physical deficiencies at the property. HUD reviewed and accepted the owner's plan, which was received on May 25, 2017 (Refer to enclosure #1).

Request 2: Confirmation of the date of HUD's next REAC inspection at Essex Village, which we understand will happen late July/early August.

Response: The date of the next REAC inspection is August 8, 2017.

Request 3: A plan to close Essex Village and provide vouchers to residents as soon as possible.

Response: As discussed on our June 7, 2017, conference call, after the failing REAC inspection from January 2017, the owner was given a Notice of Default and an opportunity to cure the deficiencies. The repairs are expected to be completed by July 31, 2017. In accordance with this process, if the owner fails the second REAC inspection, the Department will take enforcement action, which can include requiring a change in management; encouraging a sale of the property; or abating the Section 8 subsidy. If the determination is made to abate and terminate the subsidy, the residents will receive vouchers.

If the REAC inspection reflects that the owner is maintaining the physical condition of the property to standard, HUD will continue to monitor the conditions at the property and work with Henrico County officials to ensure that ownership continues to meet its obligations. As discussed during our conference call, if Henrico County condemns the units or revokes the rental license, the owner will be considered in violation of the Section 8 contract. This will result in HUD terminating the contract and making vouchers available to the residents.

Request 4: Allow Henrico County officials to join HUD for future inspections of Essex Village.

Response: HUD cannot accept this request because the HUD inspection process and standards of the locality are different than REAC's. Conducting two different inspections at the same time can present confusion for the resident, owner, and the inspectors. As we discussed on our call and provided in our written responses to earlier questions posed by your office, the Department's policy is to allow only property participants (owner, management, resident) to accompany the REAC inspector. HUD's policy minimizes the number of people for a good reason: Too many people on inspections can become distracting to the inspector as well to residents. In addition, the policy also protects the tenants' right to privacy by ensuring that physical inspections are not viewed as an intrusion into tenants' homes. Many tenants take issue if people other than the property's representative are present. This is a long-standing policy in existence since REAC's inception.

HUD will continue to work with the County and the owner on resolution of the outstanding code violations.

Request 5: Terminate or abate HUD's contracts with PK Management at all properties.

Response: At present, Essex Village is the only PK Management affiliated property that is experiencing a default. Therefore, HUD has no grounds to terminate contracts at other affiliated properties. To do so would violate the respective property business agreements and be contrary to our mission of preserving scarce affordable housing resources across the country. As was discussed on the call, the Department monitors all of its 30,000 properties using a variety of sources in addition to the REAC inspection. HUD will provide closer scrutiny to the 171 PK affiliated properties, with particular attention to the Virginia-based assets.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Request 6: Please provide constructive alternative suggestions for addressing Essex Village.

Response: The Department shares your goal of ensuring that all Americans, including residents of Essex Village and all HUD-affiliated housing, have access to safe, decent, affordable housing. As stated above, HUD also has the goal of preserving limited housing stock. Therefore, HUD cannot abate the contract without first attempting to improve the physical condition of this property. Currently, Henrico County administers approximately 250 vouchers. Given the significantly rising rents in nearly every city in the country, there is concern that a significant increase in vouchers may not be easily accommodated by the existing units in the county. HUD is committed to working with you to find the best solution. HUD works with local stakeholders to balance the needs of residents, communities, and the due process protections that are basic to all property participants. HUD will continue to ensure that our owner and management partners adhere to their business agreements and provide decent, safe, and sanitary housing. If they do not, the Department will enforce compliance or will terminate our relationship and provide alternative housing for residents.

In addition to the specific actions HUD is taking with Essex Village as the federal agency charged with ensuring the potentially competing goals of preservation and compliance, the Department developed a series of initiatives to more quickly identify troubled properties; enhance enforcement actions; and improve our communication concerning such properties with residents, communities, and local governments and can share them with you and your staff.

The following responds to your letter dated, June 22, 2017:

Request 7: You referenced general concerns regarding the property, specifically the sewage system.

Response: The owner/management reported a sewer line camera inspection was completed by Dillon Plumbing, a local third party plumbing and sewer company, over the course of two weeks in late May and early June. The final written report was due on June 16, 2017, but was delayed. To expedite the receipt of the report, the videos were forwarded to UIS Engineering, who provided an initial response on Wednesday June 22, 2017. The initial report was a review of 1,000 lineal feet of the lines.

Verbally, Dillon Plumbing conveyed to County inspectors that no material damage was noted in their review of the camera videos. The cause of the backups was primarily due to improper disposal of grease, pampers, baby wipes, etc. Dillon Plumbing also noted that the lines were previously obstructed by bottles and other large objects. Preliminary results of the report from UIS show that over 63 percent of the lines were clear and that the 36 percent of apparent obstruction was grease build up. Management provided a notice detailing items that are not flushable and proper grease disposal instructions in May and this notice will be redistributed and included in the July Newsletter (Refer to enclosure #2). Management has a contract to jet the lines quarterly (Refer to enclosure #3).

The owner/management reported that recent backups (including the one highlighted by the media over the Memorial Day weekend) were due to grease, pampers, and wipes. They have no record of recent incidents of the backup of actual raw sewage. Bill Mohr, Facilities Director for PK

Management, was on site at Essex and personally observed one of the backups in question at the cleanout. He reported that the backup consisted of clear waste water (no feces or urine).

Request 8: You noted residents stated they were told not to contact the County and that PK staff did not respond to requests for assistance. PK Management reports the following:

Response: According to management, residents have not been told not to contact the County and encouraged to contact the leasing office (during the business day) and to use the emergency after hours service (after business hours) to report maintenance issues. In addition, the contact information and grievance protocol for Navigate Housing, the Contract Administrator for Essex, was redistributed to residents and reposted in the leasing office.

Last week, management instituted a customer service email where residents can voice concerns about repair quality, maintenance promptness, or any other management concern. This email is monitored and goes directly to the centralized Customer Service center located at the PK Corporate office.

Management is also aware that recently, some residents voiced that calls to the emergency after hours' line went unanswered. To address this, management added a second "on-call" maintenance technician. Each shift will now include one HVAC technician at all times, and the technicians are authorized to use 3rd party HVAC contractors, as needed, to expedite service.

These customer service enhancements were reiterated via hand delivered tenant notices, as well as, during the resident meetings held the week of June 19, 2017. (Refer to enclosures #4).

The Department encourages residents to contact management first, then the Navigate Housing, then contract administrator, and then HUD staff.

Request 9: You requested a list of all properties in Virginia's 4th Congressional district with failing REAC scores and the names of the owner operators of those housing complexes.

Response: The list of properties is enclosure #5.

I hope this information is helpful.

Sincerely,

Aaron Santa Anna
Acting General Deputy Assistant Secretary
for Congressional and Intergovernmental Relations

RE: Essex Village Apartments – VA36-H027-196
REAC Inspection CDE

Dear Ms. Anastasi:

As a follow up to our original submission dated April 28, 2017, please accept this as our final CDE and improvement plan for Essex Village Apartments.

EHS

All EHS items noted on the REAC inspection were addressed and documented to HUD on January 13, 2017 (see attached report). In addition, from the 100% unit inspection survey, all items of this type have been addressed.

Interior Units

Total Point Loss Units - (b)(6)

As previously noted, following the receipt of the final REAC score of 51, a 100% unit inspection was conducted. Attached please find the revised CDE report including completed service requests.

Management utilized several third-party contractors including flooring contractors, plumbers, HVAC contractors, carpenters, and exterminators, to address unit deficiencies.

Unless noted, repair work has been completed. Any open items will be addressed by July 31, 2017. Due to the number of units at Essex, as well as the comprehensive nature of this inspection, management will be revisiting units and ensuring that 3rd party contractor work as well as on-site work has been completed up to UPCS standards. We expect this secondary review to be completed by July 31, 2017.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Exterior

Fencing and Gates – Point Loss – 2.23
All fencing and gates that were damaged were repaired. Some sections are being reviewed for replacement and will be done by July 31, 2017 if needed.

Gutters/Downspouts/Soffits/Fascia – Point Loss – 2.47
All gutters, downspouts, soffits, and fascia noted on the REAC inspection report have been repaired/replaced as needed. The entire property was surveyed and repairs to gutters, downspouts, soffits and fascia were made by our 3rd party contractors on site.

Siding – Point Loss – 3.63
All siding has been repaired and is up to UPCS standards, however, the owner has approved to begin siding replacements over the next 60 days, beginning with the 100 Series. We anticipate that this first series of 5 buildings will be completed by July 31, 2017.

Common Areas – Point Loss – 1.08/Stair Repairs (Breezeways) – Point Loss - .01
Common Areas have been inspected and repairs have been made as needed including in the office, community room, laundry rooms, and breezeways. All breezeways have been power washed and all several stair risers have been repaired and stairs replaced as needed. All common areas will continue to be inspected weekly and repairs will be made as needed.

Grounds (Landscaping) Overgrown Vegetation – Point Loss- 5.57
Landscaping upgrades have been extensive since March 1, 2017. Specifically mulch, shrubs, and other plantings have been added. In addition, tree trimming and bush trimming have been completed to address any areas of overgrown vegetation. Landscaping and the monitoring of vegetation will be ongoing and continuous.

Grounds (Landscaping) Erosion – Point Loss – 7.43
Erosion has been addressed by seeding and straw coverings. This will be ongoing with major areas addressed by July 31, 2017.

Playgrounds – Point Loss – 5.57
All playgrounds have been repaired and swing seats replaced. Playgrounds will be monitored daily and any needed repairs will be addressed immediately.

Paving – Point Loss - 0
No deductions related to paving were made on the REAC report. However, the owner authorized a full seal coating and striping of all lots which will occur on May 31, 2017.

Extermination (Infestation) – Point Loss – 4.20
Service has been transferred to Terminix. All units on the property have been treated during a "cleanout" process. Terminix is now contracted for the ongoing service as well. Cleanouts for both roaches and mice have been completed. Mice exclusion and extraction will continue as needed. Units will be treated a minimum of four times per year – more as needed.
Note – the point loss in Extermination is also reflected in the total unit interior point deduction above.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Other Items

Sewer Backups – No point deductions related to Sewer backups were made on the REAC report. However, this issue was discussed during the meeting held on March 29, 2017. To address this issue, all lines were jetted during the first week of May 2017. This procedure will be continued, as needed, but is planned for a minimum of twice annually. In addition, the owner has agreed to conduct a camera inspection of all lines. The latter is planned for the first week of June.

Balconies – All balconies were inspected on May 25, 2017. Repairs and replacement will be made by third party contractors as needed.

Refuse Disposal – It was determined that the number of refuse pickups was not adequate. Management increased the refuse service from:

- Old Service: 20-8 yd. dumpsters on site
  4-8yds emptied 3x week
  12- 8yds emptied 2x week
  4-8yds emptied 1x week (senior side)

- New Service: 20 - 8yd dumpsters on site
  16-8 cubic yard dumpsters each emptied 3x week and the 4-8yds emptied 1x week (senior side)

Security

Guard Service - Security was discussed during the meeting held with Management and HUD on March 29, 2017. Since that meeting security guard service at Essex is now setup on a 16 hour day schedule utilizing 2 off-duty Henrico Police Officers per shift.

Day Shift will operate from approximately 12:00 pm – 4:00 pm daily.
Evening Shifts will operate from approximately 2:00 pm – 2am daily.
(7 days per week)

Officers will utilize marked police vehicles while on duty for mobile patrols, and also be spending most of their shifts on foot patrol when weather permits.

Essex also has a HPD sub-station "office" where officers can take breaks from the elements and do any report writing. Other On-Duty Police often do foot patrols with the Essex officers on a regular basis. Officers will enforce all local and state laws, including but not limited to: Trespassing, Curfew Violation, Loud Music, Domestic Calls, Firearm Violations, Alcohol/Drug Violations, etc. Reports will be emailed to our distribution group daily for review.

Cameras – Currently, the property has a camera system covering certain areas of heavy traffic. This system will be augmented over the next 90 days, by August 31, 2017 to have additional coverage in all three series (100, 200, and 300), as well as on the senior side.

Customer Service/Nuisance Calls

Management has requested the most recent log of nuisance calls from the County and will follow up with Colonel Middleton on this matter. In the meantime, management has reiterated its grievance procedure to the residents as well as all after-hour's emergency numbers, service request procedures, etc.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Tenant Relations

In an effort to improve tenant relations, management conducted one on one meetings with tenants in April to discuss the House Rules and to address concerns.

A new Property Manager was hired on March 27, 2017 and will ensure follow up meetings are being scheduled to check in with residents, discuss any concerns they have and to solicit constructive criticism and feedback from the residents regarding the recent repairs and the management team in general.

Social Services

Essex currently has one full-time Social Service Coordinator. Management is in the process of hiring another Service Coordinator who will be assigned to augment services specifically for the children who reside at Essex. We look to have this new position in place by July 15, 2017. In the meantime, Essex will continue with a robust services and programming schedule.

If you have any questions regarding this matter, please contact me at (216) 472-1870x115.

Sincerely,

Jenee McClain-Bankhead

RE: Grease and Bathroom Toilet Disposal

To all residents:

This is a REMINDER of proper disposal of oil and grease and what should NOT be flushed down your bathroom toilet.

Don't Forget – Proper Methods for Disposing of Oil & Grease in your Home…

- DO Use an old coffee can or tin can as a grease collector.
- DO Pour greasy or oily food waste into the container, NOT down the drain or garbage disposal.
- DO Freeze or cool animal fats before disposing in the trash.
- DO Mix liquid vegetable fats with an absorbent material such as kitty litter or coffee grounds in a sealable container before disposing in the trash.
- DO NOT Pour oil or grease down the garbage disposal or sink.

Bathroom:

- Always flush your toilet after every use and NEVER place objects in the toilet that cannot dissolve in water, e.g., paper towels, sanitary pads/tampons, baby wipes, wash cloths, diapers or products such as Depends.

PROTECTING THE ENVIRONMENT IS EVERYONE'S ROLE!!

If you have any concerns or have questions on how to dispose of oil and grease or questions on what can be flushed down the toilet, please contact the management office at 804-329-5820.

Thank you,

DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY

Coast Guard

[Docket No. USCG–2017–0124]

Information Collection Request to Office of Management and Budget; OMB Control Number: 1625–0057

AGENCY: Coast Guard, DHS.

ACTION: Sixty-day notice requesting comments.

SUMMARY: In compliance with the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995, the U.S. Coast Guard intends to submit an Information Collection Request (ICR) to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs (OIRA), requesting a Reinstatement, without change, of a previously approved collection for which approval has expired for the following collection of information: 1625–0057, Small Passenger Vessels—Title 46 Subchapters K and T without change. Our ICR describes the information we seek to collect from the public. Before submitting this ICR to OIRA, the Coast Guard is inviting comments as described below.

DATES: Comments must reach the Coast Guard on or before October 6, 2017.

ADDRESSES: You may submit comments identified by Coast Guard docket number [USCG–2017–0124] to the Coast Guard using the Federal eRulemaking Portal at http://www.regulations.gov. See the ''Public participation and request for comments'' portion of the SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION section for further instructions on submitting comments.

A copy of the ICR is available through the docket on the Internet at http://www.regulations.gov. Additionally, copies are available from: Commandant (CG–612), Attn: Paperwork Reduction Act Manager, U.S. Coast Guard, 2703 Martin Luther King Jr. Ave. SE., Stop 7710, Washington, DC 20593–7710.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Contact Mr. Anthony Smith, Office of Information Management, telephone 202–475–3532, or fax 202–372–8405, for questions on these documents.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Public Participation and Request for Comments

This Notice relies on the authority of the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995; 44 U.S.C. Chapter 35, as amended. An ICR is an application to OIRA seeking the approval, extension, or renewal of a Coast Guard collection of information (Collection). The ICR contains information describing the Collection's purpose, the Collection's likely burden on the affected public, an explanation of the necessity of the Collection, and other important information describing the Collection. There is one ICR for each Collection.

The Coast Guard invites comments on whether this ICR should be granted based on the Collection being necessary for the proper performance of Departmental functions. In particular, the Coast Guard would appreciate comments addressing: (1) The practical utility of the Collection; (2) the accuracy of the estimated burden of the Collection; (3) ways to enhance the quality, utility, and clarity of information subject to the Collection; and (4) ways to minimize the burden of the Collection on respondents, including the use of automated collection techniques or other forms of information technology. In response to your comments, we may revise this ICR or decide not to seek an extension of approval for the Collection. We will consider all comments and material received during the comment period.

We encourage you to respond to this request by submitting comments and related materials. Comments must contain the OMB Control Number of the ICR and the docket number of this request, [USCG–2017–0124], and must be received by October 6, 2017.

Submitting Comments

We encourage you to submit comments through the Federal eRulemaking Portal at http://www.regulations.gov. If your material cannot be submitted using http://www.regulations.gov, contact the person in the FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT section of this document for alternate instructions. Documents mentioned in this notice, and all public comments, are in our online docket at http://www.regulations.gov and can be viewed by following that Web site's instructions. Additionally, if you go to the online docket and sign up for email alerts, you will be notified when comments are posted.

We accept anonymous comments. All comments received will be posted without change to http://www.regulations.gov and will include any personal information you have provided. For more about privacy and the docket, you may review a Privacy Act notice regarding the Federal Docket Management System in the March 24, 2005, issue of the Federal Register (70 FR 15086).

Information Collection Request

Title: Small Passenger Vessels—Title 46 Subchapters K and T.

OMB Control Number: 1625–0057.

Summary: The information requirements are necessary for the proper administration and enforcement of the program on safety of commercial vessels as it affects small passenger vessels. The requirements affect small passenger vessels (under 100 gross tons) that carry more than 6 passengers.

Need: Under the authority of 46 U.S.C. 3305 and 3306, the Coast Guard prescribed regulations for the design, construction, alteration, repair and operation of small passenger vessels to secure the safety of individuals and property on board. The Coast Guard uses the information in this collection to ensure compliance with the requirements.

Forms: CG–841, Certificate of Inspection; CG–854, Temporary Certificate of Inspection; CG–948, Permit to Proceed to Another Port for Repairs; CG–949, Permit to Carry Excursion Party; CG–3752, Application for Inspection of U.S. Vessel; CG–5256, U.S. Coast Guard Inspected Small Passenger Vessel.

Respondents: Owners and operators of small passenger vessels.

Frequency: On occasion.

Hour Burden Estimate: The estimated burden has decreased from 399,420 hours to 397,124 hours a year due to a decrease in the estimated annual number of respondents.

Authority: The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995; 44 U.S.C. Chapter 35, as amended.

Dated: August 1, 2017.

Marilyn L. Scott-Perez,

U.S. Coast Guard, Chief, Office of Information Management.

*The allocation amounts for Pub. L. 115-3 column include amounts announced by the Department on May 18, 2017.

Each of the public laws identified above provides CDBG–DR funds for necessary expenses for activities authorized under title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (HCDA) related to disaster relief, long-term recovery, restoration of infrastructure and housing, and economic revitalization in the most impacted and distressed areas resulting from a qualifying major disaster declared by the President pursuant to the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act of 1974 (Stafford Act) (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.).

CDBG–DR grants under each appropriation are governed by one or more Federal Register notices that contain the requirements, applicable waivers, and alternative requirements that apply to the use of the funds. Congress requires that HUD publish waivers and alternative requirements in the Federal Register.

This Federal Register notice sets out the requirements, waivers, and alternative requirements that govern the funds appropriated under Public Law 115–31. Throughout this notice, references to Federal Register notices will be to the date the notices were published as noted in Table 1.

Under Public Law 115–31, Congress appropriated $400 million in CDBG–DR funding to address remaining unmet needs (as defined by HUD) arising from qualifying major disasters that occurred in 2015 and 2016, and for qualifying major disasters that occur in 2017 or later, until the funds are fully allocated. Congress required that HUD, in distributing the $400 million, use the allocation methodologies identified in June 17, 2016, and January 18, 2017, Federal Register notices for disasters occurring in 2015 and 2016, respectively.

Table 1, under the column labeled Public Law 115–31, reflects the allocation of funds appropriated by that act for qualifying disasters in 2015 and 2016 (inclusive of the amounts announced on May 18, 2017). In HUD's June 17, 2016, Federal Register notice, HUD described the allocation and applicable waivers and alternative requirements, relevant statutory and regulatory requirements, grant award process, criteria for Action Plan approval, and eligible disaster recovery activities for the qualifying 2015 disasters. Grantees receiving an allocation of funds under this Federal Register notice for qualifying 2015 disasters are subject to the authority and conditions of Public Law 114–113 and the requirements, waivers, and alternative requirements provided in the June 17, 2016, notice.

In HUD's November 21, 2016, and January 18, 2017, Federal Register notices, HUD described the allocation and applicable waivers and alternative requirements, relevant statutory and regulatory requirements, grant award process, criteria for Action Plan approval, and eligible disaster recovery activities for the qualifying 2016 disasters. Grantees receiving allocations of funds under these Federal Register notices for qualifying 2016 disasters are subject to the authority and conditions of Public Law 114–223 and 114–254 and the requirements, waivers and alternative requirements provided in the November 21, 2016, and January 18, 2017, Federal Register notices.

HUD is allocating the funds for the 2015 and 2016 disasters based on updated data HUD received from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), and the Small Business Administration (SBA). HUD's allocations match the difference between HUD's 100 percent estimate of the serious unmet needs for repair in most impacted counties after taking into consideration other resources, including insurance, FEMA, SBA and the amounts previously allocated. HUD's methodology for allocation as specified in the June 17, 2016, and January 18, 2017, notices does not include additional funds for resilience activities. Detailed explanations of HUD's allocation methodologies for qualifying disasters from 2015 and 2016, are provided at Appendix A in the June 17, 2016 notice and Appendix A of the January 18, 2017 notice, respectively.

TABLE 2—QUALIFYING 2015 AND 2016 DISASTERS AND "MOST IMPACTED AND DISTRESSED" AREAS

FEMA disaster No.	Grantee	Minimum amount that must be expended for recovery in the HUD-identified "most impacted and distressed" areas
2015 Disasters
4241	Lexington County (Urban County), SC	Lexington County Urban County Jurisdiction ($5,038,000).
4241	Columbia, SC	Columbia ($6,166,000).
4241	Richland County, SC	Richland County Urban County Jurisdiction ($7,254,000).
4241	State of South Carolina	Charleston, Dorchester, Florence, Georgetown and Clarendon Counties * ($23,896,800).
4223, 4245	Houston, TX	City of Houston ($20,532,000).
4223, 4245	San Marcos, TX	City of San Marcos ($8,714,000).
4223, 4245, 4272	State of Texas	Harris, Hays, Hidalgo, and Travis Counties ($12,511,200).
2016 Disasters
4263, 4277	State of Louisiana	East Baton Rouge, Livingston, Ascension, Tangipahoa, Ouachita, Lafayette, Lafayette, Vermilion, Acadia, Washington, and St. Tammany Parishes ($41,148,000).
4273	State of West Virginia	Kanawha, Greenbrier, Clay, and Nicholas Counties  ($36,476,000).
4266, 4269, 4272	State of Texas	Harris, Newton, Montgomery, Fort Bend, and Brazoria Counties ($13,304,800).
4285	State of North Carolina	Robeson, Cumberland, Edgecombe, and Wayne Counties ($30,380,800).
4286	State of South Carolina	Marion and Horry Counties ($23,824,800).
4280, 4283	State of Florida	St. Johns County ($47,468,000).

* Based on data presented by the grantee, HUD has approved the addition of Clarendon County to the 2015 South Carolina "most impacted and distressed" areas.

 Based on data presented by the grantee, HUD has approved the addition of Clay and Nicholas Counties to the 2016 West Virginia "most impacted and distressed" areas.

Use of funds for all grantees is limited to unmet recovery needs from the major disasters identified in Table 2. Table 2 shows the HUD-identified "most impacted and distressed" areas impacted by the identified disasters. At least 80 percent of the total funds provided to each grantee under this notice must address unmet needs within the HUD-identified "most impacted and distressed" areas, as identified in Table 2. Grantees may spend the remaining 20 percent in the HUD-identified areas or areas the grantee determines to be "most impacted and distressed."

B. Use of Funds

Public Law 115–31 requires funds to be used only for specific disaster recovery related purposes. This allocation provides funds to 2015 and 2016 CDBG–DR grantees for authorized disaster recovery efforts. Grantees allocated funds under this notice for 2015 and 2016 disasters must submit a substantial Action Plan Amendment as outlined below.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

C. Grant Amendment Process

To receive funds allocated by this notice, 2015 and 2016 grantees (listed in Table 1) must submit a substantial Action Plan Amendment to their approved Action Plan and meet the following requirements:

- Grantee must consult with affected citizens, stakeholders, local governments and public housing authorities to determine updates to its needs assessment;
- Grantee must amend its Action Plan to update its needs assessment, modify or create new activities, or reprogram funds. Each amendment must be highlighted, or otherwise identified within the context of the entire Action Plan. The beginning of every Action Plan Amendment must include a: (1) Section that identifies exactly what content is being added, deleted, or changed; (2) chart or table that clearly illustrates where funds are coming from and where they are moving to; and (3) a revised budget allocation table that reflects the entirety of all funds;
- Grantee must publish a substantial amendment to its previously approved Action Plan for Disaster Recovery prominently (see section VI.A.4.a of the November 21, 2016, notice and section VI.A.3.a of the June 17, 2016, notice) on the grantee's official Web site for no less than 14 calendar days. The manner of publication must include prominent posting on the grantee's official Web site and must afford citizens, affected local governments, and other interested parties a reasonable opportunity to examine the amendment's contents and provide feedback;
- Grantee must respond to public comment and submit its substantial Action Plan Amendment to HUD no later than 90 days after the effective date of this notice;
- HUD will review the substantial Action Plan Amendment within 45 days from date of receipt and determine whether to approve the Amendment per criteria identified in this notice and all applicable prior notices;
- HUD will send an Action Plan Amendment approval letter, revised grant conditions (may not be applicable to all grantees), and an amended unsigned grant agreement to the grantee. If the substantial Amendment is not approved, a letter will be sent identifying its deficiencies; the grantee must then re-submit the Amendment within 45 days of the notification letter;
- Grantee must ensure that the HUD approved substantial Action Plan Amendment (and original Action Plan) is posted prominently on its official Web Site;
- Grantee must enter the activities from its published Action Plan Amendment into the Disaster Recovery Grant Reporting (DRGR) system and submit the updated DRGR Action Plan to HUD within the system;
- Grantee must sign and return the grant agreement to HUD;
- HUD will sign the grant agreement and revise the grantee's line of credit amount;
- Grantee may draw down funds from the line of credit after the Responsible Entity completes applicable environmental review(s) pursuant to 24 CFR part 58, or adopts another Federal agency's environmental review where authorized under provisions incorporated by reference in Public Law 115–31, and, as applicable, receives a response from HUD or the state that approves the grantee's Request for Release of Funds and certification;
- Grantee must amend its published Action Plan to include its projection of expenditures and outcomes within 90 days of the Action Plan Amendment approval.

D. Applicable Rules, Statutes, Waivers, and Alternative Requirements

Awards under this notice will be subject to the waivers and alternative requirements provided in the notices governing the award of CDBG–DR funds for 2015 and 2016disasters, as identified in Table 1. These waivers and alternative requirements provide additional flexibility in program design and implementation to support full and swift recovery following the disasters, while also ensuring that statutory requirements are met. Grantees may request additional waivers and alternative requirements from the Department as needed to address specific needs related to their recovery activities. Waivers and alternative requirements are effective five days after they are published in the Federal Register.

E. Duration of Funding

Public Law 115–31 provides that these funds will remain available until expended. However, consistent with 31 U.S.C. 1555 and OMB Circular A–11, if the Secretary or the President determines that the purposes for which the appropriation has been made have been carried out and no disbursements have been made against the appropriation for two consecutive fiscal years, any remaining balance will be made unavailable for obligation or expenditure. Consistent with the June 17, 2016, November 21, 2016, and January 18, 2017 notices, the provisions at 24 CFR 570.494 and 24 CFR 570.902 regarding timely distribution of funds are waived and replaced with alternative requirements under this notice. Grantees must expend 100 percent of their allocation of CDBG–DR funds on eligible activities within 6 years of HUD's execution of the grant agreement.

II. Waivers and Alternative Requirements for CDBG–DR Funds Appropriated by Public Law 114–223, 114–254 and 115–31 (Applicable Only to the State of Louisiana)

This section of the notice provides a waiver for the state of Louisiana, which has received CDBG–DR allocations pursuant to Public Law 114–223, 114–254 and 115–31. The state of Louisiana was allocated $1,656,972,000 in CDBG–DR funds under Public Law 114–223 and 114–254 and HUD has approved the state's use of these CDBG–DR funds for three main recovery programs: Housing (86 percent), economic development (4 percent), and infrastructure (6 percent). These programs were developed to address the most urgent and significant unmet needs of those areas impacted by the eligible 2016 disasters. This notice allocates $51,435,000 to Louisiana pursuant to Public Law 115–31, bringing the total amount allocated to the state for 2016 disasters to $1,708,407,000.

1. Waiver of the 70 percent overall benefit requirement (State of Louisiana only). The overall benefit requirement set by the HCDA requires that 70 percent of the aggregate of the grantee's CDBG program's funds be used to support activities benefitting low- and moderate-income persons. It can be difficult for grantees working in disaster recovery to meet the overall benefit test, because disasters do not always affect low- and moderate-income areas and, therefore, this requirement can in some cases limit grantees' ability to assist the most damaged areas.

The November 21, 2016, notice maintained the 70 percent overall benefit requirement for all grantees receiving funds under these public laws, but provided the state of Louisiana and all other grantees with additional flexibility to request a lower overall benefit requirement. Specifically, that notice allows a grantee to request to further reduce its overall benefit requirement if it submitted a justification that, at a minimum: (a) Identifies the planned activities that meet the needs of its low- and moderate-income population; (b) describes proposed activity(ies) and/or program(s) that will be affected by the alternative requirement, including their proposed location(s) and role(s) in the grantee's long-term disaster recovery plan; (c) describes how the activities/programs identified in (b) prevent the grantee from meeting the 70 percent requirement; and (d) demonstrates that low- and moderate-income (LMI) persons' disaster-related needs have been sufficiently met and that the needs of non–LMI persons or areas are disproportionately greater, and that the jurisdiction lacks other resources to serve them.

The state of Louisiana submitted a request to establish a lower overall benefit requirement based on the above criteria. In its request, the state contends that out of the 57,600 households that suffered major or severe damage during the flooding in 2016, only 44 percent were low-and and moderate-income (LMI) persons. The State's request notes that due to the persistent flooding that occurs in these communities, offering assistance to all households in the areas affected by the storm, and not just LMI households, will help the impacted neighborhoods with critical rebuilding needs.

Accordingly, the state will target its CDBG–DR funds to households with major or severe damage that did not have flood insurance at the time of the storms (36,510 households). The state indicates that 53 percent of those households qualify as LMI, and that 65 percent of the funds for the state's homeowner program will benefit those LMI households. The state also estimates that 100 percent of its housing rental funds will benefit LMI households, and 50 percent of the funds allocated for infrastructure and economic development activities will also meet the LMI national objective. The state designed its program so that those in greatest need are provided with the greatest level of assistance, by covering 100 percent of unmet needs for households earning less than 120 percent of area median income (AMI) and covering 50 percent of unmet needs for households above 120 percent of AMI. This approach prioritizes the unmet needs of LMI households and encourages higher income households to leverage personal or private funds.

To enable the state to undertake the activities it has deemed most critical for its recovery, and to ensure that LMI households are sufficiently served and/or assisted, HUD is granting a waiver and alternative requirement to reduce the overall benefit requirement from 70 percent to not less than 55 percent of the state's allocation of CDBG–DR funds. This means that the state must use at least 55 percent of its CDBG–DR allocations under Public Law 114–223, 114–254 and 115–31 to benefit LMI households (or not less than $939,623,850.00).

Based on the analysis submitted by the state, the Secretary finds a compelling need for this reduction due to the circumstances outlined in the state's request. In particular, HUD notes that the areas most damaged by the storms have limited LMI populations; that all of the state's recovery programs will have some component that will specifically benefit LMI households; that the persistent nature of flooding has led the state to focus on the importance of rebuilding communities in a holistic manner; and that the state will prioritize the unmet needs of LMI households in its homeowner recovery programs. HUD does not see evidence that reduction to the 50 percent level sought by the state is necessary given its approved program design and early data with respect to its applicant pools. HUD, however, does advise the state to maintain its current program design and targeting strategy to ensure that projected LMI benefit levels are achieved and the state continues to demonstrate that low- and moderate-income persons' disaster-related needs have been sufficiently met.

This is a limited waiver modifying 42 U.S.C. 5301(c), 42 U.S.C. 5304(b)(3)(A), 24 CFR 570.484, and 570.200(a)(3) only to the extent necessary to reduce the low- and moderate-income overall benefit requirement that the state of Louisiana must meet when carrying out activities identified in its approved action from 70 percent to not less than 55 percent of the state's allocations of CDBG–DR funds under Public Law 114–223, 114–254 and 115–31.

2. Waiver of Section 414 of the Stafford Act, 42 U.S.C. 5181 (State of Louisiana only). The state of Louisiana has requested a waiver of section 414 of the Stafford Act, as amended, for rehabilitation or reconstruction activities. This notice grants the State's request and specifies alternative requirements.

Section 414 of the Stafford Act (42 U.S.C. 5181) provides that ''Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no person otherwise eligible for any kind of replacement housing payment under the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act of 1970 (Pub. L. 91–646) [42 U.S.C. 4601 et seq.] [''URA''] shall be denied such eligibility as a result of his being unable, because of a major disaster as determined by the President, to meet the occupancy requirements set by [the URA]''. Accordingly, tenants displaced from their homes as a result of the identified disaster and who would have otherwise been displaced as a direct result of any acquisition, rehabilitation, or demolition, of real property for a federally assisted project or program may become eligible for a replacement housing payment notwithstanding their inability to meet occupancy requirements prescribed in the URA.

Section 414 of the Stafford Act (including its implementing regulation at 49 CFR 24.403(d)(1)), is waived to the extent that it would apply to the CDBG–DR funded rehabilitation and reconstruction activities undertaken by the state of Louisiana, or its subrecipients, for its grants under Public Law 114–223, Public Law 114–254 and Public Law 115–31; provided that the activities were not planned, approved, or otherwise underway prior to the disaster.

The Department has surveyed other federal agencies' interpretation and implementation of Section 414 and found varying views and strategies for long-term, post-disaster projects involving the acquisition, rehabilitation, or demolition of disaster-damaged housing. Under the CDBG–DR supplemental appropriations, the Secretary has the authority to waive or specify alternative requirements for any provision of any statute or regulation that the Secretary administers in connection with the obligation by the Secretary or the use by the recipient of these funds. The Department, in special cases, has previously granted a waiver and provided alternative requirements of Section 414 to CDBG–DR grantees, including the Gulf States impacted by disasters in 2005 and 2008 (see 72 FR 48804) and the 2011 floods in the city of Minot, North Dakota (see 79 FR 60490).

The severe floods of 2016 damaged Louisiana's affordable rental housing stock. According to the State, approximately 28,470 rental units were damaged by the floods, resulting in lower vacancies, increased rental rates and further exacerbating the housing cost burden among low- and moderate-income renters. Many of the damaged rental housing units have since been vacated by tenants who have found permanent housing elsewhere.

The state of Louisiana's CDBG–DR Action Plan for recovery from the 2016 floods identifies this rental housing need and contains several programs geared toward the repair and increase of the affordable rental housing stock by using CDBG–DR funds to reconstruct or rehabilitate rental units that were damaged by the floods and to create new rental housing by providing funding for multi-family developments.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Existing CDBG–DR funding is only sufficient to bring less than six percent of disaster-impacted rental units into decent, safe, and sanitary condition. With a potential pool of 1,500 units eligible for rehabilitation or reconstruction, a strict interpretation of Section 414 of the Stafford Act and 49 CFR 24.403(d)(1) would pose a significant administrative burden and add delays to achieving overall program goals within the timeframe set forth by the applicable notices governing the use of the CDBG–DR funds. Additionally, the State has demonstrated that replacement housing payments for persons initially displaced by the disaster will reduce funds available for improving long-term housing affordability and sustainability.

The State has identified a relatively small population of households currently in need of continued temporary housing assistance of some form related to the flooding events, and the State's CDBG–DR Action Plan attempts to addresses this need by funding programs designed to assist the needs of persons who are homeless or at risk of becoming homeless due to the 2016 floods.

The Department's basis for this waiver and alternative requirements are unique to the State of Louisiana as documented in its request to the Department. The Department has considered the State's request and determined that good cause exists for a waiver and alternative requirements and that such waiver and alternative requirements are not inconsistent with the overall purposes of title I of the HCD Act.

1. The State's proposal maximizes its ability to increase the overall supply of affordable rental units. Such units will have affordability requirements for low-income persons.

2. The waiver will simplify the administration of the disaster recovery process and reduce the administrative burden associated with a strict interpretation of Stafford Act Section 414 requirements on the potential pool of 1,500 units eligible for rehabilitation or reconstruction.

3. This waiver does not apply to persons that meet the occupancy requirements to receive a replacement housing payment under the URA nor does it apply to persons displaced by other HUD-funded disaster recovery programs or projects. Such persons' eligibility for relocation assistance and payments under the URA is not impacted.

Due to the specific circumstances of Louisiana's recovery process, the Department is providing a waiver of Section 414 of the Stafford Act and its implementing regulation at 49 CFR 24.403(d)(1), and establishing alternative requirements. For rehabilitation or reconstruction activities in support of bringing damaged rental units back into productive use, the State must adhere to the alternative requirements specified in this notice.

For tenants that have vacated housing units damaged by the 2016 floods, the State of Louisiana must:

1. Establish a publicly available re-housing plan for its rental housing programs that includes, at minimum, the following:

a. A rental registry containing information concerning the availability of all of the units assisted through its rental housing programs so that displaced low- and moderate-income households and other interested households may apply to live in these units;

b. Contact information and a description of any eligibility and applicable application process, including any deadlines;

c. Information on market rate rental units for non-LMI households displaced by the disaster;

d. A description of services to be made available, including, at minimum, outreach efforts to eligible persons and housing counseling providing information about available housing resources.

2. Establish and implement operating procedures to ensure that a good faith effort is made to contact each former residential tenants to inform them of the availability of their previous unit and other available units rehabilitated under the program.

3. Offer low- and moderate-income former tenants preferred status in the residential application process for the unit from which they were displaced and for other rental units repaired or created with CDBG–DR funds.

The State's request for waiver and alternative requirements indicates that landlords participating in the rental repair programs will be required to keep the restored units affordable for 5 to 20 years after initial occupancy. The State's policies and procedures governing each rental repair program must detail any imposed affordability requirements for that program.

This waiver has no effect on URA eligibility for relocation assistance and payments for existing tenant occupants of dwelling units who may be displaced or relocated temporarily as a direct result of a CDBG–DR activity.

III. Allocation Framework for Disasters in 2017 or Later

A. Background

After addressing remaining unmet need for 2015 and 2016 disasters, $57,800,000 in CDBG–DR funding remains available to be allocated for major disasters occurring in 2017 or later. Public Law 115–31 specifies that the funds allocated for disasters in 2017 or later are subject to the same authority and conditions as those applicable to CDBG–DR funds appropriated by Public Law 114– 223 and, therefore, these funds are also subject to the requirements of the November 21, 2016 notice, except the major disaster may occur in calendar year 2017 or later until such funds are fully allocated.

For 2017 and later disasters, HUD will use the methodology specified in Appendix A to the January 18, 2017 notice for determining if a disaster meets the minimum qualifications for funding using the limits established by that notice. For disasters that meet the minimum qualification, HUD will allocate the lesser of 100 percent of serious unmet needs as defined in the January 18, 2017 notice or remaining funds available from Public Law 115–31.

HUD will not evaluate a disaster for qualification to receive CDBG–DR funds until:

(i) The major disaster has been declared eligible for FEMA's Public Assistance (PA) Program and Individual and Households (IHP) Program;

(ii) FEMA has approved Individual Assistance applications totaling at least $13 million in IHP financial assistance for the declared disaster in a single county; and

(iii) four months have passed since the disaster declaration that made IHP available, or the IHP registration period is closed, whichever comes first.

These criteria do not assure CDBG–DR eligibility, but they will lead HUD to acquire the data necessary to determine eligibility, and if eligible, calculate a formula allocation. HUD will allocate funds to 2017 disasters using the best available data at that time.

B. Use of Funds

Grantees receiving an allocation of funds for 2017 and later disasters pursuant to a subsequent notice are subject to the requirements of the November 21, 2016 notice, as amended, which require that prior to the obligation of CDBG–DR funds, a grantee shall submit a plan to HUD for approval detailing the proposed use of all funds, including criteria for eligibility, and how the use of these funds will address long-term recovery and restoration of infrastructure and housing and economic revitalization in the most impacted and distressed areas. This Action Plan for disaster recovery must describe uses and activities that: (1) Are authorized under title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (HCDA) or allowed by a waiver or alternative requirement; and (2) respond to disaster-related impact to infrastructure, housing, and economic revitalization in the most impacted and distressed areas. To inform the plan, grantees must conduct an assessment of community impacts and unmet needs to guide the development and prioritization of planned recovery activities, pursuant to paragraph A.2.a. in section VI of the November 21, 2016 notice, as amended.

Pursuant to the November 21, 2016 notice, each grantee receiving an allocation of funds for 2017 or later disasters in a subsequent notice is also required to expend 100 percent of its allocation of CDBG–DR funds on eligible activities within 6 years of HUD's execution of the grant agreement.

Grantees receiving an allocation of funds for 2017 or later disasters pursuant to a subsequent notice will be subject to the grant process provided for in section V of the November 21, 2016 notice.

IV. Public Law 113–2 Waivers and Alternative Requirements

A. Background

This section of the notice authorizes waivers and alternative requirements for certain grantees that received an allocation of funds appropriated under Public Law 113–2, which ultimately made available $15.2 billion in CDBG–DR funds for necessary expenses related to disaster relief, long-term recovery, restoration of infrastructure and housing, and economic revitalization due to Hurricane Sandy and other eligible events in calendar years 2011, 2012, and 2013. The full amount of the appropriation has been allocated as follows: $13 billion in response to Hurricane Sandy, $514 million in response to disasters occurring in 2011 or 2012, $655 million in response to 2013 disasters, and $1 billion for the National Disaster Resilience Competition (NDRC).

This section of the notice specifies waivers and alternative requirements and modifies requirements for grantees that received awards under the NDRC (CDBG–NDR grantees), described in the Federal Register notice published by the Department on June 7, 2016 (81 FR 36557). The requirements of the June 7, 2016 notice continue to apply to these grantees, except as modified by this notice.[1]

This section of the notice also provides a waiver of the low- and moderate-income overall benefit requirement for the City of Moore, OK, and the State of New York, which have each received a CDBG–DR award pursuant to Public Law 113–2. This section of the notice also modifies the process for the publication of the expenditure extensions approved by the Department under Public Law 113–2. This section of the notice additionally authorizes grantees receiving an allocation of CDBG–DR funds for Rebuild by Design projects to exclude expenditures of that allocation from the calculation of the grantee's overall low- and moderate-income benefit.

B. Applicable Rules, Statutes, Waivers, and Alternative Requirements

Public Law 113–2 authorizes the Secretary to waive, or specify alternative requirements for, any provision of any statute or regulation that the Secretary administers in connection with HUD's obligation or use by the recipient of these funds (except for requirements related to fair housing, nondiscrimination, labor standards, and the environment). Waivers and alternative requirements are based upon a determination by the Secretary that good cause exists and that the waiver or alternative requirement is not inconsistent with the overall purposes of title I of the HCDA. Regulatory waiver authority is also provided by 24 CFR 5.110, 91.600, and 570.5.

For the waivers and alternative requirements described in this section of notice, the Secretary has determined that good cause exists and that the waivers and alternative requirements are not inconsistent with the overall purposes of title I of the HCDA. Grantees under Public Law 113–2 may request waivers and alternative requirements from the Department as needed to address specific needs related to their recovery activities. Under the requirements of Public Law 113–2, waivers must be published in the Federal Register no later than 5 days before the effective date of such waiver.

1. Urgent need national objective certification requirements for CDBG–NDR grantees. The June 7, 2016 notice provided CDBG–NDR grantees with a waiver and alternative requirement to the certification requirements for the documentation of the urgent need national objective at 24 CFR 570.208(c) and 570.483(d), waiving the certification requirements until 24 months after the date the Department obligates funds to a grantee, and alternatively requiring each CDBG–NDR grantee to document how all programs and/or activities funded under the urgent need national objective respond to a disaster-related impact identified by the grantee. Elsewhere, this notice describes the extension of the expenditure deadline that the Department is authorized to provide to all CDBG–NDR grantees, allowing them to expend funds until September 30, 2022. For CDBG–NDR grantees funding activities that will satisfy the urgent need national objective, an extension of the existing alternative requirement to the standard urgent need certification requirement is also required, to ensure that the CDBG–NDR project can meet the urgent need national objective on a timeframe that coincides with an extended expenditure deadline.

Each CDBG–NDR grantee was required to document how all programs and/or activities funded under the urgent need national objective respond to a disaster-related impact. For activities that meet the urgent need national objective, grantees were required to reference in their Action Plan the type, scale, and location of the disaster-related impacts that each project, program, and/or activity will address. Without an extension of the prior waiver and alternative requirement to the certification requirements for documentation of the urgent need national objective, HUD's extension of the 24-month expenditure deadline could penalize grantees whose successful applications relied on the availability of the alternative urgent need national objective criteria.

Grantees documented urgent needs in their initial applications, and the grantees will expend funds to meet these urgent needs throughout the grant period. Therefore, section 3.V.A.1.d. of the June 7, 2016 notice is modified to add the following alternative requirement for CDBG–NDR grantees: ''Notwithstanding the two year limitation on the use of the urgent need national objective referenced in paragraph one of this section, for activities designed to respond to disaster-related impacts that pose a serious and immediate threat to the health or welfare of the community, and which were adequately documented within the grantee's initial Action Plan, the grantee may continue to use the alternative certification of the urgent need national objective until the end of the extended expenditure deadline approved by the Department, provided that the grantee updates the needs assessment of its Action Plan as new or more detailed/accurate disaster-related impacts are known.''

As a reminder, Action Plans must be amended, as necessary, to ensure that an updated needs assessment is included for each project, program, or CDBG-eligible activity undertaken with CDBG–NDR funds. This alternative requirement does not contemplate new projects or activities that were not documented as meeting an urgent need within a grantee's initial Action Plan. Amendments to a CDBG–NDR Action Plan that describe additional projects or activities will trigger the substantial amendment requirements described in paragraph V.A.1.g.(i) in the June 7, 2016 notice and new projects or activities intended to meet the urgent need national objective may require a separate waiver from HUD to permit use of the alternative urgent need certification.

2. Revision of substantial amendment requirements for CDBG–NDR grantees. The June 7, 2016 notice specified the changes to an Action Plan that would constitute a substantial amendment, and described the process required for CDBG–NDR grantees to make a substantial amendment to an approved Action Plan. The June 7, 2016 notice indicated that HUD would review the proposed change(s) against the rating factors and threshold criteria and consider whether the revised Action Plan, inclusive of the proposed change, would continue to score in the fundable range for the NDRC. The June 7, 2016 notice also stated that HUD would only approve a substantial amendment if the revised score remains within the fundable range of CDBG–NDR scores. However, all NDR awards funded scaled and scoped versions of proposals in NDR applications, because the Department could not fully fund all the proposed activities described in applications that scored within the initial fundable range. Accordingly, determining whether a change to a grantee's Action Plan would fall within the initial fundable range of CDBG–NDR scores is not an accurate method of determining whether a revised project would still be fundable. To address this and to further clarify the criteria and process for amendments to CDBG–NDR Action Plans, the Department is amending the third paragraph of section 3.I.B. of the June 7, 2016 notice by replacing it in its entirety with the following:

''A grantee may amend the Action Plan, but must receive prior HUD approval for substantial amendments to the plan. Before making any substantial amendment to the Action Plan, a grantee must follow the same citizen participation requirements required by the NOFA for the preparation and submission of an NDRC application, FR–5800–N–29A2 (NOFA). Additional information about citizen participation requirements can be found in section 3.V.A.3 below.''

Additionally, the Department is also amending section 3.V.A.1. of the June 7, 2016 notice by replacing it with the following:

''1. Application for CDBG–NDR Waiver and Alternative Requirement. The requirements for CDBG actions plans, located at 42 U.S.C. 12705(a)(2), 42 U.S.C. 5304(a)(1), 42 U.S.C. 5304(m), 42 U.S.C. 5306(d)(2)(C)(iii), and 24 CFR 91.220 and 91.320 are waived for funds provided under the NOFA. Instead, HUD required each grantee to submit an application for CDBG–NDR, and the Applicant's Phase 1 and Phase 2 submissions for this competition together constitute an Action Plan required under Public Law 113–2. HUD notes that 24 CFR 570.304 and 24 CFR 570.485, to the extent they govern annual formula CDBG grant approvals, do not apply to National Disaster Resilience Competition (NDRC) allocations, but the standard of review of certifications continues to apply to grantee certifications. HUD will monitor the grantee's activities and use of funds for consistency with its approved Action Plan and all other requirements, including performance and timeliness. Per the Appropriations Act, and in addition to the requirements at 24 CFR 91.500, the Secretary may disapprove a substantial amendment to an Action Plan (application) if it is determined that the amended application does not satisfy all the required elements included in this notice at 3.V.A.1.g.(i). However, in reviewing substantial amendments, HUD will not penalize grantees for scaling and scoping decisions made by HUD as part of the NDRC award selection process.''

The Appropriations Act, as used in the June 7, 2016 notice, refers to Public Law 113–2.

Additionally, the Department is also amending section 3.V.A.1.g. of the June 7, 2016 notice by replacing it in its entirety with the following:

''(g) Action Plan Amendments, Submission to HUD, Treatment of Leverage, Partners, and BCA. A grantee is encouraged to work with its HUD representative before making any amendments to its Action Plan to determine whether the amendment would constitute a substantial amendment and to ensure that the proposed change complies with all applicable requirements.

(i) Substantial Amendments. The following modifications constitute a substantial amendment requiring HUD approval: Any change to the funded portions of the application that HUD determines, based generally on the guidelines of the NOFA (as adjusted for HUD's scaling and scoping of the award), would present a significant change to the grantee's capacity to carry out the grant (including loss of a partner without addressing lost capacity through replacement or contingency plan identified in the application); any change to the funded portions of the application that HUD determines, based generally on the guidelines of the NOFA (as adjusted for HUD's scaling and scoping of the award), would undermine the grantee's soundness of approach (including the benefit cost analysis); any change to the Most Impacted and Distressed target area(s) (a revised area must meet Most Impacted and Distressed threshold requirements in the NOFA, including Appendix G to the NOFA); any change in program benefit, beneficiaries, or eligibility criteria, and the allocation or reallocation of more than 10 percent of the grant award; any change to the leverage that was pledged and approved in the grantee's grant agreement; or the addition or deletion of an eligible activity.

Amendments that do not fall within the definition of substantial amendment are referred to as 'nonsubstantial amendments.' A grantee must notify HUD at least 10 business days before a nonsubstantial amendment becomes effective.

For substantial amendments, grantees must complete the citizen participation requirements of this notice, at section 3.V.A.3, before HUD can approve the amendment. In addition to reviewing Action Plans against the criteria at 24 CFR 91.500, HUD will review and approve a substantial amendment to an Action Plan if the amendment results in an Action Plan that HUD determines: (i) Can be reasonably carried out by the grantee and that the grantee has addressed any loss in capacity due to dissolved partners that are not replaced; (ii) may differ from the previously approved Action Plan but does not significantly deviate from the scope and objectives of the previously approved Action Plan or the purpose of the NDRC; (iii) satisfies all of the required elements identified in the NOFA (as adjusted for HUD's scaling and scoping of the award), this amended section 3.V.A.1.g. and elsewhere in the June 7, 2016 notice, including Tie-back requirements, and does not fund activities identified in section III.C.2. of the NOFA as ineligible; (iv) demonstrates (through an updated BCA, if requested) that the benefits to the grantee's community and to the United States continue to justify the costs of the award; and (v) does not differ in the amount of leverage identified in the grantee's grant agreement (substitution of leverage sources is permitted).

To allow HUD to make this determination, a grantee must submit adequate documentation that demonstrates the following: capacity of the grantee and partners to implement the funded activities, any changes to partners who will assist in the amended activity, scope and beneficiaries of the funded activities, the direct and supporting leverage committed by the grantee, and an updated BCA (if requested). Grantees are encouraged to work with their HUD representatives before making any amendment to an Action Plan. As indicated in the NOFA, if a grantee makes or proposes to make a substantial amendment to its project, HUD reserves the right to disapprove the amendment or amend the grantee's award and reduce the grant amount or recapture the grant, as necessary.

(ii) Information for Substantial and Nonsubstantial Amendments. If the grantee proposes to amend its Action Plan, each proposed amendment must be highlighted, or otherwise identified, within the context of the approved Action Plan and be submitted to HUD. All amendments must comply with provisions of this notice, including Tie-back requirements. Grantees may not amend an Action Plan to include funding for ineligible activities identified in section III.C.2 of the NOFA. The beginning of every proposed amendment must include a section that identifies exactly what content is being added, deleted, or changed, and whether the grantee believes that the proposed amendment would result in a significant change to the grantee's capacity or soundness of approach. This section must also include a chart or table that clearly illustrates where funds are coming from and to where they are moving. The amendment must include a revised budget allocation table that reflects the entirety of all funds, as amended. A grantee's most recent version of its approved NDR application and its DRGR Action Plan must be accessible for viewing as a single document, at any given point in time, rather than requiring the public or HUD to view and cross-reference changes among multiple amendments. Requirements for the full expenditure of CDBG–NDR funds by a date established by HUD will continue to be enforced under any amendment to the Action Plan. Every amendment to the Action Plan (substantial and nonsubstantial) must be numbered sequentially and posted on the grantee's website. The Department will acknowledge receipt of a proposed amendment via email or letter within 5 business days of receipt. HUD may seek additional information from the grantee to determine whether a proposed amendment is a substantial amendment.

(iii) Amendments that may affect the BCA previously accepted by HUD. If requested by HUD, a grantee must submit an update to its BCA to support a request for a substantial amendment.

(iv) Leverage Accepted by HUD. Grantees are required to show, through quarterly reports, evidence that firmly committed leverage resources in the amount required by the grant terms and conditions have been received and used for the intended purposes. A grantee may not propose an amendment to reduce the amount of leverage pledged and identified in the grant agreement. Sources of leverage funds, however, may be substituted after grant award with HUD approval, if the dollar amount of leverage is equal to or greater than the total amount of leverage required by the grant terms and conditions. Substitution of a leverage source in the same amount committed and identified in the grant terms and conditions is a nonsubstantial amendment. Section 3.V.A.2.e describes additional DRGR leverage reporting requirements.

(v) Partners Accepted by HUD. The NOFA permitted a grantee to identify a partner in its application that the grantee would be otherwise required by program requirements to competitively procure. A grantee is not required to secure the services of any partner by competitive procurement if the partner is duly documented and identified in the initial approved Action Plan for the CDBG–NDR grant. The Department has granted permission for single source procurement of these partners, pursuant to 2 CFR 200.320(f)(3) (cited in the NOFA as 24 CFR 85.36(d)(4)(i)(C), which has since been superseded by the Uniform Requirements) and advised state grantees that have not adopted the local government procurement requirements in 2 CFR part 200 to review state requirements associated with single source procurement and to follow all applicable procurement requirements. In many cases, this will entail the grantee undertaking a cost analysis prior to making payments to such a partner, and the grantee will be responsible for ensuring compliance with requirements that all CDBG–NDR costs be necessary and reasonable (for local government grantees, see 2 CFR 200.323, for state governments that have not adopted 2 CFR 200.323, see state procurement requirements applicable to single source procurements). If a partner dissolves the partnership after award and before activities are complete, a grantee should make its best effort to replace the partner with a similarly skilled partner, if the grantee's approved CDBG–NDR application was rated and ranked based on the capacity of the dissolved partner. If the grantee is not able to replace the lost capacity of a partner by following a contingency plan included in its approved CDBG–NDR application, the grantee must complete a substantial amendment to its Action Plan that addresses the lost capacity. If a grantee proposes to add a partner that would otherwise have to be procured as a contractor after the award or if the partner was identified in the approved CDBG–NDR application but was found by HUD to lack sufficient documentation, then that selection of that partner would not be covered by the single-source permission above and would be subject to procurement requirements under 2 CFR part 200 or state law, as applicable. Additionally, as required by Appendix D to the NOFA, the grantee shall execute a written subrecipient agreement, developer agreement, contract, or other agreement, as applicable, with each partner regarding the use of the CDBG–NDR funds, before disbursing any CDBG–NDR funds to the partner. The written agreement must conform with all CDBG–NDR requirements and shall require the partner to comply with all applicable CDBG–NDR requirements, including those found in Disaster Relief Appropriations Act, 2013 (Pub. L. 113–2), title I of the HCDA (42 U.S.C. 5302 et seq.), the CDBG program regulations at 24 CFR part 570, this amended June 7, 2016 notice, and any other applicable Federal Register notices, and commitments made in the grantee's Phase 1 and Phase 2 approved CDBG–NDR applications.''

Additionally, the Department is also amending the first paragraph of section 3.V.A.3.a. of the June 7, 2016 notice by replacing it in its entirety with the following:

a. Publication of the Action Plan, Access to Information, and Substantial Amendments: At all times, the grantee must maintain a public Web site that contains the latest versions of its Action Plan, including the DRGR Action Plan and the version as submitted to HUD for the competition and including the following portions: Executive summary; Factor narratives; Eligibility; national objective; overall benefit; and schedule responses, threshold requirements documentation, and all exhibits (A–G) (but of the attachments, only Attachments D and F must be published); and opportunity for public comment, hearing, and substantial amendment criteria. Before the grantee submits a proposed substantial amendment, the grantee must publish the proposed submission, including a section that identifies exactly what content is being added, deleted, or changed, and whether the grantee believes that the proposed amendment would result in a significant change to the grantee's capacity or soundness of approach; a chart or table that clearly illustrates where funds are coming from and to where they are moving; and a revised budget allocation table that reflects the entirety of all funds, as amended.

3. Projection of Expenditures and Outcomes. The June 7, 2016 notice specified the time frames for grantees to report and update the projection of expenditures and performance outcomes for CDBG–NDR grants. As grantees have refined and finalized outcomes for each CDBG–NDR grant, the Department has determined that further clarification of the time frames for initially reporting and updating grantee projections of expenditures and outcomes is required. Accordingly, Section 3.II.B(9) of the June 7, 2016 notice is amended by replacing it in its entirety with the following:

(9) Continuing responsibility related to certification. After materials necessary to support the Secretary's certification are submitted and the grant agreement is signed, grantees have continuing responsibilities for maintaining the certification. HUD may request an update to the grantee's certification submission each time the grantee submits a substantial Action Plan Amendment, or if HUD has reason to believe the grantee has made material changes to grantee's support for its certifications.

Grantees must submit to the Department for approval an update to the program schedule (projection of expenditures) and milestones (outcomes) included in the approved CDBG–NDR application response to the Phase 2 Factor 3 Soundness of Approach rating factor. The projections must be based on each quarter's expected performance—beginning the quarter that funds are available to the grantee and continuing each quarter until all funds are expended. Each grantee must also include these projected expenditures and outcomes in the initial activity set-up in DRGR. Within 90 days of HUD's approval of the initial DRGR Action Plan, the projections entered into DRGR (as contained in the DRGR Action Plan) must be amended to reflect any subsequent changes, updates, or revision of the projections. Any subsequent changes, updates, or revision of the projections must receive written approval from HUD. Amending Action Plans solely to accommodate changes to the timeline for projected expenditures does not fall within the definition of substantial amendment and is not subject to citizen participation requirements.

Guidance on the preparation of projections is available on HUD's Web site under the headings Office of Community Planning and Development, Disaster Recovery Assistance (https://www.hudexchange.info/resource/3685/cdbg-dr-grantee-projections-of-expenditures-and-outcomes/). The projections will enable HUD, the public, and the grantee to track proposed versus actual performance. HUD will make the DRGR Action Plan and performance reports available on the DRGR public Web site (https://drgr.hud.gov/public/).

Additionally, following execution of a grant agreement, the DRGR Action Plan that reflects the components funded through the CDBG–NDR grant must be posted on the grantee's Web site.

Additional information on the DRGR reporting system requirements can be found in section 3.V.A.2. below.

Grantees are also required to ensure all agreements (with subrecipients, recipients, and contractors) clearly state the period of performance or the date of completion. In addition, grantees must enter expected completion dates for each activity in the DRGR system. When target dates are not met, grantees are required to explain why in the activity narrative in the system.

Other reporting, procedural, and monitoring requirements are discussed under ''Grant Administration'' in section 3.V.A. of this amended June 7, 2016 notice. The Department will institute risk analysis and on-site monitoring of grantee management as well as collaborate with the HUD Office of Inspector General to plan and implement oversight of these funds.

In addition to the above changes, HUD is modifying the last paragraph of section 3.IV of the June 7, 2106 notice, by replacing it in its entirety with the following:

• ''Grantee amends its published Action Plan (the DRGR Action Plan) to include any updates to its projection of expenditures and outcomes within 90 days of HUD's approval of the initial DRGR Action Plan.''

4. Waiver of Limitation on Planning Costs (State of New Jersey only). The Department is modifying the alternative requirement in the June 7, 2016 notice which imposes a 20 percent limit on planning and administrative costs, and is imposing an alternative requirement for the state of New Jersey to accommodate activities to be funded under the state's approved CDBG–NDR Action Plan. The June 7, 2016 notice waived section 106(d) of the HCDA (42 U.S.C. 5306(d)) and 24 CFR 570.489(a)(1)(i), (ii), and (iii) for states and provided an alternative requirement that limits CDBG–NDR grantees to using no more than 20 percent of the total grant amount on a combination of planning and general administrative costs (see paragraph V.A.10.b.(1) of the June 7, 2016 notice). The state submitted a Phase 2 application to HUD for the NDRC on October 27, 2015, describing an array of recovery and resilience activities that included both infrastructure and planning activities. In January 2016, the Department made a CDBG–NDR award of $15 million to the state for two proposed planning-only projects, a Regional Resiliency Planning (RRP) Grant Program and a best practices toolkit. As part of its RRP Grant Program, the state proposed to invest CDBG–NDR funds in a program evaluation that investigates the efficacy of its grant program and facilitates replication of the program in other communities. Because the entirety of the state's CDBG–NDR award is for the purpose of planning-only activities, HUD is modifying the limitation described in the June 7, 2016 notice for the state of New Jersey only, and imposing the following alternative requirement:

To ensure that the state of New Jersey can devote the full amount of CDBG–NDR grant funds to both of its approved planning-only projects, the Department is waiving section 106(d) of the HCDA (42 U.S.C. 5306(d)) and 24 CFR 570.489(a)(1)(i), (ii), and (iii) to remove the limitation on planning expenses for this grant, thereby permitting the state to expend 100 percent of its CDBG–NDR grant on planning and administration expenses. Additionally, to ensure that the state devotes a minimum amount of its funds to local level planning activities as described in its approved CDBG–NDR Action Plan, the Department is requiring that at least 80 percent of the $10 million provided for the RRP in the state's Action Plan ($8 million) be expended on local planning grants.

As a reminder, the state must continue to limit its general administrative costs for the CDBG–NDR grant to 5 percent of its total grant award, as provided in Public Law 113–2 and the June 7, 2016 notice. The state must also adhere to the program funding amounts in the state's grant agreement terms and conditions, as amended.

5. Waiver of Limitation on Planning Costs (State of Connecticut only). The Department is modifying the alternative requirement in the June 7, 2016 notice which imposes a 20 percent limit on planning and administrative costs, and is imposing an alternative requirement for the state of Connecticut to accommodate activities to be funded under the state's approved CDBG–NDR Action Plan. The June 7, 2016 notice waived section 106(d) of the HCDA (42 U.S.C. 5306(d)) and 24 CFR 570.489(a)(1)(i), (ii), and (iii) for states and provides an alternative requirement that limits CDBG–NDR grantees to using no more than 20 percent of the total grant amount on a combination of planning and general administrative costs (see paragraph V.A.10.b.(1) of the June 7, 2016 notice). The state submitted a Phase 2 application to HUD for the NDRC on October 27, 2015, describing an array of recovery and resilience activities that included both infrastructure and planning activities. In January 2016, the Department made a CDBG–NDR award of $54,277,359 to the state for infrastructure and the following planning activities: Bridgeport South End Design Guidelines ($330,000), Bridgeport South End District Energy Feasibility ($350,000), Connecticut Connections Coastal Resilience Plan ($8,203,323), and the State Agencies Fostering Resilience (SAFR) program ($3,500,000), which includes both administration and planning expenses.

The sum of planning projects funded under this award is $12,383,323, or 22.8 percent of the total grant award amount, and the maximum allowable amount that can be used for general administrative expenses is 5 percent of the grant total or $2,713,868. In order to allow the state to fully fund its selected projects and properly administer its grant award, HUD is modifying the limitation described in the June 7, 2016 notice for the state of Connecticut, and imposing the following alternative requirement:

> The Department is waiving section 106(d) of the HCDA (42 U.S.C. 5306(d)) and 24 CFR 570.489(a)(1)(i), (ii), and (iii) to increase the limitation on planning and general administration expenses for this grant to 27.8 percent or $15,097,191.
> As a reminder, the state of Connecticut must continue to limit its general administrative costs for the CDBG–NDR grant to 5 percent of its total grant award, as provided in the Appropriations Act and the June 7, 2016 notice. The state must also adhere to the program funding amounts in the state's grant agreement terms and conditions, as amended. The Appropriations Act referenced in the amended June 7, 2016 notice is Public Law 113–2.

6. Waiver for Eligible Activity (Commonwealth of Virginia only). The Department awarded the Commonwealth of Virginia CDBG–NDR funds to develop a Coastal Resilience Lab and Accelerator Center (the Center) that supports new business initiatives aimed at addressing flood risk. Many of the Center's components, however, are not otherwise CDBG-eligible activities. Accordingly, the Commonwealth requested and the Department is granting a waiver and establishing an alternative requirement to create a CDBG-eligible activity that comprises all the components proposed for the Center.

The Commonwealth's approved Action Plan states that the Center will ''serve as the nexus for technological and organizational innovation around community revitalization, water management, resilience measurement,'' and will ''focus on generating economic growth by assisting entrepreneurs skilled at identifying problems, matching them with potential solutions, working with companies to create product, and moving product quickly to market.'' To this end, the Commonwealth will use its CDBG–NDR grant to fund specific components of the project including the design plan for the operations of the Center, training, office space, and capital investment for emerging businesses focused on regional resilience solutions, targeted workforce development and support, public outreach, and sharing best practices.

In rare instances when necessary to achieve recovery goals, HUD has previously granted waivers and alternative requirements to allow a grantee to treat a large complex project as a single eligible activity with multiple components that contribute to long-term recovery. HUD's approval of the Commonwealth's application through the NDRC is intended to support the creation of a new regional industry cluster to serve as a model for other communities that want to support businesses in this field.

HUD has determined that many of the proposed project components in the Commonwealth's application, including the development of a public facility, support for small businesses through training and capital, supporting workforce development, public engagement, and knowledge dissemination are already eligible CDBG activities. Therefore, to streamline implementation of the Center and its programs and allow the Commonwealth to proceed with valuable project components that are not eligible CDBG activities, HUD is waiving section 105(a) (42 U.S.C. 5305(a)) and establishing an alternative requirement only to the extent necessary to create a new eligible activity for the Commonwealth's CDBG–NDR grant, referred to as the Center, comprised of the activities outlined in the Commonwealth's approved Action Plan for its CDBG–NDR grant. However, HUD reminds grantees that the following provision in the June 7, 2016 notice remains in effect: ''When CDBG–NDR grantees provide funds to for-profit businesses, such funds may only be provided to a small business, as defined by the SBA under 13 CFR part 121. CDBG–NDR funds may not be used to directly assist a privately-owned utility for any purpose''.

7. Waiver and alternative requirement for low- and moderate-income area benefit activities (State of California only). The Department awarded the State of California CDBG–NDR funds to develop a Community and Watershed Resilience Program in response to the 2013 Rim Fire that was the third largest wildfire in California's history. The program will finance the development of a biomass facility and wood products campus in Tuolumne county as well as a forest and watershed health component focused on forest restoration efforts, rangeland improvements, and biomass removal and thinning throughout the region. The program also includes the establishment of a community resilience center that will offer business incubator and job training services, while also serving as an emergency evacuation center for the broader community.

The state's approved CDBG–NDR application noted that the most impacted and distressed area with remaining unmet disaster recovery needs to be served by the project encompasses the non-entitlement jurisdictions of Tuolumne, Mariposa and Calaveras counties, where 38 percent of the residents are low- and moderate-income (LMI). The state's application indicated that if CDBG–NDR funds were awarded for the program, the state would require a waiver that would permit activities carried out in areas with an LMI percentage of not less than 38 percent to qualify under the low- and moderate-income area benefit national objective.

Subsequent to the award and in response to HUD's scoping and scaling of the project, the state submitted a revised request to the Department, seeking a waiver and alternative requirement that would allow the state to apply exception criteria that recognizes that few, if any communities within the service area have 51 percent or more low- and moderate-income residents, per the requirements of 42 U.S.C. 5305(c)(2)(A), allowing the state to use a 38 percent LMI threshold to qualify activities under the LMI area benefit national objective. In its request, the state contends that the very nature of the initiatives financed with CDBG–NDR funds means that communities beyond the identified service area will also realize benefits, through reduced risks associated with wildfires, improved watersheds and new economic opportunities arising from efforts to commercialize the area's biomass.

Based on the state's request and the fact that the approved project has a combined LMI population that is not greater than 38 percent of the area, HUD is granting a limited waiver modifying 42 U.S.C. 5305(c)(2)(A)(i), to the extent necessary to permit the state to use a percentage of not less than 38 percent to qualify activities under the low- and moderate-income area benefit national objective.

8. Waiver of the 50 percent overall benefit requirement (City of Moore, OK only). The primary objective of the HCDA is the ''development of viable urban communities, by providing decent housing and a suitable living environment and expanding economic opportunities, principally for persons of low and moderate income.'' 42 U.S.C. 5301(c). To carry out this objective, the statute requires that 70 percent of the aggregate of the grantee's CDBG program's funds be used to support activities benefitting low- and moderate-income persons. This target can be difficult for many CDBG–DR grantees to reach as a disaster impacts entire communities—regardless of income. Further, it may limit grantees' ability to provide assistance to the most damaged areas of need. Therefore, as described by the December 16, 2013 Federal Register notice (78 FR 76154), the city of Moore, Oklahoma, in addition to the other grantees under Public Law 113–2 received a waiver and alternative requirement reducing the amount of the city's CDBG–DR funds that must be used for activities that benefit LMI persons to 50 percent. Additional flexibility was provided in the March 5, 2013 Federal Register notice (78 FR 14329). It allowed a grantee to request to further reduce its overall benefit requirement if it submitted a justification that, at a minimum: (a) Identifies the planned activities that meet the needs of its low- and moderate-income population; (b) describes proposed activity(ies) and/or program(s) that will be affected by the alternative requirement, including their proposed location(s) and role(s) in the grantee's long-term disaster recovery plan; (c) describes how the activities/programs identified in (b) prevent the grantee from meeting the 50 percent requirement; and (d) demonstrates that the needs of non-low and moderate-income persons or areas are disproportionately greater, and that the jurisdiction lacks other resources to serve them. Upon HUD's review of the justification, the request can be granted only if the Secretary finds a compelling need to reduce the overall benefit below 50 percent.

In response to the above, the city of Moore submitted a justification addressing the required criteria. The EF–5 tornado that struck Moore in 2013 also destroyed several affordable housing developments in the city which have not been replaced. The city council adopted a plan in March of 2013 that included infrastructure projects in support of a new affordable housing development project that will bring much needed LMI affordable units to the city. In order to carry out these activities the city acquired land in a closed mobile home park which will allow it to replace a portion of the LMI affordable rental housing destroyed by the EF–5 tornado. Demolition of the remaining structures and asbestos abatement has been completed and a Planned Unit Development (PUD) design for the site has been adopted. The SW 17th/Janeway Master Redevelopment plan will be a mixed use, mixed income urban village which will be built at an overall cost of $36–$40 million. This redevelopment will include the use of $13.5 million in CDBG–DR grant funds and provides for 170 affordable LMI units and 30 market rate units. The city council approved the master plan and PUD in October 2016, and staff are currently developing a Request for Proposals to solicit development bids. After the completion of the SW 17th/Janeway development, the city expects that the percent of LMI residents in the block group which contains the development will rise to 57.2 percent, well above the 51 percent required to classify a project under the low/mod area benefit (LMA) national objective.

Through its Infrastructure Recovery and Implementation Plan (IRIP), designed in 2014, the city identified several flood control and drainage projects that will support the development of SW 17th/Janeway and its affordable housing units, and thus will directly benefit the LMI residents that return to the area. Currently, there are three infrastructure projects associated with the Round Rock development that will not meet the area benefit test that requires at least 51 percent of the residents in the area are LMI using the most current HUD FY 2016 data. The three projects include the Little River Sewer Interceptor project, the S. Telephone Road Improvements project, and the Little River Channel and Greenway project totaling over $7.6 million in CDBG–DR investments. While these projects will directly benefit the new housing development, they will also benefit other block groups within the city. Without this waiver, the city could carry out these activities under the national objective of Urgent Need, but because of the large number of CDBG–DR funds dedicated to these activities, the city would then not be able to meet its 50 percent LMI overall benefit requirement. Hence, the city cannot carry out these infrastructure activities without a waiver.

To enable the city to undertake these infrastructure activities it has deemed most critical for its recovery, and to ensure that LMI residents are adequately served and/or assisted, HUD is granting a limited waiver and alternative requirement to reduce the overall benefit from 50 percent to not less than 42 percent. Based on the city's justification, the Secretary has found a compelling need for this reduction due to the circumstances outlined in Moore's request. In particular, HUD notes that these projects will all directly serve the new housing development that will provide 170 units of affordable LMI housing, prioritizing the needs of those LMI residents because these three projects will ensure that the redevelopment site is no longer in a FEMA floodway, will repair and replace sewage lines that will service the development, and install traffic control lights and widen an intersection to handle the increased density the development will bring. The city has identified these infrastructure projects as a top priority to ensure the success of the SW 17th/Janeway redevelopment and this waiver will allow LMI persons to live there safely. This is a limited waiver modifying 42 U.S.C. 5301(c), 42 U.S.C. 5304(b)(3)(A), 24 CFR 570.484, and 570.200(a)(3) only to the extent necessary to reduce the low- and moderate-income overall benefit requirement that the city must meet when carrying out activities with funds appropriated under Public Law 113–2 from 50 percent to not less than 42 percent.

9. Waiver of the 50 percent overall benefit requirement (New York State, only). As described in the March 5, 2013 notice, the state of New York and all other grantees under Public Law 113–2 received a waiver and alternative requirement requiring that at least 50 percent of CDBG–DR grant funds must be used for activities that benefit low- and moderate-income persons.

The state of New York has submitted a justification to HUD to reduce the overall benefit requirement for funds provided under Public Law 113–2. HUD has allocated $4,416,882,000 in CDBG–DR funds to the state pursuant to Public Law 113–2, including $185 million for projects identified by HUD through the Rebuild by Design competition. The state's CDBG–DR grant is administered by the Governor's Office of Storm Recovery (GOSR).

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

GOSR's approved action plan allocates its CDBG–DR grant to four main recovery programs: Housing (58 percent), economic development (3 percent), community reconstruction (18 percent) and infrastructure (21 percent). These programs were developed by GOSR to address the most urgent and significant unmet needs of those areas impacted by the storms that are eligible under Public Law 113–2—Hurricanes Sandy and Irene. In its request, GOSR contends that it has engaged in extensive and continued outreach to all persons and businesses impacted by the storms to inform the state's citizens of the availability of recovery programs and how to apply, and that all eligible applicants will receive assistance. Significantly, GOSR's analysis of the geographic areas most impacted by the storms demonstrates that the storms did not damage areas with significant LMI populations. Because HUD requires grantees receiving funds under Public Law 113–2 to spend at least 80 percent of each grant in the HUD identified most impacted counties, it is very difficult for the state to meet both this requirement and the requirement that at least 50 percent of the expended funds benefit LMI populations.

GOSR has submitted an extensive data analysis to illustrate that the demographics of the communities most impacted by the storms are generally not comprised of LMI block groups. GOSR's data illustrates that, outside of the five counties that comprise New York City, the storms impacted communities in which only about 20 percent of the population resides in LMI block groups. GOSR has reported that while there are 3.96 million people living in the state's most impacted counties (Nassau, Westchester, Suffolk, and Rockland), only 34 percent of those residents are LMI persons and only 25 percent of the block groups are considered LMI.

The state uses this data to illustrate its difficulty in meeting the LMI area benefit national objective, particularly as it relates to infrastructure. Many of the state's infrastructure projects are large in scale and have widespread positive impacts for persons of all income levels, including LMI persons, but it is nearly impossible for those projects to meet the LMI area benefit criteria. For example, one of the state's largest investments, the $101 million Bay Park Wastewater Treatment Plant project, benefits a service area that includes more than 370 block groups. Even though this project benefits many thousands of LMI residents within these block groups (approximately 135,000 LMI persons), there are not enough LMI persons to meet the 51 percent test for an LMI area benefit activity.

Given these challenges, the state has proposed allocating additional funds to initiatives that further address unmet needs of LMI persons, including the reallocation of $50,000,000 of Community Reconstruction (CR) funds to projects within the city of New York that will meet the applicable LMI area benefit criteria.

To enable the state to undertake the activities it has deemed most critical for its recovery, and to ensure that LMI households are adequately served and/or assisted, HUD is granting a waiver and alternative requirement to reduce the overall benefit requirement for the state's grant from 50 percent to not less than 35 percent of the state's allocation of CDBG–DR funds, excluding the $185 million allocated by HUD for Rebuild by Design projects and, consistent with existing program requirements and subject to the requirements in paragraph 10, below. This means that the state must use at least 35 percent of its CDBG–DR allocation (excluding RBD) under Public Law 113–2 to benefit LMI persons.

Based on the analysis submitted by the state, the Secretary has found a compelling need for this reduction due to the particular circumstances outlined in the state's request. In particular, HUD notes that the areas most damaged by the storms have limited LMI populations; that the infrastructure projects being undertaken by the state will nonetheless directly serve large populations of LMI persons; that the state has done significant outreach to communities in the most impacted counties and will serve all eligible applicants that have applied for assistance; and that the state will reallocate at least $50,000,000 of Community Reconstruction funds to increase the number of LMI persons served. This is a limited waiver modifying 42 U.S.C. 5301(c), 42 U.S.C. 5304(b)(3)(A), 24 CFR 570.484, and 570.200(a)(3) only to the extent necessary to reduce the low- and moderate-income overall benefit requirement that the state must meet when carrying out activities identified in its approved action with funds appropriated under Public Law 113–2 from 50 percent to not less than 35 percent.

10. Rebuild By Design Exception to Overall Benefit Requirement. In the October 16, 2014, Federal Register notice (79 FR 62182), HUD allocated $930,000,000 of CDBG–DR funds made available under Public Law 113–2, for the implementation of six proposals selected through the HUD-sponsored Rebuild by Design (RBD) competition. The RBD allocation was included as part of the larger allocation of CDBG–DR funds under Public Law 113–2 for long term recovery from Hurricane Sandy. Four grantees received an RBD allocation as part of their CDBG–DR grant for Hurricane Sandy recovery: The state of New York, the city of New York, the state of Connecticut, and the state of New Jersey.

The proposals selected through the Rebuild by Design Competition were identified prior to the development and approval of action plans for grantees receiving an allocation of CDBG–DR funds under Public Law 113–2. The October 16, 2014, notice notes that the individual proposals were selected to address the structural and environmental vulnerabilities that Hurricane Sandy exposed in communities throughout the region and to provide fundable solutions to better protect residents from future disasters. The notice also requires that projects funded with the RBD allocation reflect the proposals selected through the Rebuild by Design Competition to the greatest extent practicable and appropriate.

The RBD proposals were selected by HUD and the RBD allocation was included as part of each grantee's overall CDBG–DR allocation for Hurricane Sandy recovery, however, HUD recognizes that as the location and scope of an RBD project is further refined, the RBD portion of a grantee's overall CDBG–DR allocation may prevent certain grantees from meeting the requirement of the March 5, 2013, notice that at least 50 percent of each grantee's overall allocation of CDBG–DR funds be expended to meet the LMI national objective. Accordingly, the Secretary has found a compelling need for this waiver based on the facts presented above. In particular, HUD's selection of RBD projects within defined geographic areas may limit the ability of grantees to meet an LMI national objective within that defined area. This is a limited waiver and alternative requirement to modify 42 U.S.C. 5301(c), 42 U.S.C. 5304(b)(3)(A), 24 CFR 570.484, and 570.200(a)(3) only to the extent necessary to allow the four grantees receiving an allocation of CDBG–DR funds specifically for RBD projects, to either include or exclude the expenditure of its RBD allocation in the calculation of the grant's overall LMI benefit. If a grantee chooses to exclude the expenditures of its RBD allocation from its overall benefit calculation, it is required to notify HUD and the public through a non-substantial amendment to its approved action plan.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

11. Publication of Approved Expenditure Extension Requests. Pursuant to the requirements of section 904(c) under title IX of Public Law 113–2, CDBG–DR and CDBG–NDR funds must be expended within 24 months following obligation, unless an extension is provided. The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) granted the Department a waiver of the statute's two-year expenditure timeline, recognizing that certain disaster recovery activities satisfy the OMB criteria for activities that are long-term by design where it is impracticable to expend funds within the 24-month period and achieve program missions. HUD may grant extensions for activities that satisfy the OMB criteria. The Federal Register notice published by the Department on May 11, 2015 (80 FR 26942) and the June 7, 2016 notice established the process and requirements for extension of the deadline for the expenditure of funds under Public Law 113–2, including the requirement that HUD publish its approval of the extension of grantee expenditure deadlines in the Federal Register. In order to provide the public with more timely information about the expenditure deadlines for funds provided under Public Law 113–2, the Department is amending both the May 11, 2015 notice and the June 7, 2016 notice, respectively, to provide for the publication of expenditure deadline extensions on the Department's Web site.

Accordingly, the last bullet of Section VI of the May 11, 2015 notice is amended to read:

- ''If approved, HUD will publish the extension approval on its web site at: https://www.hudexchange.info/programs/cdbg-dr/. HUD will consolidate grantee extension approvals for publication. Therefore, extension approval is effective as of the date of the extension approval letter, rather than as of the date the approval is published on the HUD web site.''

The first paragraph Section II.A.2 of the June 7, 2016 notice is also amended to read:

''For any portion of funds that the grantee believes will not be expended by the deadline and that it desires to retain, the NOFA required the Grantee to submit a letter to HUD justifying why it is necessary to extend the deadline for a specific portion of the funds. Appendix E of the NOFA also required Applicants to submit extension requests with the application if the Applicant submitted a schedule that indicated time needed for completion of the proposal exceeds 24 months. Some Applicants submitted extension requests to HUD within their applications and such extensions were considered within the application review process. If granted, any extensions will be published on the HUD web site at: https://www.hudexchange.info/programs/cdbg-dr/. Under the NOFA, grantees that did not submit an extension request with their Applications are eligible to request an extension prior to the expiration of the twenty-four month deadline for the expenditure of obligated funds. As required by Appendix E of the NOFA, the extension request must justify the need for the extension, detail the compelling legal, policy or operational challenges necessitating the extension, and identify the date when funds covered by the extension will be expended. The Grantee must justify how, under the proposed schedule, the Project will proceed in a timely manner. For example, large and complex infrastructure Projects are likely to require more than 24 months to complete. An extension request for such a Project should justify the new timeline for any proposed extension by comparing it to completion deadlines for other similarly sized Projects.''

V. New LMI National Objective Criteria for Buyouts and Housing Incentives (Applicable to Multiple Appropriations)

Historically, various Federal Register notices published by HUD have authorized CDBG–DR grantees to carry out ''buyouts,'' which have been generally limited to the acquisition of properties located in a floodway or floodplain or Disaster Risk Reduction Area for pre-or post-flood value for the purpose of reducing risk from future disasters. These notices also generally prohibit redevelopment of property acquired through buyouts. Certain previous CDBG–DR Federal Register notices also waive 42 U.S.C. 5305(a) and associated regulations to allow grantees to offer housing incentives to resettle beneficiaries who were in disaster-affected communities. As described in those notices, housing incentives are usually offered to encourage households to relocate to a suitable housing development or to an area promoted by the community's comprehensive recovery plan, and may be in addition to acquisition or buyout awards.

In this notice, HUD is establishing an alternative requirement to clarify the criteria under which buyout activities and housing incentives can meet an LMI national objective. Grantees authorized to use housing incentives as described above, must continue to comply with the other eligibility requirements of applicable Federal Register notices governing those incentives—specifically, the requirement that grantees ''providing housing incentives must maintain documentation, at least at a programmatic level, describing how the amount of assistance was determined to be necessary and reasonable. In addition, the incentives must be in accordance with the grantee's approved Action Plan and published program design(s). Note that this waiver does not permit a compensation program. Additionally, a grantee may require the incentive to be used for a particular purpose by the household receiving the assistance.''

The CDBG regulations limit activities that meet the LMI national objective to only the activities meeting the four established criteria in 24 CFR 570.208(a)(1) through (4) and 570.483(b)(1) through (4). Prior Federal Register notices have advised grantees of the criteria under which a buyout activity can meet a LMI housing (LMH) national objective (80 FR 72102). Notwithstanding that guidance, however, HUD has determined that providing CDBG–DR grantees with an additional method to demonstrate how buyouts and housing incentives can assist LMI households, beyond those described in the previous notices, will ensure that grantees and HUD can account for and assess the benefit that CDBG–DR assistance may have on LMI households when buyouts and housing incentives are used in long term recovery. Given the primary objective of the HCDA to assist low- and moderate income persons, the Secretary has determined that there is good cause to establish an alternative requirement under which CDBG–DR grantees are authorized to qualify the assistance provided to LMI persons through buyout and housing incentive programs, due to the benefits received by the individuals that receive buyout and housing incentive awards that allow them to move from areas that are likely to be affected by future disasters.

In addition to the existing criteria at 24 CFR 570.208(a)(1)–(4) and 570.483(b)(1)–(4), HUD is establishing an alternative requirement to include two new LMI national objective criteria for buyouts (LMB) and housing incentives (LMHI) that benefit LMI households that use CDBG–DR funding provided by Public Law 113–2, 114–113, 114–223, 114–254 and 115–31.

For a buyout award or housing incentive to meet the new LMB and LMHI national objectives, grantees must demonstrate the following:

(1) The CDBG–DR funds have been provided for an eligible buyout activity that benefits LMI households by supporting their move from high risk areas. The following activities shall qualify under this criterion, and must also meet the eligibility criteria of the notices governing the use of the CDBG–DR funds:

(a) Low/Mod Buyout (LMB). When CDBG–DR funds are used for a buyout award to acquire housing owned by a qualifying LMI household, where the award amount is greater than the pre-disaster fair market value of that property;

(b) Low/Mod Housing Incentive (LMHI). When CDBG–DR funds are used for a housing incentive award, tied to the voluntary buyout or other voluntary acquisition of housing owned by a qualifying LMI household, for which the housing incentive is for the purpose of moving outside of the affected floodplain or to a lower-risk area; or when the housing incentive is for the purpose of providing or improving residential structures that, upon completion, will be occupied by an LMI household.

(2) Activities that meet the above criteria will be considered to benefit low and moderate income persons unless there is substantial evidence to the contrary.

Any activities that meet the newly established national objective criteria described above will count towards the calculation of a CDBG–DR grantee's overall LMI benefit to comply with the primary objective described in 24 CFR 570.200(a)(3) and 24 CFR 570.484(b).

Grantees receiving an allocation of CDBG–DR funds pursuant to the following appropriations acts must specifically request a waiver and alternative requirement from HUD in order apply the new national objective criteria established in this section of the notice: Public Law 109–148, 109–234, and 110–116 (Katrina, Rita, and Wilma); Public Law 110–252 and 110–328 (2008 Disasters), Public Law 111–112 (2010 disasters), and Public Law 112–55 (2011 disasters).

VI. Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance

The Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance numbers for the disaster recovery grants under this notice are as follows: 14.218; 14.228; and 14.269.

VII. Finding of No Significant Impact

A Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI) with respect to the environment has been made in accordance with HUD regulations at 24 CFR part 50, which implement section 102(2)(C) of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4332(2)(C)). The FONSI is available for public inspection between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays in the Regulations Division, Office of General Counsel, Department of Housing and Urban Development, 451 7th Street SW., Room 10276, Washington, DC 20410–0500. Due to security measures at the HUD Headquarters building, an advance appointment to review the docket file must be scheduled by calling the Regulations Division at 202–708–3055 (this is not a toll-free number). Hearing- or speech-impaired individuals may access this number through TTY by calling the Federal Relay Service at 800–877–8339 (this is a toll-free number).

Foreign Endangered Species; Issuance of Permits

AGENCY: Fish and Wildlife Service, Interior.

ACTION: Notice of issuance of permits.

SUMMARY: We, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service), have issued the following permits to conduct certain activities with endangered species, marine mammals, or both. We issue these permits under the Endangered Species Act (ESA).

ADDRESSES: Documents and other information submitted with these applications are available for review, subject to the requirements of the Privacy Act and Freedom of Information Act, by any party who submits a written request for a copy of such documents to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Division of Management Authority, Branch of Permits, MS: IA, 5275 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, VA 22041; fax (703) 358–2281. To locate the Federal Register notice that announced our receipt of the application for each permit listed in this document, go to www.regulations.gov and search on the permit number provided in the tables in SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Joyce Russell, (703) 358–2023 (telephone); (703) 358–2281 (fax); or DMAFR@fws.gov (email).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: On the dates below, as authorized by the provisions of the ESA, as amended (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.), we issued requested permits subject to certain conditions set forth therein. For each permit for an endangered species, we found that (1) the application was filed in good faith, (2) the granted permit would not operate to the disadvantage of the endangered species, and (3) the granted permit would be consistent with the purposes and policy set forth in section 2 of the ESA.

Tom, I understand that you are the guru of all things RAD in HQ. Joe, our new RA in Philadelphia, received this inquiry regarding a RAD transaction with Project Home, here in Philadelphia. You will see that the concern centers on the timing of the FHEO review. I checked with our FHEO folks here in Philadelphia and they are advising that they are right on track. Can you provide some insight to Joe and me when you have an opportunity? Joe is in WV for the next 3 days. We might be able to catch him in the car at some point, or perhaps Friday?? Rich

Hi Fran, Project HOME appreciates your help with reaching out to Joe DeFelice, our new HUD Regional Administrator. Please feel free to contact Joan McConnon or me today if there is anything more that we can do or any other information needed.

To: Joseph DeFelice, Administrator, Philadelphia HUD Regional Office

Project HOME has been working with the Philadelphia Housing Authority (PHA) since December 2016 on the Rental Assistance Demonstration (RAD) funding for our 1315 N. 8th Street project. The PHA submitted the FHEO package to HUD on April 12 and the FHEO review is being conducted by the Philadelphia HUD regional office. For the reasons listed below, it is urgent that we find a time to talk with you next week about the status of the FHEO review so that our project can be presented to the HUD RAD committee in July and close in August. We have been hoping to find a time for you to visit Project HOME sometime later this month. Next week, Sister Mary Scullion will be away but because time is of the essence, we hope to find a time that you can talk with us next week, before July 13th as explained below.

Our project is threatened if the FHEO review is not completed in time for the project to go before the HUD RAD committee no later than its meeting on July 27. We need to close on this 4% LIHTC/bond transaction project by the end of August because our extended investor Letter of Intent (LOI) will now expire on August 31st. We have been fortunate that our investors have already twice extended the LOI commitment at a very favorable price (the $1.07 price is above current market price).

If the project does not close in August we are at risk of losing our investment commitment (or a possible price reduction from $1.07 to the less than $1.00 current market price, which could create a gap in sources). Our RAD financing plan has been reviewed and ready to go to RAD committee later in July but for completion of the FHEO process. The Pennsylvania Housing Finance Agency (PHFA) Board will review our project on July 13th and vote on the bond/LIHTC authorization. We want to be able to report to the PHFA board on July 13th that the RAD process is on track for an August closing.

Background on the project is below. Further delay could put this critical and broadly supported project at risk:

- SERVING HOMELESS YOUNG ADULTS: The 1315 N. 8th Street project will provide 30 units of LGBTQ friendly housing for young adults ages 18-25 who are homeless or formerly homeless. As you may know, an astoundingly high percentage of the population of homeless individuals are now young adults and over 40% of those homeless young adults identify as LGBTQ. This would be the first housing of this kind in Philadelphia and the support for the project at every level has been unprecedented.
- CITY SUPPORT: The City of Philadelphia has committed $3,500,000 to the project (over the current maximum city grant limit of $2,000,000). We have the strong and active support of Mayor Kenney, the President of the City Council, and many other community leaders, including leaders in the LGBTQ community.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

- STATE AND FEDERAL SUPPORT: The Commonwealth of PA has committed $3,000,000 to the project and we have the strong support of the Governor, our US Senators and Representatives.

Since we have a tour/meeting with Sister Mary scheduled for Thursday, I'm following up on their concerns about the RAD project. Did the information provided to Janet Stearns address all the concerns, or do we need additional information from Tom Davis? I'm asking so we can be prepared in case this matter comes up on Thursday.

Tom, I understand that you are the guru of all things RAD in HQ. Joe, our new RA in Philadelphia, received this inquiry regarding a RAD transaction with Project Home, here in Philadelphia. You will see that the concern centers on the timing of the FHEO review. I checked with our FHEO folks here in Philadelphia and they are advising that they are right on track. Can you provide some insight to Joe and me when you have an opportunity? Joe is in WV for the next 3 days. We might be able to catch him in the car at some point, or perhaps Friday?? Rich

Hi Fran, Project HOME appreciates your help with reaching out to Joe DeFelice, our new HUD Regional Administrator. Please feel free to contact Joan McConnon or me today if there is anything more that we can do or any other information needed.

To: Joseph DeFelice, Administrator, Philadelphia HUD Regional Office

Project HOME has been working with the Philadelphia Housing Authority (PHA) since December 2016 on the Rental Assistance Demonstration (RAD) funding for our 1315 N. 8th Street project. The PHA submitted the FHEO package to HUD on April 12 and the FHEO review is being conducted by the Philadelphia HUD regional office. For the reasons listed below, it is urgent that we find a time to talk with you next week about the status of the FHEO review so that our project can be presented to the HUD RAD committee in July and close in August. We have been hoping to find a time for you to visit Project HOME sometime later this month. Next week, Sister Mary Scullion will be away but because time is of the essence, we hope to find a time that you can talk with us next week, before July 13th as explained below.

Our project is threatened if the FHEO review is not completed in time for the project to go before the HUD RAD committee no later than its meeting on July 27. We need to close on this 4% LIHTC/bond transaction project by the end of August because our extended investor Letter of Intent (LOI) will now expire on August 31st. We have been fortunate that our investors have already twice extended the LOI commitment at a very favorable price (the $1.07 price is above current market price).

If the project does not close in August we are at risk of losing our investment commitment (or a possible price reduction from $1.07 to the less than $1.00 current market price, which could create a gap in sources). Our RAD financing plan has been reviewed and ready to go to RAD committee later in July but for completion of the FHEO process. The Pennsylvania Housing Finance Agency (PHFA) Board will review our project on July 13th and vote on the bond/LIHTC authorization. We want to be able to report to the PHFA board on July 13th that the RAD process is on track for an August closing.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Background on the project is below. Further delay could put this critical and broadly supported project at risk:

- SERVING HOMELESS YOUNG ADULTS: The 1315 N. 8th Street project will provide 30 units of LGBTQ friendly housing for young adults ages 18-25 who are homeless or formerly homeless. As you may know, an astoundingly high percentage of the population of homeless individuals are now young adults and over 40% of those homeless young adults identify as LGBTQ. This would be the first housing of this kind in Philadelphia and the support for the project at every level has been unprecedented.
- CITY SUPPORT: The City of Philadelphia has committed $3,500,000 to the project (over the current maximum city grant limit of $2,000,000). We have the strong and active support of Mayor Kenney, the President of the City Council, and many other community leaders, including leaders in the LGBTQ community.
- STATE AND FEDERAL SUPPORT: The Commonwealth of PA has committed $3,000,000 to the project and we have the strong support of the Governor, our US Senators and Representatives.

Hi, Melissa – I only have one FOIA for you right now – the one for the REAC Appeal, Certification/Survey and CDE plan. We have notified the submitter that we will be releasing on August 24, unless they find some way to stop it. So fingers crossed you'll have those documents on the 24th. You won't hear back from the Inspector General about Mr. LaVoy's emails – at least I don't think so. You should hear back from the Executive Secretariat about it. It took us almost the whole 20 days to get together what we could find – so it might just be taking them a while. I'll send them a message to ask about it for you, OK?

Your message on Saturday said you were planning to submit another FOIA for emails, but if you did – for some reason, I haven't seen it – so please re-send.

Many thanks - Anne

Also, I spoke with a man who is interested in purchasing the property---Ernst Valery. Are you aware of this?

Finally---did you ever find out if there was ever an investigation by the IG into PK Management or GHC Housing Partners?

THANK YOU!

Excerpt from amendments to FOIA signed into law July 2016

(j)(1) Each agency shall designate a Chief FOIA Officer who shall be a senior official of such agency (at the Assistant Secretary or equivalent level).

(2) The Chief FOIA Officer of each agency shall, subject to the authority of the head of the agency –

(A) have agency-wide responsibility for efficient and appropriate compliance with this section;

(B) monitor implementation of this section throughout the agency and keep the head of the agency, the chief legal officer of the agency, and the Attorney General appropriately informed of the agency's performance in implementing this section;

(C) recommend to the head of the agency such adjustments to agency practices, policies, personnel, and funding as may be necessary to improve its implementation of this section;

(D) review and report to the Attorney General, through the head of the agency, at such times and in such formats as the Attorney General may direct, on the agency's performance in implementing this section;

(E) facilitate public understanding of the purposes of the statutory exemptions of this section by including concise descriptions of the exemptions in both the agency's handbook issued under subsection (g), and the agency's annual report on this section, and by providing an overview, where appropriate, of certain general categories of agency records to which those exemptions apply;

(F) offer training to agency staff regarding their responsibilities under this section;

(G) serve as the primary agency liaison with the Office of Government Information Services and the Office of Information Policy; and

(H) designate 1 or more FOIA Public Liaisons.

(3) The Chief FOIA Officer of each agency shall review, not less frequently than annually, all aspects of the administration of this section by the agency to ensure compliance with the requirements of this section, including –

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(A) agency regulations;

(B) disclosure of records required under paragraphs (2) and (8) of subsection (a);

(C) assessment of fees and determination of eligibility for fee waivers;

(D) the timely processing of requests for information under this section;

(E) the use of exemptions under subsection (b); and

(F) dispute resolution services with the assistance of the Office of Government Information Services or the FOIA Public Liaison.

Hi Anne-

Any news on what's going on with this other FOIA? Thanks! Also, I never heard from the inspector general about the Lavoy emails. At least, I don't think I did.

Hi, Melissa – your email FOIA is in concurrence now – hoping I'll be able to ship it out to you by tomorrow at the latest. The other FOIA is on hold because there were some objections to release of documents have raised by the submitter. They have been given until tomorrow COB to present those objections in a way that will give us reason to withhold the documents. I'll let you know how that turns out. Thanks - Anne

The following items in today's HUD News Briefing are of specific interest to the HUD Richmond Office:

[VA] Portsmouth public housing tenants have been fighting mold for years with little help from PRHA (Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, VA) (8/19/2017 10:17 AM, Ana Ley)
The mold has reached at least eight first-floor homes in the Hamilton Place apartment complex in the last four years, shifting from white to green to black as it creeps along walls, carpets and, finally, furnishings and other belongings. Low-income tenants there say they're sick of scrubbing the stuff out. They want the city's Housing Authority to get rid of it, and now, after questions from The Virginian-Pilot, so does the federal government. "We are inhaling this," said Donna Quinerly, whose apartment off Turnpike Road was so badly infested that last week she tossed out a living room set covered in a sour film. She fears that it's hurting her son, who has been hospitalized twice with severe respiratory problems since February, according to medical records. Quinerly said she first reported the problem about two years ago, and although she's been given credits on her rent and the occasional visit from a maintenance worker, officials with the Portsmouth Redevelopment and Housing Authority didn't offer to move her until Wednesday afternoon - about two hours after The Pilot asked property managers about the problem. At least one former neighbor said she was so fed up, she moved out even though her rent is now twice as expensive at an unsubsidized home in Chesapeake. "I had to go," said Ivory Dupree, 48, who moved out about four years ago after throwing away a mattress. Property manager Natalie Honeyblue refused to speak with The Pilot, referring inquiries to PRHA's main office. "My name or my likeness better not be in any reports in the newspaper," she said before asking a reporter to leave the property's management office Wednesday afternoon. Newly hired PRHA Executive Director Edward Bland declined multiple requests to comment. Some tenants interviewed this week said they've long struggled with mold but haven't reported it out of fear of retaliation. "I don't want to be evicted," said one woman who has thrown out several couches, mattresses and dressers in the past two years. "When you walk in my house, you can smell it. It smells sour, it smells wet, and it smells like mildew," Jones said. She reported the problem a year ago but said property officials never followed up. Lisa Wolfe, a regional spokeswoman for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which oversees the PRHA, urged tenants to submit work orders if they spot any problems. Those who have done so but still haven't gotten help from the local authority should reach out to HUD to file a complaint, she said. On Thursday, Wolfe said she reported the tenants' concerns and noted that the federal agency is looking into the matter. "That's really a shame," Wolfe said when told some tenants are afraid to call their property manager. "I wish we'd known sooner. If we don't know about a problem, we can't do anything about it."

[VA] Giving vets housing Freedom in Wythe (SWVA Today, Wytheville, VA) (8/21/2017 5:10 AM, Mark Sage)
U.S. Rep. Morgan Griffith said he'd heard plenty about Freedom Lane but hadn't seen it. The Wytheville Redevelopment and Housing Authority project to provide homes for veterans "looked good on paper," Griffith said. Then he said he turned off Peppers Ferry Road and thought "Wow. Not only did they do something good. They did something great." The Republican congressman was one of several dozen in Wytheville on Wednesday to celebrate the ribboncutting of a long-awaited housing complex for those who served the nation. Owned and operated by the Wytheville Redevelopment and Housing Authority, the 24 new apartments off Peppers Ferry have already welcomed 12 new veterans and their families. A road lined with one- and two-bedroom homes, most handicapped accessible, terminates near a clubhouse on the four-acre tract. The ribbon-cutting came a little over a year from when ground was broken for the affordable housing development. Cathy Pattison, who closed out her eight years on the WRHA's seven-member board on Wednesday, pointed out that the project came in under budget and ahead of schedule. Pattison said the idea for affordable veteran housing got started in 2010, when Randy Martin, the WRHA's executive director, said no veteran should be without a home. The idea lay dormant until 2013, when the housing authority bought eight acres of the former Alco property.

Martin said that the purchase was made with the $5 million development in mind. Martin said executing the idea took more than time, though. It required partnerships across the state and county, including HOPE, Veterans Affairs, the Department of Social Services and others. Martin said that more than half of the 24 units have vouchers tied to them to help with rent. Sharon Alexander, the chair of the Wytheville Redevelopment and Housing Authority board, asked in her opening prayer that Freedom Lane be "a place where we see the best of humanity." It was certainly a place Wednesday where Joe DeFelice, the regional administrator for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, saw the best of Southwest Virginia. On his first trip to the region, he said was falling in love and may not return to his office in Philadelphia.

[VA] Affordable housing shortage leaves hundreds calling hotels along Jeff Davis home (Richmond Times-Dispatch, VA) (8/20/2017 9:49 PM, Vanessa Remmers and Michael O'Connor)
When Angie Smith's daughter was born, she made sure to keep her infant in her arms or a swing. If Arabella stopped moving, the roaches would start crawling all over her. "It was the worst roach problem I've ever seen," Smith said. Smith paid $270 per week to live in Americas Best Value Inn near Jefferson Davis Highway in Chesterfield County for eight months with Arabella and her two other children. The motel room allowed her to get away from her on-again, off-again relationship with her baby's father, and also provided relief from a home mortgage and other bills. In an increasingly impoverished Chesterfield, an affordable housing scarcity, coupled with credit and background requirements for apartments, has led hundreds of people like Smith to settle for months — or years — at motels, many along the Jeff Davis corridor. This past school year, 160 Chesterfield students lived in hotels or motels. Across the state, nearly 3,000 students found shelter the same way.

[VA] Charlottesville, "happiest city in America" — but for whom? (Salon) (8/20/2017 1:47 PM, Emma Eisenberg)
When a city with a white supremacist presence and marginalized black working class is run by genteel "progressives" There was a moment on Saturday, August 12th that happened quickly but changed the course of everything that came after it. Around noon, a small group of white supremacists who had left the center of the protests at Emancipation Park walked down to an affordable housing complex called Friendship Court and, standing at its entrance, hurled racist slurs at black residents. Back at Emancipation Park, word spread among counterprotesters that Charlottesville black residents needed help, and a throng headed south to offer their bodies as support. But by time they got close to the housing complex, an organizer with Anarchist People of Color told them to turn back. The residents had already handled the situation, she told the marchers. As they turned back up fourth street, the first march ran into another group of counter-protesters also under instructions to head to Friendship Court. It was a moment of jubilation — the residents had successfully defended themselves, and the official "Unite the Right" rally had been effectively shut down. The two marches merged, creating a huge congestion of people. But this mood lasted only a few minutes. It was into this rejoicing crowd that 20-year-old James Alex Fields Jr. gunned his car, then backed it up, and gunned it again. It makes a cruel kind of sense that Heather Hyer and the others who were hit by Fields' car had just come from standing in solidarity with residents of this particular public housing complex, for it lies at the very center of the city and at the center of what happened this weekend in more ways than one. "The site itself is in the heart of downtown and the center of the city's Strategic Investment Area," a developer named Frank Grosch with the Piedmont Housing Authority (PHA) told a crowd assembled at the well-heeled Omni Hotel in September of 2015. "And it's an extraordinarily valuable piece of real estate." It was at that same breakfast fundraiser that Grosch announced that the PHA would acquire the 150-unit subsidized apartment complex in 2018 and redevelop it as a mixed-income neighborhood.

[VA] Spratley House, Ashe Manor earn high marks on federal housing inspection (Newport News Daily Press, VA) (8/19/2017 7:48 PM, Reema Amin)
Two public housing complexes designed for the elderly have again passed a federal inspection with mostly flying colors. However, the latest scores for Spratley House, 651 25th St., and Wilbert & Effie Ashe Manor Apartments, 900 36th St., were lower than when both were last inspected in 2014. Both Spratley House and Ashe Manor, inspected last month, have 50 one- and two-unit bed apartments for the elderly. Apartments are designed for people who need special accommodations and have special cords that can be used to call for emergency medical help. Spratley House earned 94 points out of 100, and Ashe Manor got 87 points, according to scores the Daily Press obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the agency that does these specific physical inspections. A passing score is 60.

[VA] City housing authority board gets update on smoking ban (Lynchburg News & Advance, VA) (8/18/2017 7:45 AM, Sherese Gore)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Lynchburg Redevelopment & Housing Authority Board of Commissioners was presented with a timeline Thursday of the upcoming implementation of a nationwide smoking ban on its public housing properties. The board is expected to approve the smoke-free policy in December, with the policy to take effect Jan. 1.The draft smoke-free policy is expected to be developed next month by LRHA staff. A rule issued by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development bans smoking inside public housing units and in outside areas within 25 feet of dwellings and administrative buildings. Designated smoking areas must be outside of the 25-foot zone. The rule was issued Feb. 3, and housing authorities have 18 months to implement smoking ban policies. The Lynchburg Redevelopment & Housing Authority owns four public housing communities with more than 325 families in residence.

[VA] New PRHA leader gives first interview after starting job (WVEC-TV, VA) (8/18/2017 8:00 PM, Laura Geller)
The new leader of the Portsmouth Redevelopment and Housing Authority answered some tough questions about the agency, which is supposed to help some of Portsmouth's most vulnerable citizens. With just about a month on the job, Ed Bland has already visited each of PRHA's communities and met with residents. The answer to one question in our half hour interview with Bland sticks out. It could give residents living in some of the poorest communities in Portsmouth a good idea of what kind of leadership they can now expect. We asked Bland if he would feel comfortable moving his family into one of these communities. Bland replied, "No, I would not and I truly understand that and that's why we're going to work very hard to change." The change is coming after a difficult period for PRHA. There was the federal investigation, which pointed out deficiencies in how the board and administration ran the authority. According to Bland, new homes mean residents feel better about themselves and their lives with PRHA. "I'm hoping that when they really see that we really care, and we do, that they will also partner with the Portsmouth housing authority to make the communities better," he concluded. [VA] Tim Kaine column: Virginians must respond to this pain by accelerating progress (Richmond Times-Dispatch, VA) (8/21/2017 4:45 AM, Senator Tim Kaine)
Last Saturday, America and the world were confronted with scenes of neo-Nazis, Klansmen, and other white supremacists terrorizing the citizens of Charlottesville. Ostensibly protesting the locally elected government's democratic decision to remove a monument of Robert E. Lee, the ralliers chanted racist, anti-Semitic, homophobic messages having nothing to do with statues or heritage. They came to spew hate. And it was more than just words. Heavily armed "militia" members intimidated local citizens. A mob beat Deandre Harris unconscious. A white supremacist intentionally drove his car into a crowd of people, killing 32-year-old Heather Heyer and injuring dozens of others who came to stand up for love and tolerance. And the ensuing chaos resulted in the deaths of Virginia State Police officers Berke Bates and Jay Cullen as they worked to restore peace. As I attended the memorial services for these brave Virginians, each killed standing up for Virginia values of equality and order, I sought to understand this grievous attack on our commonwealth. And more importantly, I sought to determine how we must respond to it. The events in Charlottesville did not occur in a vacuum. Our commonwealth knows well the pain of racism and division. The arrival of shackled Africans in Virginia in 1619 began the monstrous institution of slavery in our country. Richmond became the capital of an insurgent breakaway nation dedicated to the maintenance of slavery and the principle of white supremacy. And when slavery collapsed, succeeding generations embraced Jim Crow and Massive Resistance rather than living in accord with the principles we hollowly proclaimed to be self-evident.

Ben Carson to Speak at Polson Housing Conference (Flathead Beacon, Kalispell, MT)
Flathead Beacon
(8/21/2017 4:45 AM, Justin Franz)
Housing secretary will give keynote address at Native American Housing Association meeting

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Ben Carson will be visit Northwest Montana on Monday.

Carson will be delivering the keynote address at the Native American Housing Association's summer meeting at the KwaTaqNuk Resort in Polson on Aug. 21. According to a press release, Carson will speak about "healthy, affordable housing for tribal communities and eliminating burdensome regulations that inhibit prosperity and self-sufficiency."

Carson, a noted neurosurgeon, was tapped by President Donald Trump to lead the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development earlier this year. Carson unsuccessfully ran for the Republican presidential nomination in 2016.

In 2014, Carson spoke at a fundraiser for Stillwater Christian School in Kalispell.

On Monday, August 21, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development Secretary Ben Carson will be in Polson on Monday, Aug. 21 to deliver keynote remarks at the United Native American Housing Association summer meeting.

The conference at KwaTaqNuk Resort is a gathering of Native American housing authorities from the Great Plains region.

While in Montana, the Carson will also meet with UNAHA leadership, tribal members and visit local communities to learn about the status of affordable housing on tribal lands.

POLSON — For a bit more than a week, state and federal officials focused their attention on affordable housing in the town of Polson.

Last week, Gov. Steve Bullock joined a ceremonial groundbreaking celebration in front of a new multifamily affordable housing unit that is scheduled to open sometime in December.

On Monday, Aug. 21, U.S. Housing and Urban Development Secretary Ben Carson will deliver a keynote address that a news release said promises to "discuss healthy, affordable housing for tribal community and eliminating burdensome regulations that inhibit prosperity and self-sufficiency."

Carson also plans to speak to members of the United Native American Housing Authority from the Great Plains region and visit local Native American communities to learn firsthand the status of affordable housing on tribal lands.

Carson is scheduled to speak at the KwaTaqNuk Resort in Polson at 3 p.m.

HUD in limbo: Top jobs unconfirmed, key decisions unmade (National Mortgage News)
National Mortgage News
(8/18/2017 12:00 PM, Brian Collins)
WASHINGTON — When Pam Patenaude was nominated by President Trump as the No. 2 at the Department of Housing and Urban Development, she was supposed to help make up for the inexperience of the leader of the agency, the retired neurosurgeon Ben Carson.

But four months later, Patenaude's nomination remains in limbo, as does that of Paul Compton, the pick to be the department's general counsel.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

That has left HUD facing a leadership crisis, with other key roles like the head of the Federal Housing Administration and Ginnie Mae going unfilled by the Trump administration.

"If you are a defender of the mission of HUD, you are going to want HUD to have a No. 2 chief operating officer like Pam as deputy secretary and a general counsel in place so you can give Secretary Carson more staff and more capacity to run the agency," said Bill Killmer, senior vice president for legislative and political affairs at the Mortgage Bankers Association.

While other agencies have also been hamstrung with senior jobs unfilled, the problem is particularly acute at HUD because Carson acknowledges he lacks prior experience. It has left key decisions, including whether to lower Federal Housing Administration premiums, unresolved for long stretches of time while Carson waits for his senior staff to arrive.

It's not clear why the Senate has not acted on Patenaude, a former HUD assistant secretary who is now president of the J. Ronald Terwilliger Foundation for Housing America's Families. Her nomination was approved by the Senate Banking Committee in April. Democrats lack the ability to filibuster nominees, but by Senate tradition, a single lawmaker can sometimes place a hold on a nominee.

Some industry observers pointed to Sens. Elizabeth Warren, D-Mass., and Robert Menendez, D-N.J., as likely holding Patenaude up. Democrats objected to her after she defended President Trump's budget request to slash funding for HUD. (Congress appears to have ignored Trump's request, with the appropriations panels in both chambers approving bills that would fund HUD at its current level.)

A spokesperson for Warren did not return calls seeking comment; a spokesman for Menendez said the New Jersey Democrat was not involved.

"While the senator has certainly expressed concerns about the president's fiscal year 2018 budget request, he does not have a hold on the nominees," the spokesman said.

Edward Mills, a financial policy analyst and managing director at FBR Capital Markets, said the delay in filling crucial housing positions is a "reflection of how far we have come since the financial crisis." The housing market has stabilized and "it shows that housing is not the priority it used to be," Mills said.

To be sure, some officials have been confirmed to jobs at HUD. The Senate voted Aug. 3 to approve more than 70 nominees for various government agencies, including Anna Maria Farias as HUD assistant secretary for Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity and Neal Rackleff as the assistant secretary for the Office of Community Planning and Development.

"We finally have two of our four Senate-confirmed folks on board. ... Still, it would be nice to have our deputy and our general counsel aboard," a HUD spokesman said, referring to Patenaude and Compton.

But other top jobs aren't even in the pipeline. Brian Montgomery, who previously served as FHA commissioner under President George W. Bush, is widely expected to be nominated again for the job. David Kittle, a former chairman of the Mortgage Bankers Association, is said to be Trump's pick for Ginnie Mae.

Despite months of speculation, however, they have not been officially announced. "It is hard to understand why Montgomery and Kittle are being held up," said a source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Killmer said that with every new administration, "the clearance process has become more intense and laborious and takes more time. Each nomination has a different rhythm or tempo."

It appears to be taking longer for Montgomery go through the nomination clearance process because of his work in the private sector and possible conflicts of interest as a co-founder and managing director of the Collingwood Group, a mortgage consulting firm.

"I have been waiting for the FHA nomination," Mills at FBR Capital Markets said. "That will be one the most compelling things in relation to the direction where the Trump administration wants to go with its housing policy. It is unclear if the new administration wants to shrink FHA or expand it."

If Montgomery is chosen, "there won't be an aggressive reduction," Mills said.

But the new FHA commissioner will be looking for redundancies between areas served by the FHA and those served by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. "And seeing if you can reduce that overlap," Mills said.

Also in the mix is the role of the FHA in any future housing finance system.

House Financial Services Committee Chairman Jeb Hensarling, R-Tex., has been trying to limit the activities of the government-sponsored enterprises and the FHA for several years.

Senate Banking Committee Chairman Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, meanwhile, has indicated recently that he wants GSE reform to "include consideration of FHA as well," Killmer said. "So it is not just a House thing."

Fear of reassignments, buyouts pushes HUD to more transparent change management (Federal News Radio)
Federal News Radio
(8/18/2017 11:15 AM, Jason Miller)
For the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the effort to restructure itself is not an exercise in workforce reduction.

HUD political appointees say they understand the real impact on morale moving senior executives or offering buyouts could have on the agency.

David Eagles, the chief operating officer of HUD, said the department has spent a lot of time trying to mitigate any concerns around the current or upcoming personnel and process changes.

"We have been committed to a highly engaged process. What I'm really proud of at HUD is this has really been an employee-up plan. We've gotten a lot of feedback from all levels of HUD, and that includes the field, headquarters, frontline and senior leadership, hundreds of recommendations and we've distilled those into some good ideas," Eagles said, in an exclusive interview with Federal News Radio. "What I'm excited about is people understand that we've got to be very focused on, and this is a governmentwide issue, on empowering people to be successful who for years and for decades and decades have had new rules and regulations and new ideas just pile on top of federal agencies and every year it gets more hamstrung to be able to do what you need to do to be effective."

Eagles said HUD's leadership has reached out to employees through emails, online surveys and meet-and-greets over the last few months. He said the goal was two-fold: first, to hear from employees about what could be changed over the short and long term, such as new lighting in offices or a new coat of paint to brighten the walls; second, to develop the agency's plan to restructure, reform and reorganize as required by President Donald Trump.

Eagles said he expects the Office of Management and Budget to approve HUD's reorganization plan by mid-September. He said because the plan still was considered pre-decisional, he couldn't talk much about it.

"No idea was too big or too small and we've received hundreds of ideas from that process," Eagles said. "There are three levels that you have to be focused on: The frontline, which is clearly the most important and we've engaged them through those forums and conversations. At the second level is what I'll call the middle management layer. These are the couple of hundred folks that drive morale. They are probably responsible for 80 percent of the morale. They get a lot the work done and are very important for us as well."

Eagles said the third bucket is senior leadership that can unify a host of White House initiatives such as the executive order to reduce regulations, the fiscal 2018 budget request and performance management.

Eagles readily admitted many ideas coming from employees and from senior leadership aren't new or different. He said the biggest change is the fact this restructuring effort is happening at the beginning of an administration versus toward the end.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

He said HUD will develop a 12-to-18 month plan with specific metrics that employees, citizens, government auditors and lawmakers can track on a public dashboard, and then reassess progress and adjust as appropriate.

HUD Secretary Ben Carson reveals vandals attacked his Virginia home (HousingWire)

Responds to hate-incidents in Charlottesville

Ben Carson, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development secretary revealed Wednesday his Virginia home was vandalized.

After the violence in Charlottesville, Virginia, Carson posted his response to his Facebook account, revealing hate crimes he experienced himself.

In his post, Carson revealed his Virginia home was vandalized with anti-Trump rhetoric, but that his neighbors stepped up to help.

“More recently our home in Virginia along with that of a neighbor was vandalized by people who also wrote hateful rhetoric about President Trump,” he wrote. “We were out of town, but other kind, embarrassed neighbors cleaned up most of the mess before we returned.”

The HUD secretary also took the moment to give a second instance in which a neighbor put up a confederate flag, but that in these situations, it is important to take the high road.

“In both instances, less than kind behavior was met by people taking the high road,” Carson wrote. “We could all learn from these examples. Hatred and bigotry unfortunately still exists in our country and we must all continue to fight it, but let’s use the right tools.

The Arker Companies has completed a $38 million rehabilitation and preservation project at Elbee Gardens, a 178-unit affordable housing development at 1950 Clove Road in the Grasmere neighborhood of Staten Island. Situated on nearly eight-acres of land, Elbee Gardens is a six-story elevator building that was initially financed as a HUD 236 project and constructed in the early 1970s. The project had not received any significant capital improvements since it was first rented up in 1973. HPD also provided four percent Low-Income Housing Tax Credits, resulting in approximately $14 million in tax credit equity. The financing incorporates a permanent day one structure with credit enhancement from Freddie Mac.

Wells Fargo is the tax credit investor and limited partner for the project. Officials from the New York City Housing Development Corporation, HPD and the US Department of Housing and Urban Development joined The Arker Companies and project partners to celebrate the completiton of the project. "Preserving and improving our existing affordable housing stock is a key strategy in meeting New York’s housing needs" said Lynne Patton, HUD Regional Administrator for New York and New Jersey. "The extensive renovations at Elbee Gardens will keep this housing viable and keep the Grasmere community thriving for the next generation of New Yorkers."

The person President Trump tapped this summer to oversee one of the largest regions under the Department of Housing & Urban Development is a longtime Trump family employee with no experience in housing, according to the one-page résumé Lynne Patton submitted as part of the transition.

Patton began working for Trump’s son Eric in 2009 as the vice president of his foundation and as his primary aide. She oversaw all aspects of his business, charity and personal obligations. That included his home and spousal responsibilities as well as coordinating events. She was promoted in 2012 to be the Trump family's senior aide and chief of staff, serving as the principal contact between the family members and all corporate partners, heads of state and high-end donors. Specifically, she worked for the Trump children, Donald Jr., Tiffany, Ivanka and Eric and his wife, Lara. During Donald Trump's presidential campaign, Patton worked as his senior adviser and family liaison, focusing on minority engagement. She was also a prime-time speaker at the 2016 Republican National Convention.

In June, HUD Secretary Ben Carson, an acclaimed neurosurgeon with no expertise in housing policy either, charged Patton with running the agency's regional office overseeing New York and New Jersey. Her appointment stirred controversy because of her lack of experience and the fact that Trump has a 4 percent stake in a Brooklyn development, Starrett City, that is the nation's largest subsidized housing complex.

Patton is one of 10 regional administrators for HUD, an agency that has a $48.7 billion budget this year. Her position pays $161,900 a year.

"The administration prioritizes hiring family friends, employees and people who have expressed loyalty to the president, raising real questions about why the president wants her there," said Austin Evers, a former State Department attorney under President Barack Obama who now heads the government watchdog group American Oversight. "This underscores that this administration does not prioritize qualifications at all, including for this very important job which oversees billions of dollars of taxpayer money."

Patton told the Post in an email that as regional administrator, she serves as the primary liaison for local agencies and city officials as it pertains to housing issues before the Trump administration — a job she says she is uniquely positioned for given her long history as "gatekeeper" to the Trumps. "I am not determining fixed-rate mortgage loan rates. Nor do I have any oversight or undue influence as to individual grant distribution or project funding," Patton wrote.

Patton has officially recused herself from any decisions involving the Starrett City housing development, signing a "conflict of interest disqualification" memorandum on July 12.

American Oversight, formed by a group of lawyers after Trump's inauguration to monitor the administration's ethics and expose any potential conflicts of interest, obtained Patton's official résumé through a Freedom of Information Act request of the résumés of political appointees across various federal agencies.

[MD] Democrats demand Kushner-related housing records (CBS News)
CBS
(8/19/2017 2:05 PM, Kathryn Watson)
Maryland Democrats are demanding a slew of records from Kushner Companies LLC after reports that its subsidiaries' apartment complexes receiving public housing payments are getting judges to order the arrest of delinquent renters and making rent payments unnecessarily difficult for tenants.

President Trump's son-in-law and senior adviser Jared Kushner stepped down as CEO of Kushner Companies when he joined the White House, but retains a significant financial stake in the business. The firm has received $6.1 million in federal rental subsidies through the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for three apartment complexes in Maryland since January 2015, according to a recent Baltimore Sun report.

Those subsidies help tenants pay their rent. But the Sun reported Kushner Companies is "the most aggressive [firm] in Maryland" in using a debt collection tactic that urges judges to arrest people who fail to appear in court for unpaid rent, and has sought the civil arrest of more than 100 former tenants. The New York Times and ProPublica also recently reported Kushner Companies doesn't allow residents to pay rent with money orders, requiring individuals and families without checking accounts to visit a local Walmart or cash express company and pay $3.50 for every transaction.

"If these reports are accurate, they raise very serious and troubling concerns about whether Kushner Companies and its subsidiaries are complying with HUD's housing quality standards to ensure the safety and health of their own tenants," Maryland Democratic Sens. Ben Cardin and Chris Van Hollen, and four other Maryland Democrats in the House, wrote to Kushner Companies on Friday.

[MD] Maryland Democrats request details on Jared Kushner apartment holdings in state (Baltimore Sun, MD)

Congressional Democrats from Maryland are asking for thousands of pages of documents to review the business practices of the apartment rental company owned by Jared Kushner, son-in-law and senior adviser to President Donald Trump. In a letter Friday, Sens. Ben Cardin and Chris Van Hollen and Reps. Elijah E. Cummings, C.A. Dutch Ruppersberger, John Sarbanes and Anthony Brown told Kushner's firm that it must abide by U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development regulations because its tenants receive federal rental subsidies through the Housing Choice voucher program. The Kushner Cos. own 17 apartment complexes in Maryland, most of them in Baltimore County. The lawmakers, who represent areas with Kushner properties, want documents that detail the New York-based company's voucher contracts with HUD, inspection reports, lawsuits filed by the firm against former tenants and information about any potential conflicts of interest for Kushner.

The Baltimore Sun posted a story online this week detailing the firm's legal efforts to collect unpaid rent from former tenants, including requesting body attachments, the controversial practice in which judges order the arrest of civil defendants for allegedly failing to appear in court. The Sun has reported that the Kushner Cos. have filed 1,240 civil lawsuits against former tenants in Maryland for unpaid debts, actions that have included requests to have renters arrested. The Sun has reported that three of the company's 17 apartment complexes in Maryland have received $6.1 million in HUD Housing Choice voucher payments on behalf of 268 tenants. The White House told the Sun in February that Kushner would not participate in any policy decisions related to the voucher program to avoid the potential for conflicts of interest.

[MD] U.S. Lawmakers Seek Kushner Company Records on Maryland Apartments (ProPublica)
ProPublica
(8/18/2017 8:06 PM, Alec MacGillis)
Democrats from the state's congressional delegation say articles by ProPublica, The New York Times Magazine and The Baltimore Sun raise 'very serious and troubling concerns' about whether Kushner's businesses comply with federal housing standards.

Maryland's two U.S. senators and four of its U.S. House representatives, all Democrats, sent a letter today to the large real-estate company owned by the family of Jared Kushner, President Donald Trump's son-in-law and senior adviser, demanding information about the company's management of 17 apartment complexes it owns in the state.

The letter to Kushner Companies came in response to a May 23 article co-published by ProPublica and The New York Times Magazine investigating management practices at the rental complexes, most of which are in the suburbs of Baltimore, as well as an article this week in The Baltimore Sun that revealed additional details.

The original story described the highly aggressive legal tactics that Kushner Companies has used to pursue tenants who owed back rent or had left their leases early — even tenants who left the complexes well before the company bought them in 2012 and the years following. In many of the hundreds of cases brought by the company, it pursued tenants in court for years, with late fees and court fees expanding the claims to amounts far above what was initially owed.

The article reported several instances in which the company sought payment even when tenants were able to provide proof that they had followed the terms of the lease. The article also described the shoddy upkeep of many of the complexes' roughly 9,000 units, where problems such as ceiling leaks, mice and mold are rampant.

The Sun article this week reported that in 105 instances, the company went so far as to seek the civil arrests of tenants who failed to appear in court to address allegations of unpaid debt — more than any other landlord in the state over the same period. Court records show that 20 former Kushner tenants were in fact detained, the paper reported. The paper also disclosed just how dependent the company's complexes are on federal housing vouchers for rental revenue. While many of the complexes' tenants pay their own rent, the paper determined that at three of the complexes alone, the company has received $6.1 million in federal rental subsidies since Jan. 1, 2015.

In their letter, Maryland Sens. Chris Van Hollen and Ben Cardin and the four congressmen — Elijah Cummings (the ranking Democratic on the House Government Oversight Committee), Dutch Ruppersberger, John Sarbanes and Anthony Brown — note that the company's reliance on subsidies from the Housing Choice program (Section 8) obliges it to follow Department of Housing and Urban Development rules. Under Housing Choice, each "dwelling unit must pass the program's housing quality standards and be maintained up to those standards as long as the owner receives housing assistance payments." The rules specify that each "dwelling unit and its equipment must be in sanitary condition" and "must be free of vermin and rodent infestation."

Norfolk Virginian-Pilot
(8/19/2017 10:17 AM, Ana Ley)
The mold has reached at least eight first-floor homes in the Hamilton Place apartment complex in the last four years, shifting from white to green to black as it creeps along walls, carpets and, finally, furnishings and other belongings.

Low-income tenants there say they're sick of scrubbing the stuff out. They want the city's Housing Authority to get rid of it, and now, after questions from The Virginian-Pilot, so does the federal government.

"We are inhaling this," said Donna Quinerly, whose apartment off Turnpike Road was so badly infested that last week she tossed out a living room set covered in a sour film.

She fears that it's hurting her son, who has been hospitalized twice with severe respiratory problems since February, according to medical records.

Quinerly said she first reported the problem about two years ago, and although she's been given credits on her rent and the occasional visit from a maintenance worker, officials with the Portsmouth Redevelopment and Housing Authority didn't offer to move her until Wednesday afternoon - about two hours after The Pilot asked property managers about the problem.

At least one former neighbor said she was so fed up, she moved out even though her rent is now twice as expensive at an unsubsidized home in Chesapeake. "I had to go," said Ivory Dupree, 48, who moved out about four years ago after throwing away a mattress.

Property manager Natalie Honeyblue refused to speak with The Pilot, referring inquiries to PRHA's main office. "My name or my likeness better not be in any reports in the newspaper," she said before asking a reporter to leave the property's management office Wednesday afternoon.

Newly hired PRHA Executive Director Edward Bland declined multiple requests to comment.

Some tenants interviewed this week said they've long struggled with mold but haven't reported it out of fear of retaliation. "I don't want to be evicted," said one woman who has thrown out several couches, mattresses and dressers in the past two years. "When you walk in my house, you can smell it. It smells sour, it smells wet, and it smells like mildew," Jones said. She reported the problem a year ago but said property officials never followed up.

Lisa Wolfe, a regional spokeswoman for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which oversees the PRHA, urged tenants to submit work orders if they spot any problems. Those who have done so but still haven't gotten help from the local authority should reach out to HUD to file a complaint, she said.

On Thursday, Wolfe said she reported the tenants' concerns and noted that the federal agency is looking into the matter. "That's really a shame," Wolfe said when told some tenants are afraid to call their property manager. "I wish we'd known sooner. If we don't know about a problem, we can't do anything about it."

The Wytheville Redevelopment and Housing Authority project to provide homes for veterans "looked good on paper," Griffith said.

Then he said he turned off Peppers Ferry Road and thought "Wow. Not only did they do something good. They did something great."

The Republican congressman was one of several dozen in Wytheville on Wednesday to celebrate the ribbon-cutting of a long-awaited housing complex for those who served the nation.

Owned and operated by the Wytheville Redevelopment and Housing Authority, the 24 new apartments off Peppers Ferry have already welcomed 12 new veterans and their families.

A road lined with one- and two-bedroom homes, most handicapped accessible, terminates near a clubhouse on the four-acre tract.

The ribbon-cutting came a little over a year from when ground was broken for the affordable housing development. Cathy Pattison, who closed out her eight years on the WRHA's seven-member board on Wednesday, pointed out that the project came in under budget and ahead of schedule.

Pattison said the idea for affordable veteran housing got started in 2010, when Randy Martin, the WRHA's executive director, said no veteran should be without a home. The idea lay dormant until 2013, when the housing authority bought eight acres of the former Alco property.

Martin said that the purchase was made with the $5 million development in mind.

Martin said executing the idea took more than time, though. It required partnerships across the state and county, including HOPE, Veterans Affairs, the Department of Social Services and others.

Martin said that more than half of the 24 units have vouchers tied to them to help with rent.

Sharon Alexander, the chair of the Wytheville Redevelopment and Housing Authority board, asked in her opening prayer that Freedom Lane be "a place where we see the best of humanity."

It was certainly a place Wednesday where Joe DeFelice, the regional administrator for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, saw the best of Southwest Virginia. On his first trip to the region, he said was falling in love and may not return to his office in Philadelphia.

[LA] Kenner housing authority in limbo after Mayor Zahn asks director to resign, removes remaining board members (New Orleans Advocate, LA)

(8/21/2017 5:10 AM, Faimon A. Roberts)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Kenner Mayor Ben Zahn on Friday called on the director of the city's housing authority to resign and removed the agency's two remaining board members, effectively casting the agency into limbo until a new board can be appointed.

Last month, Zahn started an investigation into the agency after receiving allegations of mismanagement from resigning board member Connie Montgomery. Montgomery accused Marc Starling, who was named executive director last year, of hiring cronies to work at the agency and also of bullying behavior.

Starling accused Montgomery of being disruptive and uncooperative in a separate letter to Zahn.

Montgomery's resignation left the five-member board with just two members, short of the three-member quorum needed to take any action.

Zahn said Friday he was removing those two board members "for cause" and that he would replace them with new members "in the very near future."

He pointed to some of the things that Montgomery cited in her letter, such as issues with procurement and the cancellation of some contracts with vendors, which Zahn said were done "without due cause."

A city investigation "found numerous instances of potential ethical and procedural violations, which at the very least give an overwhelming sense of impropriety at the Kenner Housing Authority," Zahn said in a statement.

Zahn also cited Starling's resumé, which showed a graduate degree in urban development from Belford University, an unaccredited, now-defunct institution that had no physical address. Zahn also said that Starling had left two previous leadership posts at the U.S. Housing and Urban Development Department under allegations of misconduct.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A suburban New Orleans mayor has gutted the Kenner Housing Authority's five-member board and called for the resignation of the agency's executive director.

Mayor Ben Zahn called for an investigation after one of the agency's board members, Connie Montgomery, resigned. She sent Zahn a letter dated July 5 claiming actions taken by Executive Director Marc Starling, Board Chairwoman Faye Mathews, and Board Attorney Don Richard had violated the Housing Authority's procurement policy, Louisiana civil service rules and state statutes and bylaws of the authority.

Montgomery's resignation left the board with just two members, short of the three-member quorum needed to take any action.

Zahn said among the reasons for his decision Friday was Starling's cancellation of a multi-vendor contract without due cause and questionable credits on his resume.

Kenner Mayor Ben Zahn completely removed all members of the Kenner Housing Authority Board and calls for the immediate resignation of Executive Director Marc Starling. In a news release, Zahn says he was alarmed to learn Starling's resume shows, "graduate work from a fictitious college called Belford University with no physical location, culminating with his receipt of a Master's Degree in Urban Development, as well as his departure from two previous HUD leadership posts." Kenner officials say Starling also voluntarily vacated a HUD Executive Director position in Rhode Island amid allegations of mismanagement, and he was removed from a similar post in Florida by federal investigators. Kenner launched an investigation into the Housing Authority Board after a board member, Connie Montgomery, resigned.

At the time, Zahn called on the FBI, the U.S. Attorney, the Jefferson Parish District Attorney and the city's internal auditor, among others to investigate the allegations made in Montgomery's letter. KENNER - Mayor Ben Zahn removed the entire Kenner Housing Authority Board from their positions and has called for the resignation of the department's Executive Director.

According to a statement from the City of Kenner, Executive Director Mar Starling's resume showed graduate work from a fictitious college called "Belford University," culminating with his receipt of a Master's Degree in Urban Development. The resume also showed that Starling left two previous HUD leadership positions around the country, but in reality he vacated one position amid allegations of mismanagement and was removed from another by federal investigators.

Mayor Zahn called for an investigation into the Kenner Housing Authority after one of its board members, Connie Montgomery, resigned. Her resignation left the board with only two members, making it unable to take any official action.

"Our internal investigation found numerous instances of potential ethical and procedural violations, which at the very least give an overwhelming sense of impropriety at the Kenner Housing Authority. This will not be tolerated, especially given the mission of this very important organization," Zahn said.

The release said the mayor plans to replace to board members in the "Very near future" and bring in a third-party contractor to train and counsel the incoming board.

[LA] Our Views: Louisiana's past could provide a blueprint for how FEMA could restructure disaster aid (Baton Rouge Advocate, LA)
Baton Rouge Advocate
(8/19/2017 10:32 AM, Advocate Editorial)
Writing checks, the wags say, is what the United States government does best.

In a meeting marking the beginning of hurricane season, President Donald Trump met with members of the Cabinet and others. He said aid would not be held up in the event of a disaster. "We do it quickly. We do it effectively," Trump said. "We are very strong with respect to FEMA. FEMA is something I've been very much involved in already."

While a disaster is by nature a chaotic situation, we think there are lessons that the president and Congress could learn from Louisiana, where we've had a lot more experience than even a New York City developer at the time of Superstorm Sandy in 2012, who now happens to be president of the United States.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency is not perfect, but since the catastrophically poor response to hurricanes Katrina and Rita in 2005, presidents Barack Obama and Trump have appointed experienced administrators to this critical job.

Can it do better still? We think Louisiana folks could give valuable lessons. After the disastrous floods in the greater Baton Rouge area, too many people could not get access to FEMA soon enough. To quote a favorite line of the congressman representing the capital city region, Garret Graves, "The federal government has a customer service problem." Graves has helped to do something about it, pushing legislation to make databases accessible directly in an emergency, instead of requiring people to wait on the telephone for FEMA agents or contractors. That small but welcome step should only be the first way in which the U.S. government reassesses its response to natural disasters.

Maybe FEMA should have more authority, rather than less. Today, hurricane response is in FEMA's corner, but long-term recovery aid - as Louisiana has found out again this year - is by law doled out in packets by a dysfunctional budget process in Congress.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The checks then come via the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, through block grant programs. We don't knock anybody, but we cannot help but wonder that the long process of rulemaking and regulation-writing by HUD stands in the way of the president's boast about efficiently writing checks.

The goal is to use block grant funds correctly and without waste or corruption. The reality is that state and local officials face a new bureaucracy that reinvents the wheel, one of the reasons most cited for delays in aid after the 2016 flooding.

Louisiana's members of Congress and Gov. John Bel Edwards have spoken directly to new HUD Secretary Ben Carson, who visited New Orleans and Baton Rouge to observe the problems and opportunities here first hand.

These issues are complex. We don't need a new federal bureaucracy midway between FEMA and HUD. The taxpayer should be protected against fraudulent claims. But surely the events over the last dozen years in Louisiana should lead Congress to restructure how disaster aid is delivered, so that the checks come in a timely fashion for communities.

KPLC-TV
(8/18/2017 12:56 PM, Kevin Frey)
The Restore Louisiana Task Force has given the thumbs up to a plan that would expand the number of flood victims eligible for awards. Homeowners with flood insurance and remaining unmet needs after insurance payouts could now be eligible for an award. This means about 12,000 homeowners who have already completed the survey could now have access to funding. Homeowners that still have repairs to do can have their costs fully covered. Currently, for homeowners with incomes of more than 120 percent of the Area Median Income, the program only pays 50 percent of repair costs.

Homeowners with completed repairs can get be reimbursed by 50 percent, which is up from 25 percent before. Some changes will require HUD approval, which could take a few days. Pat Forbes, the executive director of the Office of Community Development, called the changes "Huge." "It eliminates the risk that we're going to have those neighborhoods with blight in them because people couldn't put the rest of the money together," he said.

U.S. News & World Report
(8/19/2017 2:11 AM, Associated Press)
DENHAM SPRINGS, La. - Louisiana's flood recovery board agreed Friday to Gov. John Bel Edwards' plan to widen eligibility for a homeowner aid program by including those whose flood insurance proceeds didn't cover their rebuilding costs.

Grant amounts for some homeowners without flood insurance who already had been eligible for limited rebuilding aid also will be boosted, under program changes unanimously backed by the Restore Louisiana Task Force. The $1.3 billion homeowner aid program was created with federal recovery dollars to help those with damage from the March and August 2016 floods. Of those with flood insurance, only elderly and disabled, low- to moderate-income homeowners had been eligible for the program.

Edwards' administration determined it can broaden eligibility based on applications received so far. "It's clear that there should be enough funds to meet additional unmet needs of affected households," Pat Forbes, executive director of the state's recovery agency, said in a statement. About $16 million in grants have been awarded to more than 550 homeowners so far. More than 40,000 people have taken the survey that is the first step to determining eligibility.

The Edwards administration has been trying to encourage more people to fill it out, knowing that about 100,000 homes were estimated to have been damaged by the floods.

Some of the adjustments approved Friday will require approval from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which oversees the federal recovery block grant money. Edwards' office expects to easily get the necessary support.

In April, EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt declared during a visit to East Chicago that places like West Calumet would be his top priority. During a 90-second statement at a news conference, he said he had come to “restore confidence” that the EPA was “going to get it right.”

Officials should “assess and make decisions and put the community first,” he said, adding that he was “taken” by his conversation with a few residents during the spring visit.

“The emotion, the passion was just telling,” Pruitt said.

Later, in an interview with The Washington Post, Pruitt criticized previous administrations for moving slowly and distributing fact sheets and warning signs. “How about cleaning it up? Pruitt said. “How about cleaning it up?”

At the end of July, Pruitt’s Superfund Task Force recommended creating a “top 10 list” of sites to prioritize. The administrator did not specify which sites, but mentioned East Chicago to reporters at EPA headquarters and called residents’ despair “heartbreaking.”

Ben Carson, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, which oversees the local housing authority, paid a visit this month. He acknowledged that West Calumet residents had been “inconvenienced” but said their relocations were “done in a good way.”

Of the hundreds of families who were ordered out of West Calumet last summer, Turner’s was one of the last to leave, dodging letters from housing officials threatening to ship her across state lines to Chicago. That was the city she fled a decade ago, where moms fear not dirt but bullets. She wanted to whisk her kids to safer ground but just couldn’t find any.

EAST CHICAGO — Residents will be listening Saturday for an answer to a simple question: Is the city’s water safe to drink?

Indiana Department of Environmental Management Drinking Water Branch Chief Mary Hollingsworth will give a presentation, and Commissioner Bruno Piggott will be in attendance at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency’s monthly meeting, an IDEM spokesman said.

Residents were frustrated last month when EPA Region 5 Groundwater and Drinking Water Division Regulations Manager Miguel Del Toral did not attend. EPA officials said he would instead appear this month with his counterparts from IDEM.

East Chicago did not respond by press time to questions about whether any city officials planned to attend the meeting, which is set for 10 a.m. at the old Carrie Gosch School in West Calumet.

It’s been seven months since Del Toral recommended residents citywide assume they have lead service lines and use water filters, and residents are fed up with “inaction and lack of communication” on the part of government agencies, said Thomas Frank, a member of the Community Strategy Group.

“We’ve been articulating our demands for seven months and there hasn’t been any answer,” Frank said. “So, what we’re going to be putting forward is our plan to try to protect our own water and try to address the issues in absence of any government solutions at this point."

The Community Strategy Group is working to identify funding to conduct third-party water testing, he said.

Residents have asked to be included on the agenda, but had not received any confirmation from EPA as of late Thursday morning, said Anjali Waikar, attorney for the Natural Resources Defense Council.

EPA found elevated lead levels last fall at 18 of 43 homes in the USS Lead Superfund site as part of a study related to its work there. The agency later said the problem was likely to be systemwide.

After a chaotic and rushed relocation for the 1,000-plus West Calumet residents, the Community Strategy Group in a letter to HUD Secretary Ben Carson is now asking the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to create an East Chicago Recovery Fund to support, in part:

A second move program option, which would allow former residents and the approximately 40 voucher holders living elsewhere in the Superfund site to move again "without the time constraints and barriers created by operational deficiencies." The program would include housing counseling and fund the cost of relocation. They are also seeking HUD to condition federally funded replacement housing so that residents get first priority rights to move back if they wish.

Risk assessments at all homes in which West Calumet residents now reside because of the previous years of exposure to lead and arsenic.

Relocation costs program to support former residents and cover incidental costs of moving, such as new school uniforms.

A homeowner/rental property relief program that could offer grants and no-to-low-interest loans to eligible households in the Superfund site to remediate their homes, in part, to address basement flooding. Rental properties would also be eligible.

A HUD's Departmental Enforcement Center broad review of East Chicago Housing Authority's programs, statements about the presence of lead abatement in public housing, and other actions and omissions and develop a plan of action to remedy potential violations.

HUD's Office of Inspector General investigation into the East Chicago Housing Authority's conduct of staff during the relocation process and statements regarding the presence of lead paint in units.

[IL] Communication chaos in Cairo: Confusion has replaced shock since HUD told 400 people they will have to move. (The Southern, IL)
The Southern
(8/21/2017 5:10 AM, Molly Parker)
CAIRO — It's been four months since HUD officials announced that about 400 residents would have to move out of their failing housing complexes in Cairo and relocate to other communities.

While some of the shock has worn off since the announcement, confusion and uncertainty have taken its place.

Coretta Cornelius, a McBride Place resident, said it's hard to get a clear answer about what options are available for the public housing residents whose complexes are slated for demolition and want to remain in the city.

"There's no reason why we should be hanging with this stuff over our heads after four months," said Cornelius, who shares her apartment with her 4-year-old daughter and is hoping to be able to stay in Cairo. "They need to clear it up. It's been four months."

On April 10, HUD officials called residents of Elmwood and McBride to a meeting to tell them that the complexes they call home are slated for eventual demolition, and that they would be provided relocation vouchers and assistance with finding other homes — though mostly outside of Cairo. After repeated calls that he visit the historical city before going through with a plan that could threaten its existence, HUD Secretary Ben Carson visited Cairo on Aug. 8, just shy of four months from the day that his staff delivered what many residents of the city perceived as a one-two punch: the buildings will be leveled because they were too far gone to save, and HUD does not have plans to rebuild public housing in Cairo.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

At a town hall style meeting at the Cairo Junior/Senior High School, Carson told residents that after driving around the city with Mayor Tyrone Coleman, it was clear that the city faced steep challenges. But he told residents, to resounding applause, "I think by the grace of God it's possible to save this place."

While visiting Cairo, Carson also said he recommitted his staff to continuing to work with the city to see if more options could be secured for people who want to remain in Cairo.

HUD: Residents encouraged to move before winter

HUD spokesman Jereon Brown said that the federal housing agency is exploring additional options as a result of Carson's visit and a brainstorming session with community leaders. Still, he said that residents are still being encouraged to move — and to do so before cold weather arrives in a matter of months. Regardless of what others may have read into the hopeful message by Carson, or what people are hearing from other local and federal elected leaders, Brown said that HUD's overarching plan has not changed.

"Unfortunately, we can't control the message from anyone else," Brown said. "We've done this before so we realize that lives and futures can be affected by the decision. Ultimately it comes down to who they believe."

Brown said one of the reasons they are encouraging families to move before winter is because the Alexander County Housing Authority, which is being run by HUD administrators in receivership, may not have the funds to repair or replace the aging boilers that heat the developments if they fail. He noted that residents were told in April they no longer had to pay rent — and many had stopped paying months prior to that in protest of their housing conditions and alleged mismanagement by past housing authority managers. This lack of payment to the ACHA further aggravates the deteriorated financial condition of the housing authority.

"We're working on some financial models, weighing options, comparing footprints, but for now, repairing boilers, if extensive work is required, is not financially feasible," he said.

For a number of years, residents have complained of inadequate heating systems forcing them to heat their homes with their ovens, which is extremely dangerous in any situation and especially where people live in such close quarters.

It was no different this past winter, even though by that point, HUD had been in control of the ACHA's operations for close to a year. Brown said the issue for this winter is that funds are limited and HUD administrators overseeing the local housing authority are trying to prioritize limited funds to improve the developments that can be salvaged.

"I'm not sure that it makes logical sense to repair units slated eventually for demolition when we have other units in better condition that are also in desperate need of maintenance," Brown said. "The newer units will be around longer so it actually makes more sense to repair those. That may not be seen as a compassionate answer, but it will help the seniors residing in those (other) complexes."

[IL] East St. Louis on track to regain local control of its housing authority (Belleville News-Democrat, IL)
Belleville News-Democrat

A federal housing official said once again Thursday that the East St. Louis Housing Authority would be returned to local control, but no timetable was announced.

Bill Tamburrino, director of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development office in Baltimore, Maryland, said, "I anticipate the transition back to local control, but we have not yet executed the transition agreement."

He said the target transition date is Aug. 31.

Tamburrino spoke during a meeting of the local housing authority. He said the agreement, once executed, would make them board members instead of advisory candidates. "They have to meet all of the requirements to be sworn in according to state laws," Tamburrino said. And, if everything happens in a timely manner the new five-member board could conduct the city's next housing authority meeting on Sept. 21, Tamburrino said.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Neither East St. Louis Mayor Emeka Jackson-Hicks nor Mildred Motley, executive director of the East St. Louis Housing Authority, could be reached for comment.

In 1985, HUD determined that the East St. Louis Housing Authority had substantially failed to meet its obligation as required by law. So, HUD took over the East St. Louis Housing Authority, its projects and programs, as allowed by law. Since that time, the East St. Louis Housing Authority has been under HUD control.

Later, there were failed efforts to put the housing authority under the control of the St. Clair County Housing Authority.

In 2015, East St. Louis filed suit seeking to have control returned to the city, but a federal judge ruled the courts have no authority to rule on the matter.

"We worked on it in 2013 and it didn't work out then. Now, I am glad to see it coming back to the city of East St. Louis," former mayor Alvin Parks Jr. said.

HUD's inspector general has also testified before Congress about the severe mismanagement at offshoots functioning independently-yet federally funded-in states across the country that have fleeced taxpayers out of hundreds of millions of dollars. He testified that his office discovered more than $200 million in questionable spending at local public housing agencies since 2012. Clearly, this is part of a much broader epidemic at HUD. A Michigan-area newspaper editorial blasts the agency for failing to protect taxpayer dollars and low-income families that need help. The piece cites other recent cases in which public employees stole from HUD's Section 8 program, including a 52-person ring in Ohio and schemes in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Colorado and Massachusetts. "It should be more difficult for housing commission directors to write checks to themselves," the editorial states. "And the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development should be keeping closer watch over its Section 8 voucher program." Hopefully President Trump's new HUD secretary, Ben Carson, will clean some house at the fraud-infested agency. We don't' need a newspaper editorial to tell us that "HUD clearly has a gap in its fiduciary responsibility."

San Francisco Chronicle
(8/19/2017 4:49 AM, Kimberly Veklerov)
Richmond Mayor Tom Butt is proposing the dismantling of the city's Housing Authority, saying that diminishing funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development make the agency's continued operations untenable.

Butt said dissolving the Richmond Housing Authority would not eliminate existing public housing, but would essentially divorce the city from financial responsibility over the subsidized homes. He said the city has spent millions to maintain the properties because HUD has not provided its fair share for upkeep.

In calling for the authority's elimination Friday, Butt requested that the authority first investigate the inadequacy of its federal funding levels. On his proposed witness list, the mayor floated a number of figures who he said could be subpoenaed to testify under California law, including HUD Secretary Ben Carson.

Butt said HUD is "obsessed" with faulting local housing authorities and has chosen to pick on a handful of them, including Richmond's. In his draft resolution, the mayor — who chairs the body that governs the city's Housing Authority — pointed to a series of recent complaints from HUD, including the authority's lack of independence from the city that has resulted in a multimillion-dollar debt owed by the authority to Richmond's general fund.

"HUD has tried to paint a picture nationwide that they are out there providing all the money and tools and administrative context, and the local agencies just aren't getting it done," Butt said. "That's sort of the perception they'll try to sell to you, and I don't think that's accurate."

HUD representatives didn't immediately respond to requests for comment Friday.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Richmond Housing Authority operates half a dozen public housing projects and administers the Section 8 voucher program for low-income residents.

A pair of audits by HUD investigators last year reprimanded the city authority for improperly spending $2.2 million in federal funds, submitting false documentation to the department and writing off rents owed by tenants.

The bottom line, Butt said, is that the city authority is not getting the funding it needs to operate and meet HUD's performance standards and regulations, which he called arbitrary.

Butt said that if his fellow Housing Authority commissioners agree to dissolve the agency, the city would work to maintain the existing public housing stock, but transfer it to another entity, such as the Contra Costa County Housing Authority, HUD, a nonprofit or a private developer.

"These housing authorities are just being starved," Butt said. "It's not sustainable. It's not working. We've got to find a way out."

[CA] San Bernardino City Council to decide: Does spending federal money on homeless help? (San Bernardino County Sun, CA)
San Bernardino County Sun
(8/19/2017 4:47 AM, Ryan Hagen)
SAN BERNARDINO - A meeting Monday will decide whether the city will spend $880,000 of federal money on a plan to help homeless people here or return the money out of fears that it will ultimately attract more homeless people to the city and burden taxpayers.

The meeting, scheduled for 6 p.m. in the board room at 201 North E St., continues a City Council meeting Wednesday where council members said they wouldn't approve the plan until they got more answers. The thrust of their questions: Will this project attract more homeless people to San Bernardino, burdening residents and discouraging business? "After meeting with constituents, there were a number of concerns raised," said Councilman Henry Nickel. "There remain concerns that as we build more facilities that accommodate these type of individuals, that it does attract more of those types of individuals to our community. It serves as a magnet to attract these type of individuals that seek services."

The City Council has already approved the project itself, which is to convert 21 apartments on Golden Avenue near Highland Avenue into 38 permanent housing units for homeless and low-income individuals, along with supportive services such as job placement and mental health counseling. This $880,000 would be used as a loan to help the developer acquire the property.

The nonprofit in charge of the project, Inland Empire Housing First Programs - Step Up, has projects in other cities and would house homeless people from those cities there, Kim Albers, the organization's vice president, said during the meeting. "So I don't think in any way this particular project could serve as a magnet," Albers said, adding that outreach would focus on the area immediately around the project. Councilman Jim Mulvihill added that the program is intensive and longterm - not an overnight shelter - making it unlikely to result in any new people on the streets, he said.

Nickel as well as Councilman John Valdivia and Councilwoman Bessine Richard expressed concern that San Bernardino was taking on the burden of other cities' homeless populations, attracting more homeless and focusing resources on that issue instead of attracting business. That led Richard to suggest continuing the discussion later.

The city faces a relatively tight deadline: The federal HOME funds must be spent by Aug. 31, or they will be reclaimed by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for use in other parts of the country, according to city staff.

A persistent concern among many in San Bernardino - as well as other cities like Redlands, where the number of homeless people counted rose this year - is that offering services to homeless people will draw people from other communities. That's why the county intends to go to every city with a double-digit number of homeless people to bring them into the program and create a level playing field, the county's homelessness czar, Philip Mangano, told the San Bernardino City Council in April.

The feds want about a million dollars from the state of New Jersey. At issue, loans given to some victims of Hurricane Sandy that auditors suggest were not eligible. New Jersey would beg to differ. It comes down to money, with the HUD Inspector General's office saying as many as 39 applicants exceeded income guidelines. Lisa Ryan with New Jersey's Department of Community Affairs responds by saying the auditors are in error. "We do admit that there were applicant income exceedances in Atlantic County due to a clerical error," Ryan told KYW Newsradio, "But we also believe that most of those exceedances were extremely small.

For example, one applicant exceeded the income limit by only 91 dollars." "We believe that a lot of these income exceedances, they don't detract from the program's overall purpose which was to provide home buyer assistance to people who were affected by Sandy who otherwise would have been not able to purchase a home," she added. The state has filed a formal response with HUD, which makes the final call. Ryan says the state hopes to work out the issue in a way that "advances Sandy recovery in New Jersey in a positive fashion."

Ginnie Mae – which hasn't had a confirmed president since inauguration day – will not hold its annual summit this fall, pushing the usually well-attended pow-wow to January 2018. A Ginnie spokesman told Inside FHA/VA Lending a new administration and staff departures have caused organizers to reconsider their plans.

The Trump administration has yet to announce a nominee for the top job at Ginnie Mae since former president Ted Tozer left in January. Industry veteran David Kittle, who has held top posts at the Mortgage Bankers Association, is rumored to be the first choice for the job, but there has been no official announcement or nomination. Michael Bright, a former PennyMac executive who joined the agency a few months back as executive vice president and chief operating officer, is acting president of the agency, whose guarantees back $1.8 trillion of MBS.

Bank of America to Pay $6 Million to Bankrupt Couple Evicted From Home (Wall Street Journal)

Erik and Renee Sundquist agree to a settlement in the eight-year-long mortgage dispute

Bank of America Corp. has agreed to pay more than $6 million to a California couple who a federal judge said had been harassed and illegally foreclosed on by the bank's mortgage unit, ending an eight-year-long dispute.

The proposed settlement between the bank and Erik and Renee Sundquist would enable them "to end a long personal and legal nightmare that has impacted every facet of their and their sons' lives," according to court papers the couple filed to request that their 2014 lawsuit against the bank be dropped.

The deal calls for Bank of America to pay a fraction of the fine of more than $46 million ordered by Judge Christopher Klein in March. In his ruling, the judge said the bank's mortgage modification process and mistaken foreclosure on the Sundquists' home in Lincoln, Calif., left them in "a state of battle-fatigued demoralization."

The exact amount that the bank will pay the Sundquists is confidential, according to documents filed Tuesday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Sacramento. The earlier order called for the bank to pay the couple nearly $6.1 million in damages.

[LA] Louisiana seeks to expand flood recovery programs for homeowners (Baton Rouge Advocate, LA)

(8/18/2017 2:55 PM, Elizabeth Crisp)
As the state works to ramp up its flood recovery programs, some homeowners still seeking assistance a year after the historic floods told a panel tasked with overseeing efforts that they are growing frustrated with the process.

One by one, more than a dozen homeowners told the Restore Louisiana Task Force on Friday of inspection mix ups, delayed communications, confusion over qualifications and other issues.

Members of the task force diligently took notes and vowed to help work out the kinks in the process. Officials from Gov. John Bel Edwards' administration followed up one-on-one with people in the crowd.

"This will never be fast enough for any of us," said Pat Forbes, director of the Office of Community Development.

The Restore Louisiana Task Force's meeting Friday took place in Denham Springs – one of the areas hardest hit by the August downpour. Officials estimate that nearly half of the Denham Springs area homeowners who had FEMA-verified loss in the flood haven't yet taken the initial step of filling out an introductory survey to get into the pipeline for assistance, about 7,500 households.

Statewide, about 41,000 of the more than 90,000 homeowners who have losses verified by FEMA have filled out the survey at Statewide, about 41,000 of the more than 90,000 homeowners who have losses verified by FEMA have filled out the survey at restore.la.gov.

The task force on Friday agreed to ask for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's approval to open up the homeowner recovery program to those who had flood insurance who were previously excluded. They expect it could impact some 12,000 homeowners, who will be notified if they have taken the survey.

Forbes said HUD's approval should be granted quickly.

Mayor Ron Nirenberg on Friday laid out his vision for San Antonio's future in a wide-ranging speech in which he declared that "San Antonio is open for business," and that officials must work diligently and quickly to address both a massive shortage in affordable housing and gentrification. The mayor made his remarks at a North San Antonio Chamber of Commerce luncheon downtown. During a post-address news conference, responding to an inquiry about his making a major policy speech at a luncheon that wasn't the annual State of the City address, Nirenberg said he wanted to outline his vision and plans and hopes to offer major headway on his priority initiatives by the time he gives the annual address in the spring. The mayor delivered prepared remarks he read from teleprompters - rarely ad-libbing - and covered topics such as transportation, crime, economic development and gentrification in the 24-minute speech.

He also announced that he's formed a new task force charged with developing a comprehensive housing policy for San Antonio, one that will address the lack of affordable housing and gentrification issues here. The Mayor's Housing Policy Task Force will be led by Lourdes Castro-Ramirez, the former CEO of the San Antonio Housing Authority who went on to become the principal deputy assistant secretary of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, under then Secretary Julian Castro. San Antonio is facing a major housing crisis, Nirenberg said, one that can no longer be ignored. In the ensuing two decades, the city will need more than 500,000 new multifamily and single-family residences to accommodate the expected surge in population. A city-funded analysis shows that there's currently a need for 142,000 affordable housing units and Census data show nearly 20 percent of San Antonians are living in poverty, he said. The task force will develop policy recommendations, working in concert with city and nonprofit staffers.

[TX] Nirenberg Forms Housing Task Force to Address Affordability, Gentrification (Rivard Report, TX)
Rivard Report
(8/18/2017 6:02 PM, Jeffrey Sullivan)
Mayor Ron Nirenberg announced Friday the formation of a task force to develop a "comprehensive, compassionate" housing strategy for the city to deal with growth and rising median home prices.

"This is developing a new framework of policy that will deal with affordability issues, and directly address gentrification and displacement as a priority," Nirenberg said following his speech at the North San Antonio Chamber of Commerce's 2017 Mayor's Vision for San Antonio event downtown.

The Mayor's Housing Policy Task Force will be led by former U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary Lourdes Castro-Ramirez. Other members include former City Councilwoman María Berriozábal; Gene Dawson Jr., owner of Pape-Dawson Engineering; Jim Bailey, Alamo Architects associate principal; and Noah Garcia, Vantage Bank senior vice president.

"They will be charged with assuring that San Antonio maintains its competitive advantage in housing affordability while we grow in a sustainable way," Nirenberg said to a room filled with some of the city's business and government leaders. Nirenberg said the task force is necessary to help ensure that the city gets the 500,000 new housing units needed to accommodate expected growth over the next 20 years, and to make sure that people aren't priced out of the neighborhoods in which they grew up. The mayor also noted that the city is facing an affordable housing shortage and needs 142,000 new affordable housing units.

Driving through Skid Row, witnessing homeless encampments near luxury apartment complexes, encountering people living in their cars, hearing stories about long commutes to the Antelope Valley for cheaper housing, or reading the latest data of soaring housing prices and rents lets you know that LA is in the midst of a severe housing crisis. This is not news, but the latest report from the U.S. Department and Housing and Urban Development documents that it is much worse than you thought. Los Angeles and New York top the list of U.S. cities in which residents either live in substandard housing or have a heavy a rent burden. Los Angeles has 1 million very poor households, 57 percent of which spend more than half their income on housing, much of which is substandard. LA's homeless population grew by 23 percent last year, and one of the chief causes was rising rents.

Most of us cannot see it, but according to Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti, it is there, and it can be found in his June 30, 2017, Quarterly Status Report on Directive 13: Support for Affordable Housing. The Mayor's goal is to build 15,000 new affordable units between 2013 and 2021, or approximately 2000 units per year. To date, Los Angeles has built slightly less than 6,000 new affordable units, but this total includes preserved affordable units and first-time homebuyer loans. If those are excluded from the Mayor's list, the total of actual new affordable units constructed in Los Angeles since 2013 is around 4,000. This figure is less than the number of rent stabilized units removed from the market each year through evictions, such as 1370 units lost in 2016.

Trump could undermine civil rights progress more than any other president (The Hill)
The Hill
(8/18/2017 3:41 PM, Maya Rupert and Cashauna Hill)
After barely eight months in office, President Trump has secured his legacy: If left unchecked, he will undermine civil rights progress in this country more than any president in modern history. This week has shown previews of this dangerous agenda. Since beginning his campaign, Trump has fanned the flames of racism, bigotry, and xenophobia - from calling Mexicans rapists, making a border wall one of his central campaign promises, implementing a Muslim travel ban, and using dog-whistle politics to talk in veiled terms about black communities. Despite a number of challenges to some of his more high-profile attacks on communities of color, Trump has effectively used executive action to significantly roll back civil rights enforcement in this country. This month, the U.S. Department of Justice announced it would investigate and potentially sue universities over affirmative action policies in admissions.

Prior to that, the DOJ's briefing came on the heels of the president announcing - via Twitter - that he would ban transgender service members from serving in any capacity in the U.S. military. These high-profile announcements have come amidst of several less-reported but troubling civil rights developments, including announcements that the Department of Housing and Urban Development is dropping a crucial case on exclusionary housing policies; the administration plans to significantly limit the offices of civil rights at several agencies.

Just this week, amidst Trump's comments that have further emboldened white supremacists who see an opportunity in his presidency, HUD dealt another huge blow to fair housing when they announced the suspension of a rule that helps low-income families move to lower poverty communities. Without this rule, low-income families - often families of color - will continue to be segregated into lower opportunity communities, and it will be more difficult to achieve integrated neighborhoods.

[DC] Homeless LGBT youth find a place to call their own in D.C. (Washington Post)
Washington Post
(8/19/2017 7:43 PM, Madhumita Murgia)
In a blue rowhouse in the District's Eastern Market, Tiara is wiggling her hips and singing along throatily with 21 other black youths. Their voices are velvet. Tiara, in her rainbow-striped top, press-on blue nails and yellow sneakers is dressed down for the occasion; her friends dazzle in red wigs, sparkly eyeliner, crop tops and leather miniskirts. As the keyboardist pounds out the melody, arms are raised, heads thrown back and all the voices come together in a crescendo.

The group is Breaking Ground, a local theater collective for LGBT youths of color; they are rehearsing for their next performance in September, a musical extravaganza chronicling their varied life stories. Hers, Tiara knows, is unusual even among this eclectic group. But for now, she is just reveling in the luxury of being herself.

Like so many young transgender people in the city, Tiara is not a D.C. local. She was drawn in because of the city's progressive laws, vibrant LGBT community and social support for people like her. She's living in a newly opened transitional housing apartment off Benning Road in northeast D.C., run by the LGBT nonprofit Supporting and Mentoring Youth Advocates and Leaders (SMYAL). The building opened its doors to eight homeless youths in January, trying to plug a vast gap in the city's resources for young LGBT people without housing; Tiara, in her early 20s, was the first resident to move in. Next summer, she will have to move out and find her own way.

This apartment is not much like home, she often marvels. The ghetto in Harare, Zimbabwe, where she lived until last year is home also to the Chipangano, the ruthless youth militia linked to President Robert Mugabe. She worked discreetly as an LGBT youth activist, but no one outside her family knew she wanted to live as a woman, or even that she was gay. She went by her male name, Traimo. Every time she dabbed on face powder or wore a tight top in public, she felt like she was participating in a small revolution. Her first thoughts when she woke up every morning were, "Am I going to come home alive today?"

[OK] Initiative to end chronic and veteran homelessness still going strong (Tulsa World, OK)

Housing 641 veterans and 187 chronically homeless people already exceeds original targets

An initiative to end chronic and veteran homelessness has far exceeded its initial numeric goals in terms of housing.

Reaching the goal of functional zero, meaning the number of homeless and sheltered is not greater than the monthly housing rate, is still a ways off.

The path to getting to functional zero is taking shape as agencies are working together to create a new intake system to ensure those needing services the most are getting the help they need. Since 2015, 641 veterans and 187 chronically homeless individuals have been housed through the A Way Home for Tulsa and the Zero:2016 initiative. Zero:2016 is a national initiative to end veteran and chronic homelessness that is spearheaded locally by a consortium of 23 agencies named A Way Home for Tulsa.

Chronic homelessness is defined by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development as someone who has been continuously homeless for one full year or four times within the past three years and has a disability. The original goal was to end veteran and chronic homelessness by housing 290 veterans by the end of 2015 and 89 chronically homeless by the end of 2016. "The positive is we're housing individuals," said Mack Haltom, associate director of the Tulsa Day Center for the Homeless. "We're also still dealing with inflow."

As of Friday morning, the names of 207 veterans and 106 chronically homeless were on a list of current homeless that was created as part of the initiative.

SALT LAKE CITY — A Utah high school teacher is getting married next month. But instead of registering for a blender or stemware, she's asking for shoes and backpacks to give homeless children at her school.

Copper Hills High School teacher Rickee Stewart said she was shocked when she found out more than 100 homeless students attend her school. She learned about the homeless students after the school set up a food pantry.

"One of my students walked up very quietly and said, 'So, my mom wants to know how I can actually get some of that food,' " Stewart said. "It's very real."

This realization prompted Stewart to tell her wedding guests they can donate to her homeless student project in lieu of gifts, KSL-TV reported Thursday.

(8/18/2017 3:36 PM, Bob Erlenbusch)
The 2017 Homeless Count for Sacramento County documented a dramatic increase in the number of homeless people, rising from 2,822 in 2015 to 3,665 in 2017, of which 56 percent are unsheltered. That's 2,000 neighbors in Sacramento County, through no fault of their own, forced to live outside, including along the American River Parkway.

The county Board of Supervisors should move with a sense of urgency to expand the number of emergency shelter beds and should be prioritizing additional funds to a woefully underfunded system of mental health and addiction services for homeless people to leverage the $32 million in "Whole Person Care" funding the city has received.

Instead, in late August, the board will consider spending an additional $3 million to $5 million on its "Whack-a-mole" strategy to increase law enforcement along the parkway to hand out camping citations to people who have nowhere else to go.

Supervisors should forget playing 'whack-a-mole' on the parkway. Instead, expand shelter beds, prioritize homeless people for mental health care and housing and work with the city on Whole Person Care. The supervisors recently authorized an additional $6.2 million on four new homeless initiatives, one of which was for a full-service, 24-hour dormitory-style shelter for up to 75 people. The sad reality is this center will not open until mid-2018 and only meets 3 percent of the need. There is no sense of urgency or scale and no coordination with the city's initiatives.

Despite the supervisors' claims that they can't arrest their way out of homelessness, their budget priorities tell a different story. Overall, the county spends $40 million annually on homelessness, of which only $6 million is county general fund. Law enforcement already accounts for 67 percent of this $6 million; the planned increase for parkway enforcement would weight the county's strategy even more toward arrests.

How would the Sacramento Regional Coalition to End Homelessness spend an additional $5 million? Triple the number of full-service rehousing shelters, housing 225 people; or employ 100 homeless people at $50,000 each, effectively giving them the means to house themselves.

They could be deployed to help with debris removal and navigation to community resources, among other needed functions. We would leverage city funds by prioritizing homeless people for care at county-run mental health and addiction programs and for county-controlled housing vouchers.

Slow going for remaining families at Church Street South

NEW HAVEN >> Where once there were 283 families, there are now 16.

The deteriorated 48-year-old crumbling Church Street South complex is eerily quiet these days as relocation specialist Jocelyne Barsczewski, an employee of the Housing Authority of New Haven, continues to counsel the remaining tenants on the site who need to find new homes.

The first Section 8 vouchers from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development were passed out to tenants who wanted them in May 2016, but it could still be months before the few remaining tenants leave.

"We are right there in the home stretch," Barsczewski recently told tenants at a meeting at the complex.

Barsczewski said there are 11 families left at the cavernous complex with vouchers that will allow them to move anywhere HUD finds the apartment acceptable and the landlord agrees to accept a rental cap.

Public housing residents and employees from around the country are gathered in Philadelphia for a conference on how to cope with changing policies under the Trump administration. The conference offers workshops on creative use of limited resources and self-sufficiency through education and small businesses.

The host, Philadelphia Housing Authority Chief Kelvin Jeremiah, says it's about empowering residents who face sharp cuts in government help. "The reductions that are proposed would be devastating, impacting the most vulnerable people: seniors, disabled, homeless, and people at the bottom of the economic ladder. And they should be participating in the process of determining what happens to them," Jeremiah said. PHA resident-board member Asia Coney says tenants understand, and are seeking new opportunities, but she also hopes they'll leave committed to preserving what's left. "Public housing is a need that folks will always have," she said.

[VA] Charlottesville, "happiest city in America" — but for whom? (Salon)
Salon
(8/20/2017 1:47 PM, Emma Eisenberg)
When a city with a white supremacist presence and marginalized black working class is run by genteel "progressives"

There was a moment on Saturday, August 12th that happened quickly but changed the course of everything that came after it. Around noon, a small group of white supremacists who had left the center of the protests at Emancipation Park walked down to an affordable housing complex called Friendship Court and, standing at its entrance, hurled racist slurs at black residents. Back at Emancipation Park, word spread among counter-protesters that Charlottesville black residents needed help, and a throng headed south to offer their bodies as support. But by time they got close to the housing complex, an organizer with Anarchist People of Color told them to turn back. The residents had already handled the situation, she told the marchers.

As they turned back up fourth street, the first march ran into another group of counter-protesters also under instructions to head to Friendship Court. It was a moment of jubilation — the residents had successfully defended themselves, and the official "Unite the Right" rally had been effectively shut down. The two marches merged, creating a huge congestion of people. But this mood lasted only a few minutes. It was into this rejoicing crowd that 20-year-old James Alex Fields Jr. gunned his car, then backed it up, and gunned it again.

It makes a cruel kind of sense that Heather Hyer and the others who were hit by Fields' car had just come from standing in solidarity with residents of this particular public housing complex, for it lies at the very center of the city and at the center of what happened this weekend in more ways than one.

"The site itself is in the heart of downtown and the center of the city's Strategic Investment Area," a developer named Frank Grosch with the Piedmont Housing Authority (PHA) told a crowd assembled at the well-heeled Omni Hotel in September of 2015. "And it's an extraordinarily valuable piece of real estate." It was at that same breakfast fundraiser that Grosch announced that the PHA would acquire the 150-unit subsidized apartment complex in 2018 and redevelop it as a mixed-income neighborhood.

The Trump administration just disbanded a federal advisory committee on climate change (Washington Post)
Washington Post
(8/20/2017 11:50 PM, Juliet Eilperin)
The Trump administration has decided to disband the federal advisory panel for the National Climate Assessment, a group aimed at helping policymakers and private-sector officials incorporate the government's climate analysis into long-term planning.

The charter for the 15-person Advisory Committee for the Sustained National Climate Assessment — which includes academics as well as local officials and corporate representatives — expires Sunday. On Friday, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's acting administrator, Ben Friedman, informed the committee's chair that the agency would not renew the panel.

The National Climate Assessment is supposed to be issued every four years but has come out only three times since passage of the 1990 law calling for such analysis. The next one, due for release in 2018, already has become a contentious issue for the Trump administration.

Administration officials are currently reviewing a scientific report that is key to the final document. Known as the Climate Science Special Report, it was produced by scientists from 13 different federal agencies and estimates that human activities were responsible for an increase in global temperatures of 1.1 to 1.3 degrees Fahrenheit from 1951 to 2010.

How workers on government construction jobs are victimized by contractors that stand little chance of being caught

Poor track record of oversight

Government subcontractors underpay their employees any number of ways, Labor Department records show. Some companies misclassify workers, claiming they belong to a lower-paying trade, as the Labor Department found with the GSA asbestos-removers. Others have been caught striking employees from payroll records entirely. Still others cut workers' hours on paper to make it appear that the wages paid reflected actual time worked.

In one case, air-conditioner installers on a job financed in part by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development were routinely given paychecks reflecting the $50.70 per hour to which they were entitled under Davis-Bacon. They were forced to cash the checks and return about half the money to their employer, Igloo HVAC LLC, the Labor Department alleged. Payroll records submitted to HUD reflected none of this.

The Labor Department settled the case with Igloo HVAC, which paid more than $80,000 in back wages to five workers. Roberto Flores, the company's owner, declined to comment, citing the settlement agreement. A HUD spokesman said that while the agency reviews payroll records submitted for projects it finances, it can't always verify the accuracy of those records.

Wage theft in federal contracting has taken on new urgency as the Trump administration proposes a “great rebuilding of our country,” a $1 trillion increase in public infrastructure investment over the next 10 years.

The Complex Relationship Between Innovation and Economic Segregation (The Atlantic CityLab)
The Atlantic CityLab
(8/21/2017 5:45 AM, Richard Florida)
It’s not just the tech industry that’s responsible for America’s stratifying cities.

Not too long ago, cities were bending over backward to attract high-tech companies, which they saw as offering good, high paying jobs. City after city developed programs designed to turn them into the “next Silicon Valley.”

But now, from the backlash against Airbnb and Uber to protests over high-tech companies and their shuttle busses, high-tech companies are increasingly seen more as villains than saviors, to blame for making cities less affordable and for the growing gap between the rich and the poor. Indeed, America’s leading high-tech centers—the Bay Area, Boston, New York, Washington D.C., Austin, San Diego, and Raleigh all rank highly on various measures of wage and income inequality.

But to what degree do high-tech industry and economic segregation go together?

A new study by me and my colleague, Charlotta Mellander, takes a deep dive into this issue. Our analysis covers the majority of America’s 350-plus metros. Within them, we measure innovation both in terms of patents (the most commonly used measure of innovation by economists) and the concentration of high-tech industry. We measure economic segregation through several models based on income, education, and occupation, as well as a combined measure of overall economic segregation based on all three.

Treasury Secretary Mnuchin Rejects Calls to Resign, Defends President Trump (Wall Street Journal)

‘Some of these issues are far more complicated than we are led to believe by the mass media,’ Treasury chief says

Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin rejected calls for him to resign in protest of President Donald Trump’s response to violence at a white-nationalist rally in Charlottesville, Va., last weekend, and defended the president in a statement Saturday evening.

Mr. Mnuchin condemned the “actions of those filled with hate and with the intent to harm others.”

“While I find it hard to believe I should have to defend myself on this, or the president, I feel compelled to let you know that the president in no way, shape or form believes that neo-Nazi and other hate groups who endorse violence are equivalent to groups that demonstrate in peaceful and lawful ways,” Mr. Mnuchin said.

About 300 of Mr. Mnuchin’s classmates from the Yale University undergraduate class of 1985 posted a letter online Friday asking Mr. Mnuchin to resign in protest of Mr. Trump’s comments.

“It is your moral obligation,” they said. “We know you are better than this, and we are counting on you to do the right thing.”

Justice Department charges

Nonetheless, in 2015 the U.S. Justice Department charged Oberman and the co-op with unlawfully attempting to evict residents, citing a "pattern or practice of discrimination against residents." The feds said Oberman allegedly began eviction proceedings against a resident who had a dog in violation of building rules at the time. It turned out the dog owner was a veteran of combat in Afghanistan who under federal law had the right to own a pet—a shih tzu named Mickey—to help cope with post-traumatic stress disorder. Prosecutors also accused Oberman and Trump Village of threatening to evict three other dog-owning residents, denying them preferred parking spaces and retaliating against one by removing the person from the co-op board.

The case came after the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development charged Oberman and Trump Village in 2015 with freezing people on the waiting list for parking spaces and leapfrogging at least one person to the top of the line.

Oberman, who stepped aside as co-op board president in 2015, said Trump Village is now pet-friendly and the Justice Department case was settled confidentially in July.

In the meantime Oberman faces other legal challenges. As part of the strategy to market Trump Village apartments to families, a photo showing him with his wife and young child was put on the co-op's marketing materials at the same time he was running for City Council. In May the Campaign Finance Board staff determined that Oberman illegally used co-op cash to promote his unsuccessful campaign, according to records obtained by Crain's under the Freedom of Information Law. He and his campaign face up to $25,000 in penalties and restitution, although a lawyer for Oberman, Laurence Laufer, said he believes the case will be dismissed without financial penalties at an administrative hearing scheduled for Aug. 21. In 2014 the city fined Oberman $7,500 after saying he used his TLC workplace phone to raise money for his campaign.

[VA] Tim Kaine column: Virginians must respond to this pain by accelerating progress (Richmond Times-Dispatch, VA)
Richmond Times-Dispatch
(8/21/2017 4:45 AM, Senator Tim Kaine)
Last Saturday, America and the world were confronted with scenes of neo-Nazis, Klansmen, and other white supremacists terrorizing the citizens of Charlottesville. Ostensibly protesting the locally elected government's democratic decision to remove a monument of Robert E. Lee, the ralliers chanted racist, anti-Semitic, homophobic messages having nothing to do with statues or heritage. They came to spew hate.

And it was more than just words. Heavily armed "militia" members intimidated local citizens. A mob beat Deandre Harris unconscious. A white supremacist intentionally drove his car into a crowd of people, killing 32-year-old Heather Heyer and injuring dozens of others who came to stand up for love and tolerance. And the ensuing chaos resulted in the deaths of Virginia State Police officers Berke Bates and Jay Cullen as they worked to restore peace.

As I attended the memorial services for these brave Virginians, each killed standing up for Virginia values of equality and order, I sought to understand this grievous attack on our commonwealth. And more importantly, I sought to determine how we must respond to it.

The events in Charlottesville did not occur in a vacuum. Our commonwealth knows well the pain of racism and division. The arrival of shackled Africans in Virginia in 1619 began the monstrous institution of slavery in our country. Richmond became the capital of an insurgent breakaway nation dedicated to the maintenance of slavery and the principle of white supremacy. And when slavery collapsed, succeeding generations embraced Jim Crow and Massive Resistance rather than living in accord with the principles we hollowly proclaimed to be self-evident.

In Grays Harbor County, Wash., the collapsed logging economy has been replaced by despair, homelessness, drugs and alcohol. Some Trump voters here maintain confidence in him; others are afraid.

ABERDEEN, Wash. (AP) — One-hundred-fifty baskets of pink petunias hang from the light posts all over this city, watered regularly by residents trying to make their community feel alive again. A local artist spends his afternoons high in a bucket truck, painting a block-long mural of a little girl blowing bubbles, each circle the scene of an imagined, hopeful future.

But in the present, vacant buildings dominate blocks. A van, stuffed so full of blankets and boxes they are spilling from the windows, pulls to the curb outside Stacie Blodgett's antiques shop.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

“Look inside of it,” she says. “I bet you he’s living in it.”

Around the corner, a crowded tent city of the desperate and addicted has taken over the riverbank, makeshift memorials to too many dead too young jutting up intermittently from the mud.

America, when viewed through the bars on Blodgett’s windows, looks a lot less great than it used to be. So she answered Donald Trump’s call to the country’s forgotten corners. Thousands of her neighbors did, too, and her county, once among the most reliably Democratic in the nation, swung Republican in a presidential election for the first time in 90 years.

“People were like, ‘This guy’s going to be it. He’s going to change everything, make it better again,’“ she says.

Blodgett stands at the computer on her counter and scrolls through the headlines. Every day it’s something new: details in the Russia campaign investigation, shake-ups at the White House, turmoil over Trump’s response to race-fueled riots. His administration’s failed plans to remake the health care system may or may not cost millions their coverage, and there’s a lack of clarity over how exactly he intends to eradicate a spiraling drug crisis that now claims 142 American lives each day — a growing number of them here, in Grays Harbor County.

“Has he done anything good yet?” she asks. “Has he?”

Blodgett was born and raised in this county, where the logging economy collapsed decades ago, replaced by a simmering sense of injustice that outsiders took the lumber, built cities around the world and then left this place to decay when there was nothing more to take. The community sank into despair. Suicides increased, addiction took root. Blodgett is 59, and the rate at which people here die from drugs and alcohol has quadrupled in her lifetime.

Housing secretary will give keynote address at Native American Housing Association meeting

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Ben Carson will be visit Northwest Montana on Monday.

Carson will be delivering the keynote address at the Native American Housing Association's summer meeting at the KwaTaqNuk Resort in Polson on Aug. 21. According to a press release, Carson will speak about "healthy, affordable housing for tribal communities and eliminating burdensome regulations that inhibit prosperity and self-sufficiency."

Carson, a noted neurosurgeon, was tapped by President Donald Trump to lead the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development earlier this year. Carson unsuccessfully ran for the Republican presidential nomination in 2016.

In 2014, Carson spoke at a fundraiser for Stillwater Christian School in Kalispell.

Last week, Gov. Steve Bullock joined a ceremonial groundbreaking celebration in front of a new multifamily affordable housing unit that is scheduled to open sometime in December.

On Monday, Aug. 21, U.S. Housing and Urban Development Secretary Ben Carson will deliver a keynote address that a news release said promises to "discuss healthy, affordable housing for tribal community and eliminating burdensome regulations that inhibit prosperity and self-sufficiency."

Carson also plans to speak to members of the United Native American Housing Authority from the Great Plains region and visit local Native American communities to learn firsthand the status of affordable housing on tribal lands.

Carson is scheduled to speak at the KwaTaqNuk Resort in Polson at 3 p.m.

WASHINGTON — When Pam Patenaude was nominated by President Trump as the No. 2 at the Department of Housing and Urban Development, she was supposed to help make up for the inexperience of the leader of the agency, the retired neurosurgeon Ben Carson.

But four months later, Patenaude's nomination remains in limbo, as does that of Paul Compton, the pick to be the department's general counsel.

That has left HUD facing a leadership crisis, with other key roles like the head of the Federal Housing Administration and Ginnie Mae going unfilled by the Trump administration.

"If you are a defender of the mission of HUD, you are going to want HUD to have a No. 2 chief operating officer like Pam as deputy secretary and a general counsel in place so you can give Secretary Carson more staff and more capacity to run the agency," said Bill Killmer, senior vice president for legislative and political affairs at the Mortgage Bankers Association.

While other agencies have also been hamstrung with senior jobs unfilled, the problem is particularly acute at HUD because Carson acknowledges he lacks prior experience. It has left key decisions, including whether to lower Federal Housing Administration premiums, unresolved for long stretches of time while Carson waits for his senior staff to arrive.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

It's not clear why the Senate has not acted on Patenaude, a former HUD assistant secretary who is now president of the J. Ronald Terwilliger Foundation for Housing America's Families. Her nomination was approved by the Senate Banking Committee in April. Democrats lack the ability to filibuster nominees, but by Senate tradition, a single lawmaker can sometimes place a hold on a nominee.

Some industry observers pointed to Sens. Elizabeth Warren, D-Mass., and Robert Menendez, D-N.J., as likely holding Patenaude up. Democrats objected to her after she defended President Trump's budget request to slash funding for HUD. (Congress appears to have ignored Trump's request, with the appropriations panels in both chambers approving bills that would fund HUD at its current level.)

A spokesperson for Warren did not return calls seeking comment; a spokesman for Menendez said the New Jersey Democrat was not involved.

"While the senator has certainly expressed concerns about the president's fiscal year 2018 budget request, he does not have a hold on the nominees," the spokesman said.

Edward Mills, a financial policy analyst and managing director at FBR Capital Markets, said the delay in filling crucial housing positions is a "reflection of how far we have come since the financial crisis." The housing market has stabilized and "it shows that housing is not the priority it used to be," Mills said.

To be sure, some officials have been confirmed to jobs at HUD. The Senate voted Aug. 3 to approve more than 70 nominees for various government agencies, including Anna Maria Farias as HUD assistant secretary for Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity and Neal Rackleff as the assistant secretary for the Office of Community Planning and Development.

"We finally have two of our four Senate-confirmed folks on board. ... Still, it would be nice to have our deputy and our general counsel aboard," a HUD spokesman said, referring to Patenaude and Compton.

But other top jobs aren't even in the pipeline. Brian Montgomery, who previously served as FHA commissioner under President George W. Bush, is widely expected to be nominated again for the job. David Kittle, a former chairman of the Mortgage Bankers Association, is said to be Trump's pick for Ginnie Mae.

Despite months of speculation, however, they have not been officially announced. "It is hard to understand why Montgomery and Kittle are being held up," said a source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Killmer said that with every new administration, "the clearance process has become more intense and laborious and takes more time. Each nomination has a different rhythm or tempo."

It appears to be taking longer for Montgomery go through the nomination clearance process because of his work in the private sector and possible conflicts of interest as a co-founder and managing director of the Collingwood Group, a mortgage consulting firm.

"I have been waiting for the FHA nomination," Mills at FBR Capital Markets said. "That will be one the most compelling things in relation to the direction where the Trump administration wants to go with its housing policy. It is unclear if the new administration wants to shrink FHA or expand it."

If Montgomery is chosen, "there won't be an aggressive reduction," Mills said.

But the new FHA commissioner will be looking for redundancies between areas served by the FHA and those served by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. "And seeing if you can reduce that overlap," Mills said.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Also in the mix is the role of the FHA in any future housing finance system.

House Financial Services Committee Chairman Jeb Hensarling, R-Tex., has been trying to limit the activities of the government-sponsored enterprises and the FHA for several years.

Senate Banking Committee Chairman Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, meanwhile, has indicated recently that he wants GSE reform to "include consideration of FHA as well," Killmer said. "So it is not just a House thing."

Fear of reassignments, buyouts pushes HUD to more transparent change management (Federal News Radio)
Federal News Radio
(8/18/2017 11:15 AM, Jason Miller)
For the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the effort to restructure itself is not an exercise in workforce reduction.

HUD political appointees say they understand the real impact on morale moving senior executives or offering buyouts could have on the agency.

David Eagles, the chief operating officer of HUD, said the department has spent a lot of time trying to mitigate any concerns around the current or upcoming personnel and process changes.

“We have been committed to a highly engaged process. What I’m really proud of at HUD is this has really been an employee-up plan. We’ve gotten a lot of feedback from all levels of HUD, and that includes the field, headquarters, frontline and senior leadership, hundreds of recommendations and we’ve distilled those into some good ideas,” Eagles said, in an exclusive interview with Federal News Radio. “What I’m excited about is people understand that we’ve got to be very focused on, and this is a governmentwide issue, on empowering people to be successful who for years and for decades and decades have had new rules and regulations and new ideas just pile on top of federal agencies and every year it gets more hamstrung to be able to do what you need to do to be effective.”

Eagles said HUD’s leadership has reached out to employees through emails, online surveys and meet-and-greets over the last few months. He said the goal was two-fold: first, to hear from employees about what could be changed over the short and long term, such as new lighting in offices or a new coat of paint to brighten the walls; second, to develop the agency’s plan to restructure, reform and reorganize as required by President Donald Trump.

Eagles said he expects the Office of Management and Budget to approve HUD’s reorganization plan by mid-September. He said because the plan still was considered pre-decisional, he couldn’t talk much about it.

“No idea was too big or too small and we’ve received hundreds of ideas from that process,” Eagles said. “There are three levels that you have to be focused on: The frontline, which is clearly the most important and we’ve engaged them through those forums and conversations. At the second level is what I’ll call the middle management layer. These are the couple of hundred folks that drive morale. They are probably responsible for 80 percent of the morale. They get a lot the work done and are very important for us as well.”

Eagles said the third bucket is senior leadership that can unify a host of White House initiatives such as the executive order to reduce regulations, the fiscal 2018 budget request and performance management.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Eagles readily admitted many ideas coming from employees and from senior leadership aren't new or different. He said the biggest change is the fact this restructuring effort is happening at the beginning of an administration versus toward the end.

He said HUD will develop a 12-to-18 month plan with specific metrics that employees, citizens, government auditors and lawmakers can track on a public dashboard, and then reassess progress and adjust as appropriate.

HUD Secretary Ben Carson reveals vandals attacked his Virginia home (HousingWire)

Responds to hate-incidents in Charlottesville

Ben Carson, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development secretary revealed Wednesday his Virginia home was vandalized.

After the violence in Charlottesville, Virginia, Carson posted his response to his Facebook account, revealing hate crimes he experienced himself.

In his post, Carson revealed his Virginia home was vandalized with anti-Trump rhetoric, but that his neighbors stepped up to help.

"More recently our home in Virginia along with that of a neighbor was vandalized by people who also wrote hateful rhetoric about President Trump," he wrote. "We were out of town, but other kind, embarrassed neighbors cleaned up most of the mess before we returned."

The HUD secretary also took the moment to give a second instance in which a neighbor put up a confederate flag, but that in these situations, it is important to take the high road.

"In both instances, less than kind behavior was met by people taking the high road," Carson wrote. "We could all learn from these examples. Hatred and bigotry unfortunately still exists in our country and we must all continue to fight it, but let's use the right tools.

The Arker Companies has completed a $38 million rehabilitation and preservation project at Elbee Gardens, a 178-unit affordable housing development at 1950 Clove Road in the Grasmere neighborhood of Staten Island. Situated on nearly eight-acres of land, Elbee Gardens is a six-story elevator building that was initially financed as a HUD 236 project and constructed in the early 1970s. The project had not received any significant capital improvements since it was first rented up in 1973. HPD also provided four percent Low-Income Housing Tax Credits, resulting in approximately $14 million in tax credit equity. The financing incorporates a permanent day one structure with credit enhancement from Freddie Mac.

Wells Fargo is the tax credit investor and limited partner for the project. Officials from the New York City Housing Development Corporation, HPD and the US Department of Housing and Urban Development joined The Arker Companies and project partners to celebrate the completiton of the project. "Preserving and improving our existing affordable housing stock is a key strategy in meeting New York's housing needs" said

[NY] Here is the official resume of the person Trump put in charge of federal housing in New York (Washington Post)
Washington Post
(8/18/2017 8:54 AM, Tracy Jan)
The person President Trump tapped this summer to oversee one of the largest regions under the Department of Housing & Urban Development is a longtime Trump family employee with no experience in housing, according to the one-page résumé Lynne Patton submitted as part of the transition.

Patton began working for Trump's son Eric in 2009 as the vice president of his foundation and as his primary aide. She oversaw all aspects of his business, charity and personal obligations. That included his home and spousal responsibilities as well as coordinating events. She was promoted in 2012 to be the Trump family's senior aide and chief of staff, serving as the principal contact between the family members and all corporate partners, heads of state and high-end donors. Specifically, she worked for the Trump children, Donald Jr., Tiffany, Ivanka and Eric and his wife, Lara. During Donald Trump's presidential campaign, Patton worked as his senior adviser and family liaison, focusing on minority engagement. She was also a prime-time speaker at the 2016 Republican National Convention.

In June, HUD Secretary Ben Carson, an acclaimed neurosurgeon with no expertise in housing policy either, charged Patton with running the agency's regional office overseeing New York and New Jersey. Her appointment stirred controversy because of her lack of experience and the fact that Trump has a 4 percent stake in a Brooklyn development, Starrett City, that is the nation's largest subsidized housing complex.

Patton is one of 10 regional administrators for HUD, an agency that has a $48.7 billion budget this year. Her position pays $161,900 a year.

"The administration prioritizes hiring family friends, employees and people who have expressed loyalty to the president, raising real questions about why the president wants her there," said Austin Evers, a former State Department attorney under President Barack Obama who now heads the government watchdog group American Oversight. "This underscores that this administration does not prioritize qualifications at all, including for this very important job which oversees billions of dollars of taxpayer money."

Patton told the Post in an email that as regional administrator, she serves as the primary liaison for local agencies and city officials as it pertains to housing issues before the Trump administration — a job she says she is uniquely positioned for given her long history as "gatekeeper" to the Trumps. "I am not determining fixed-rate mortgage loan rates. Nor do I have any oversight or undue influence as to individual grant distribution or project funding," Patton wrote.

Patton has officially recused herself from any decisions involving the Starrett City housing development, signing a "conflict of interest disqualification" memorandum on July 12.

American Oversight, formed by a group of lawyers after Trump's inauguration to monitor the administration's ethics and expose any potential conflicts of interest, obtained Patton's official résumé through a Freedom of Information Act request of the résumés of political appointees across various federal agencies.

[MD] Democrats demand Kushner-related housing records (CBS News)
CBS

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(8/19/2017 2:05 PM, Kathryn Watson)
Maryland Democrats are demanding a slew of records from Kushner Companies LLC after reports that its subsidiaries' apartment complexes receiving public housing payments are getting judges to order the arrest of delinquent renters and making rent payments unnecessarily difficult for tenants.

President Trump's son-in-law and senior adviser Jared Kushner stepped down as CEO of Kushner Companies when he joined the White House, but retains a significant financial stake in the business. The firm has received $6.1 million in federal rental subsidies through the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for three apartment complexes in Maryland since January 2015, according to a recent Baltimore Sun report.

Those subsidies help tenants pay their rent. But the Sun reported Kushner Companies is "the most aggressive [firm] in Maryland" in using a debt collection tactic that urges judges to arrest people who fail to appear in court for unpaid rent, and has sought the civil arrest of more than 100 former tenants. The New York Times and ProPublica also recently reported Kushner Companies doesn't allow residents to pay rent with money orders, requiring individuals and families without checking accounts to visit a local Walmart or cash express company and pay $3.50 for every transaction.

"If these reports are accurate, they raise very serious and troubling concerns about whether Kushner Companies and its subsidiaries are complying with HUD's housing quality standards to ensure the safety and health of their own tenants," Maryland Democratic Sens. Ben Cardin and Chris Van Hollen, and four other Maryland Democrats in the House, wrote to Kushner Companies on Friday.

(8/18/2017 2:43 PM, Doug Donovan)
Congressional Democrats from Maryland are asking for thousands of pages of documents to review the business practices of the apartment rental company owned by Jared Kushner, son-in-law and senior adviser to President Donald Trump. In a letter Friday, Sens. Ben Cardin and Chris Van Hollen and Reps. Elijah E. Cummings, C.A. Dutch Ruppersberger, John Sarbanes and Anthony Brown told Kushner's firm that it must abide by U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development regulations because its tenants receive federal rental subsidies through the Housing Choice voucher program. The Kushner Cos. own 17 apartment complexes in Maryland, most of them in Baltimore County. The lawmakers, who represent areas with Kushner properties, want documents that detail the New York-based company's voucher contracts with HUD, inspection reports, lawsuits filed by the firm against former tenants and information about any potential conflicts of interest for Kushner.

The Baltimore Sun posted a story online this week detailing the firm's legal efforts to collect unpaid rent from former tenants, including requesting body attachments, the controversial practice in which judges order the arrest of civil defendants for allegedly failing to appear in court. The Sun has reported that the Kushner Cos. have filed 1,240 civil lawsuits against former tenants in Maryland for unpaid debts, actions that have included requests to have renters arrested. The Sun has reported that three of the company's 17 apartment complexes in Maryland have received $6.1 million in HUD Housing Choice voucher payments on behalf of 268 tenants. The White House told the Sun in February that Kushner would not participate in any policy decisions related to the voucher program to avoid the potential for conflicts of interest.

ProPublica

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

(8/18/2017 8:06 PM, Alec MacGillis)
Democrats from the state's congressional delegation say articles by ProPublica, The New York Times Magazine and The Baltimore Sun raise 'very serious and troubling concerns' about whether Kushner's businesses comply with federal housing standards.

Maryland's two U.S. senators and four of its U.S. House representatives, all Democrats, sent a letter today to the large real-estate company owned by the family of Jared Kushner, President Donald Trump's son-in-law and senior adviser, demanding information about the company's management of 17 apartment complexes it owns in the state.

The letter to Kushner Companies came in response to a May 23 article co-published by ProPublica and The New York Times Magazine investigating management practices at the rental complexes, most of which are in the suburbs of Baltimore, as well as an article this week in The Baltimore Sun that revealed additional details.

The original story described the highly aggressive legal tactics that Kushner Companies has used to pursue tenants who owed back rent or had left their leases early — even tenants who left the complexes well before the company bought them in 2012 and the years following. In many of the hundreds of cases brought by the company, it pursued tenants in court for years, with late fees and court fees expanding the claims to amounts far above what was initially owed.

The article reported several instances in which the company sought payment even when tenants were able to provide proof that they had followed the terms of the lease. The article also described the shoddy upkeep of many of the complexes' roughly 9,000 units, where problems such as ceiling leaks, mice and mold are rampant.

The Sun article this week reported that in 105 instances, the company went so far as to seek the civil arrests of tenants who failed to appear in court to address allegations of unpaid debt — more than any other landlord in the state over the same period. Court records show that 20 former Kushner tenants were in fact detained, the paper reported. The paper also disclosed just how dependent the company's complexes are on federal housing vouchers for rental revenue. While many of the complexes' tenants pay their own rent, the paper determined that at three of the complexes alone, the company has received $6.1 million in federal rental subsidies since Jan. 1, 2015.

In their letter, Maryland Sens. Chris Van Hollen and Ben Cardin and the four congressmen — Elijah Cummings (the ranking Democratic on the House Government Oversight Committee), Dutch Ruppersberger, John Sarbanes and Anthony Brown — note that the company's reliance on subsidies from the Housing Choice program (Section 8) obliges it to follow Department of Housing and Urban Development rules. Under Housing Choice, each "dwelling unit must pass the program's housing quality standards and be maintained up to those standards as long as the owner receives housing assistance payments." The rules specify that each "dwelling unit and its equipment must be in sanitary condition" and "must be free of vermin and rodent infestation."

Norfolk Virginian-Pilot
(8/19/2017 10:17 AM, Ana Ley)
The mold has reached at least eight first-floor homes in the Hamilton Place apartment complex in the last four years, shifting from white to green to black as it creeps along walls, carpets and, finally, furnishings and other belongings.

Low-income tenants there say they're sick of scrubbing the stuff out. They want the city's Housing Authority to get rid of it, and now, after questions from The Virginian-Pilot, so does the federal government.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

"We are inhaling this," said Donna Quinerly, whose apartment off Turnpike Road was so badly infested that last week she tossed out a living room set covered in a sour film.

She fears that it's hurting her son, who has been hospitalized twice with severe respiratory problems since February, according to medical records.

Quinerly said she first reported the problem about two years ago, and although she's been given credits on her rent and the occasional visit from a maintenance worker, officials with the Portsmouth Redevelopment and Housing Authority didn't offer to move her until Wednesday afternoon - about two hours after The Pilot asked property managers about the problem.

At least one former neighbor said she was so fed up, she moved out even though her rent is now twice as expensive at an unsubsidized home in Chesapeake. "I had to go," said Ivory Dupree, 48, who moved out about four years ago after throwing away a mattress.

Property manager Natalie Honeyblue refused to speak with The Pilot, referring inquiries to PRHA's main office. "My name or my likeness better not be in any reports in the newspaper," she said before asking a reporter to leave the property's management office Wednesday afternoon.

Newly hired PRHA Executive Director Edward Bland declined multiple requests to comment.

Some tenants interviewed this week said they've long struggled with mold but haven't reported it out of fear of retaliation. "I don't want to be evicted," said one woman who has thrown out several couches, mattresses and dressers in the past two years. "When you walk in my house, you can smell it. It smells sour, it smells wet, and it smells like mildew," Jones said. She reported the problem a year ago but said property officials never followed up.

Lisa Wolfe, a regional spokeswoman for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which oversees the PRHA, urged tenants to submit work orders if they spot any problems. Those who have done so but still haven't gotten help from the local authority should reach out to HUD to file a complaint, she said.

On Thursday, Wolfe said she reported the tenants' concerns and noted that the federal agency is looking into the matter. "That's really a shame," Wolfe said when told some tenants are afraid to call their property manager. "I wish we'd known sooner. If we don't know about a problem, we can't do anything about it."

U.S. Rep. Morgan Griffith said he'd heard plenty about Freedom Lane but hadn't seen it.

The Wytheville Redevelopment and Housing Authority project to provide homes for veterans "looked good on paper," Griffith said. Then he said he turned off Peppers Ferry Road and thought "Wow. Not only did they do something good. They did something great."

The Republican congressman was one of several dozen in Wytheville on Wednesday to celebrate the ribbon-cutting of a long-awaited housing complex for those who served the nation.

Owned and operated by the Wytheville Redevelopment and Housing Authority, the 24 new apartments off Peppers Ferry have already welcomed 12 new veterans and their families.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

A road lined with one- and two-bedroom homes, most handicapped accessible, terminates near a clubhouse on the four-acre tract.

The ribbon-cutting came a little over a year from when ground was broken for the affordable housing development. Cathy Pattison, who closed out her eight years on the WRHA's seven-member board on Wednesday, pointed out that the project came in under budget and ahead of schedule.

Pattison said the idea for affordable veteran housing got started in 2010, when Randy Martin, the WRHA's executive director, said no veteran should be without a home. The idea lay dormant until 2013, when the housing authority bought eight acres of the former Alco property.

Martin said that the purchase was made with the $5 million development in mind.

Martin said executing the idea took more than time, though. It required partnerships across the state and county, including HOPE, Veterans Affairs, the Department of Social Services and others.

Martin said that more than half of the 24 units have vouchers tied to them to help with rent.

Sharon Alexander, the chair of the Wytheville Redevelopment and Housing Authority board, asked in her opening prayer that Freedom Lane be "a place where we see the best of humanity."

It was certainly a place Wednesday where Joe DeFelice, the regional administrator for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, saw the best of Southwest Virginia. On his first trip to the region, he said was falling in love and may not return to his office in Philadelphia.

CLEVELAND, OH (WOIO) - The woman accused in a nationwide Facebook scam operation is in more hot water.

Officers with the Cuyahoga Metropolitan Housing Authority Police Department and an agent with the U.S. Office of Inspector General Department of Housing and Urban Development were at Zienup Sbeih's home in the Villages of Carver Park off of East 45th Street and Quincy Friday afternoon.

Officers executed a county search warrant, removing documents including bank transactions, stuffed animals and other toys possibly used in Zienup Sbeih's alleged online scams.

"This is based on an investigation on story you made, regarding Zienup Sbeih," said CMHA Police Chief Andres Gonzalez.

[LA] Kenner housing authority in limbo after Mayor Zahn asks director to resign, removes remaining board members (New Orleans Advocate, LA)

Kenner Mayor Ben Zahn on Friday called on the director of the city's housing authority to resign and removed the agency's two remaining board members, effectively casting the agency into limbo until a new board can be appointed.

Last month, Zahn started an investigation into the agency after receiving allegations of mismanagement from resigning board member Connie Montgomery. Montgomery accused Marc Starling, who was named executive director last year, of hiring cronies to work at the agency and also of bullying behavior.

Starling accused Montgomery of being disruptive and uncooperative in a separate letter to Zahn.

Montgomery's resignation left the five-member board with just two members, short of the three-member quorum needed to take any action.

Zahn said Friday he was removing those two board members "for cause" and that he would replace them with new members "in the very near future."

He pointed to some of the things that Montgomery cited in her letter, such as issues with procurement and the cancellation of some contracts with vendors, which Zahn said were done "without due cause."

A city investigation "found numerous instances of potential ethical and procedural violations, which at the very least give an overwhelming sense of impropriety at the Kenner Housing Authority," Zahn said in a statement.

Zahn also cited Starling's resumé, which showed a graduate degree in urban development from Belford University, an unaccredited, now-defunct institution that had no physical address. Zahn also said that Starling had left two previous leadership posts at the U.S. Housing and Urban Development Department under allegations of misconduct.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A suburban New Orleans mayor has gutted the Kenner Housing Authority's five-member board and called for the resignation of the agency's executive director.

Mayor Ben Zahn called for an investigation after one of the agency's board members, Connie Montgomery, resigned. She sent Zahn a letter dated July 5 claiming actions taken by Executive Director Marc Starling, Board Chairwoman Faye Mathews, and Board Attorney Don Richard had violated the Housing Authority's procurement policy, Louisiana civil service rules and state statutes and bylaws of the authority.

Montgomery's resignation left the board with just two members, short of the three-member quorum needed to take any action.

Zahn said among the reasons for his decision Friday was Starling's cancellation of a multi-vendor contract without due cause and questionable credits on his resume.

location, culminating with his receipt of a Master's Degree in Urban Development, as well as his departure from two previous HUD leadership posts." Kenner officials say Starling also voluntarily vacated a HUD Executive Director position in Rhode Island amid allegations of mismanagement, and he was removed from a similar post in Florida by federal investigators. Kenner launched an investigation into the Housing Authority Board after a board member, Connie Montgomery, resigned.

She sent the mayor a letter dated July 5 claiming actions taken by Starling, Board Chairperson Faye Mathews, and Board Attorney Don Richard had violated the Housing Authority's procurement policy, Louisiana civil service rules and state statutes and bylaws of the authority. At the time, Zahn called on the FBI, the U.S. Attorney, the Jefferson Parish District Attorney and the city's internal auditor, among others to investigate the allegations made in Montgomery's letter. "Our internal investigation found numerous instances of potential ethical and procedural violations, which at the very least give an overwhelming sense of impropriety at the Kenner Housing Authority," Zahn said. "This will not be tolerated, especially given the mission of this very important organization."

KENNER - Mayor Ben Zahn removed the entire Kenner Housing Authority Board from their positions and has called for the resignation of the department's Executive Director.

According to a statement from the City of Kenner, Executive Director Mar Starling's resume showed graduate work from a fictitious college called "Belford University," culminating with his receipt of a Master's Degree in Urban Development. The resume also showed that Starling left two previous HUD leadership positions around the country, but in reality he vacated one position amid allegations of mismanagement and was removed from another by federal investigators.

Mayor Zahn called for an investigation into the Kenner Housing Authority after one of its board members, Connie Montgomery, resigned. Her resignation left the board with only two members, making it unable to take any official action.

"Our internal investigation found numerous instances of potential ethical and procedural violations, which at the very least give an overwhelming sense of impropriety at the Kenner Housing Authority. This will not be tolerated, especially given the mission of this very important organization," Zahn said.

The release said the mayor plans to replace to board members in the "Very near future" and bring in a third-party contractor to train and counsel the incoming board.

[LA] Our Views: Louisiana's past could provide a blueprint for how FEMA could restructure disaster aid (Baton Rouge Advocate, LA)
Baton Rouge Advocate
(8/19/2017 10:32 AM, Advocate Editorial)
Writing checks, the wags say, is what the United States government does best.

In a meeting marking the beginning of hurricane season, President Donald Trump met with members of the Cabinet and others. He said aid would not be held up in the event of a disaster. "We do it quickly. We do it effectively," Trump said. "We are very strong with respect to FEMA. FEMA is something I've been very much involved in already."

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

While a disaster is by nature a chaotic situation, we think there are lessons that the president and Congress could learn from Louisiana, where we've had a lot more experience than even a New York City developer at the time of Superstorm Sandy in 2012, who now happens to be president of the United States.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency is not perfect, but since the catastrophically poor response to hurricanes Katrina and Rita in 2005, presidents Barack Obama and Trump have appointed experienced administrators to this critical job.

Can it do better still? We think Louisiana folks could give valuable lessons. After the disastrous floods in the greater Baton Rouge area, too many people could not get access to FEMA soon enough. To quote a favorite line of the congressman representing the capital city region, Garret Graves, "The federal government has a customer service problem." Graves has helped to do something about it, pushing legislation to make databases accessible directly in an emergency, instead of requiring people to wait on the telephone for FEMA agents or contractors. That small but welcome step should only be the first way in which the U.S. government reassesses its response to natural disasters.

Maybe FEMA should have more authority, rather than less. Today, hurricane response is in FEMA's corner, but long-term recovery aid - as Louisiana has found out again this year - is by law doled out in packets by a dysfunctional budget process in Congress.

The checks then come via the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, through block grant programs. We don't knock anybody, but we cannot help but wonder that the long process of rulemaking and regulation-writing by HUD stands in the way of the president's boast about efficiently writing checks.

The goal is to use block grant funds correctly and without waste or corruption. The reality is that state and local officials face a new bureaucracy that reinvents the wheel, one of the reasons most cited for delays in aid after the 2016 flooding.

Louisiana's members of Congress and Gov. John Bel Edwards have spoken directly to new HUD Secretary Ben Carson, who visited New Orleans and Baton Rouge to observe the problems and opportunities here first hand.

These issues are complex. We don't need a new federal bureaucracy midway between FEMA and HUD. The taxpayer should be protected against fraudulent claims. But surely the events over the last dozen years in Louisiana should lead Congress to restructure how disaster aid is delivered, so that the checks come in a timely fashion for communities.

KPLC-TV
(8/18/2017 12:56 PM, Kevin Frey)
The Restore Louisiana Task Force has given the thumbs up to a plan that would expand the number of flood victims eligible for awards. Homeowners with flood insurance and remaining unmet needs after insurance payouts could now be eligible for an award. This means about 12,000 homeowners who have already completed the survey could now have access to funding. Homeowners that still have repairs to do can have their costs fully covered. Currently, for homeowners with incomes of more than 120 percent of the Area Median Income, the program only pays 50 percent of repair costs.

Homeowners with completed repairs can get be reimbursed by 50 percent, which is up from 25 percent before. Some changes will require HUD approval, which could take a few days. Pat Forbes, the executive director of the Office of Community Development, called the changes "Huge." "It eliminates the risk that we're going to have those neighborhoods with blight in them because people couldn't put the rest of the money together," he said.

DENHAM SPRINGS, La. - Louisiana's flood recovery board agreed Friday to Gov. John Bel Edwards' plan to widen eligibility for a homeowner aid program by including those whose flood insurance proceeds didn't cover their rebuilding costs.

Grant amounts for some homeowners without flood insurance who already had been eligible for limited rebuilding aid also will be boosted, under program changes unanimously backed by the Restore Louisiana Task Force. The $1.3 billion homeowner aid program was created with federal recovery dollars to help those with damage from the March and August 2016 floods. Of those with flood insurance, only elderly and disabled, low- to moderate-income homeowners had been eligible for the program.

Edwards' administration determined it can broaden eligibility based on applications received so far. "It's clear that there should be enough funds to meet additional unmet needs of affected households," Pat Forbes, executive director of the state's recovery agency, said in a statement. About $16 million in grants have been awarded to more than 550 homeowners so far. More than 40,000 people have taken the survey that is the first step to determining eligibility.

The Edwards administration has been trying to encourage more people to fill it out, knowing that about 100,000 homes were estimated to have been damaged by the floods.

Some of the adjustments approved Friday will require approval from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which oversees the federal recovery block grant money. Edwards' office expects to easily get the necessary support.

In April, EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt declared during a visit to East Chicago that places like West Calumet would be his top priority. During a 90-second statement at a news conference, he said he had come to "restore confidence" that the EPA was "going to get it right."

Officials should "assess and make decisions and put the community first," he said, adding that he was "taken" by his conversation with a few residents during the spring visit.

"The emotion, the passion was just telling," Pruitt said.

Later, in an interview with The Washington Post, Pruitt criticized previous administrations for moving slowly and distributing fact sheets and warning signs. "How about cleaning it up? Pruitt said. "How about cleaning it up?"

At the end of July, Pruitt's Superfund Task Force recommended creating a "top 10 list" of sites to prioritize. The administrator did not specify which sites, but mentioned East Chicago to reporters at EPA headquarters and called residents' despair "heartbreaking."

Ben Carson, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, which oversees the local housing authority, paid a visit this month. He acknowledged that West Calumet residents had been "inconvenienced" but said their relocations were "done in a good way."

Of the hundreds of families who were ordered out of West Calumet last summer, Turner's was one of the last to leave, dodging letters from housing officials threatening to ship her across state lines to Chicago. That was the city she fled a decade ago, where moms fear not dirt but bullets. She wanted to whisk her kids to safer ground but just couldn't find any.

EAST CHICAGO — Residents will be listening Saturday for an answer to a simple question: Is the city's water safe to drink?

Indiana Department of Environmental Management Drinking Water Branch Chief Mary Hollingsworth will give a presentation, and Commissioner Bruno Piggott will be in attendance at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's monthly meeting, an IDEM spokesman said.

Residents were frustrated last month when EPA Region 5 Groundwater and Drinking Water Division Regulations Manager Miguel Del Toral did not attend. EPA officials said he would instead appear this month with his counterparts from IDEM.

East Chicago did not respond by press time to questions about whether any city officials planned to attend the meeting, which is set for 10 a.m. at the old Carrie Gosch School in West Calumet.

It's been seven months since Del Toral recommended residents citywide assume they have lead service lines and use water filters, and residents are fed up with "inaction and lack of communication" on the part of government agencies, said Thomas Frank, a member of the Community Strategy Group.

"We've been articulating our demands for seven months and there hasn't been any answer," Frank said. "So, what we're going to be putting forward is our plan to try to protect our own water and try to address the issues in absence of any government solutions at this point."

The Community Strategy Group is working to identify funding to conduct third-party water testing, he said.

Residents have asked to be included on the agenda, but had not received any confirmation from EPA as of late Thursday morning, said Anjali Waikar, attorney for the Natural Resources Defense Council.

EPA found elevated lead levels last fall at 18 of 43 homes in the USS Lead Superfund site as part of a study related to its work there. The agency later said the problem was likely to be systemwide.

After a chaotic and rushed relocation for the 1,000-plus West Calumet residents, the Community Strategy Group in a letter to HUD Secretary Ben Carson is now asking the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to create an East Chicago Recovery Fund to support, in part:

A second move program option, which would allow former residents and the approximately 40 voucher holders living elsewhere in the Superfund site to move again "without the time constraints and barriers created by operational deficiencies." The program would include housing counseling and fund the cost of relocation. They are also seeking HUD to condition federally funded replacement housing so that residents get first priority rights to move back if they wish.

Risk assessments at all homes in which West Calumet residents now reside because of the previous years of exposure to lead and arsenic.

Relocation costs program to support former residents and cover incidental costs of moving, such as new school uniforms.

A homeowner/rental property relief program that could offer grants and no-to-low-interest loans to eligible households in the Superfund site to remediate their homes, in part, to address basement flooding. Rental properties would also be eligible.

[IL] Communication chaos in Cairo: Confusion has replaced shock since HUD told 400 people they will have to move. (The Southern, IL)
The Southern
(8/21/2017 5:10 AM, Molly Parker)
CAIRO — It's been four months since HUD officials announced that about 400 residents would have to move out of their failing housing complexes in Cairo and relocate to other communities.

While some of the shock has worn off since the announcement, confusion and uncertainty have taken its place.

Coretta Cornelius, a McBride Place resident, said it's hard to get a clear answer about what options are available for the public housing residents whose complexes are slated for demolition and want to remain in the city.

"There's no reason why we should be hanging with this stuff over our heads after four months," said Cornelius, who shares her apartment with her 4-year-old daughter and is hoping to be able to stay in Cairo. "They need to clear it up. It's been four months."

On April 10, HUD officials called residents of Elmwood and McBride to a meeting to tell them that the complexes they call home are slated for eventual demolition, and that they would be provided relocation vouchers and assistance with finding other homes — though mostly outside of Cairo. After repeated calls that he visit the historical city before going through with a plan that could threaten its existence, HUD Secretary Ben Carson visited Cairo on Aug. 8, just shy of four months from the day that his staff delivered what many residents of the city perceived as a one-two punch: the buildings will be leveled because they were too far gone to save, and HUD does not have plans to rebuild public housing in Cairo.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

At a town hall style meeting at the Cairo Junior/Senior High School, Carson told residents that after driving around the city with Mayor Tyrone Coleman, it was clear that the city faced steep challenges. But he told residents, to resounding applause, "I think by the grace of God it's possible to save this place."

While visiting Cairo, Carson also said he recommitted his staff to continuing to work with the city to see if more options could be secured for people who want to remain in Cairo.

HUD: Residents encouraged to move before winter

HUD spokesman Jereon Brown said that the federal housing agency is exploring additional options as a result of Carson's visit and a brainstorming session with community leaders. Still, he said that residents are still being encouraged to move — and to do so before cold weather arrives in a matter of months. Regardless of what others may have read into the hopeful message by Carson, or what people are hearing from other local and federal elected leaders, Brown said that HUD's overarching plan has not changed.

"Unfortunately, we can't control the message from anyone else," Brown said. "We've done this before so we realize that lives and futures can be affected by the decision. Ultimately it comes down to who they believe."

Brown said one of the reasons they are encouraging families to move before winter is because the Alexander County Housing Authority, which is being run by HUD administrators in receivership, may not have the funds to repair or replace the aging boilers that heat the developments if they fail. He noted that residents were told in April they no longer had to pay rent — and many had stopped paying months prior to that in protest of their housing conditions and alleged mismanagement by past housing authority managers. This lack of payment to the ACHA further aggravates the deteriorated financial condition of the housing authority.

"We're working on some financial models, weighing options, comparing footprints, but for now, repairing boilers, if extensive work is required, is not financially feasible," he said.

For a number of years, residents have complained of inadequate heating systems forcing them to heat their homes with their ovens, which is extremely dangerous in any situation and especially where people live in such close quarters.

It was no different this past winter, even though by that point, HUD had been in control of the ACHA's operations for close to a year. Brown said the issue for this winter is that funds are limited and HUD administrators overseeing the local housing authority are trying to prioritize limited funds to improve the developments that can be salvaged.

"I'm not sure that it makes logical sense to repair units slated eventually for demolition when we have other units in better condition that are also in desperate need of maintenance," Brown said. "The newer units will be around longer so it actually makes more sense to repair those. That may not be seen as a compassionate answer, but it will help the seniors residing in those (other) complexes."

[IL] East St. Louis on track to regain local control of its housing authority (Belleville News-Democrat, IL)

A federal housing official said once again Thursday that the East St. Louis Housing Authority would be returned to local control, but no timetable was announced.

Bill Tamburrino, director of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development office in Baltimore, Maryland, said, "I anticipate the transition back to local control, but we have not yet executed the transition

He said the target transition date is Aug. 31.

Tamburrino spoke during a meeting of the local housing authority. He said the agreement, once executed, would make them board members instead of advisory candidates. "They have to meet all of the requirements to be sworn in according to state laws," Tamburrino said. And, if everything happens in a timely manner the new five-member board could conduct the city's next housing authority meeting on Sept. 21, Tamburrino said.

Neither East St. Louis Mayor Emeka Jackson-Hicks nor Mildred Motley, executive director of the East St. Louis Housing Authority, could be reached for comment.

In 1985, HUD determined that the East St. Louis Housing Authority had substantially failed to meet its obligation as required by law. So, HUD took over the East St. Louis Housing Authority, its projects and programs, as allowed by law. Since that time, the East St. Louis Housing Authority has been under HUD control.

Later, there were failed efforts to put the housing authority under the control of the St. Clair County Housing Authority.

In 2015, East St. Louis filed suit seeking to have control returned to the city, but a federal judge ruled the courts have no authority to rule on the matter.

"We worked on it in 2013 and it didn't work out then. Now, I am glad to see it coming back to the city of East St. Louis," former mayor Alvin Parks Jr. said.

HUD's inspector general has also testified before Congress about the severe mismanagement at offshoots functioning independently-yet federally funded-in states across the country that have fleeced taxpayers out of hundreds of millions of dollars. He testified that his office discovered more than $200 million in questionable spending at local public housing agencies since 2012. Clearly, this is part of a much broader epidemic at HUD. A Michigan-area newspaper editorial blasts the agency for failing to protect taxpayer dollars and low-income families that need help. The piece cites other recent cases in which public employees stole from HUD's Section 8 program, including a 52-person ring in Ohio and schemes in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Colorado and Massachusetts. "It should be more difficult for housing commission directors to write checks to themselves," the editorial states. "And the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development should be keeping closer watch over its Section 8 voucher program." Hopefully President Trump's new HUD secretary, Ben Carson, will clean some house at the fraud-infested agency. We don't' need a newspaper editorial to tell us that "HUD clearly has a gap in its fiduciary responsibility."

San Francisco Chronicle
(8/19/2017 4:49 AM, Kimberly Veklerov)
Richmond Mayor Tom Butt is proposing the dismantling of the city's Housing Authority, saying that diminishing funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development make the agency's continued operations untenable.

Butt said dissolving the Richmond Housing Authority would not eliminate existing public housing, but would essentially divorce the city from financial responsibility over the subsidized homes. He said the city has spent millions to maintain the properties because HUD has not provided its fair share for upkeep.

In calling for the authority's elimination Friday, Butt requested that the authority first investigate the inadequacy of its federal funding levels. On his proposed witness list, the mayor floated a number of figures who he said could be subpoenaed to testify under California law, including HUD Secretary Ben Carson.

Butt said HUD is "obsessed" with faulting local housing authorities and has chosen to pick on a handful of them, including Richmond's. In his draft resolution, the mayor — who chairs the body that governs the city's Housing Authority — pointed to a series of recent complaints from HUD, including the authority's lack of independence from the city that has resulted in a multimillion-dollar debt owed by the authority to Richmond's general fund.

"HUD has tried to paint a picture nationwide that they are out there providing all the money and tools and administrative context, and the local agencies just aren't getting it done," Butt said. "That's sort of the perception they'll try to sell to you, and I don't think that's accurate."

HUD representatives didn't immediately respond to requests for comment Friday.

The Richmond Housing Authority operates half a dozen public housing projects and administers the Section 8 voucher program for low-income residents.

A pair of audits by HUD investigators last year reprimanded the city authority for improperly spending $2.2 million in federal funds, submitting false documentation to the department and writing off rents owed by tenants.

The bottom line, Butt said, is that the city authority is not getting the funding it needs to operate and meet HUD's performance standards and regulations, which he called arbitrary.

Butt said that if his fellow Housing Authority commissioners agree to dissolve the agency, the city would work to maintain the existing public housing stock, but transfer it to another entity, such as the Contra Costa County Housing Authority, HUD, a nonprofit or a private developer.

"These housing authorities are just being starved," Butt said. "It's not sustainable. It's not working. We've got to find a way out."

[CA] San Bernardino City Council to decide: Does spending federal money on homeless help? (San Bernardino County Sun, CA)
San Bernardino County Sun
(8/19/2017 4:47 AM, Ryan Hagen)
SAN BERNARDINO - A meeting Monday will decide whether the city will spend $880,000 of federal money on a plan to help homeless people here or return the money out of fears that it will ultimately attract more homeless people to the city and burden taxpayers.

The meeting, scheduled for 6 p.m. in the board room at 201 North E St., continues a City Council meeting Wednesday where council members said they wouldn't approve the plan until they got more answers. The thrust of their questions: Will this project attract more homeless people to San Bernardino, burdening residents and discouraging business? "After meeting with constituents, there were a number of concerns raised," said Councilman Henry Nickel. "There remain concerns that as we build more facilities that accommodate these type of individuals, that it does attract more of those types of individuals to our community. It serves as a magnet to attract these type of individuals that seek services."

The City Council has already approved the project itself, which is to convert 21 apartments on Golden Avenue near Highland Avenue into 38 permanent housing units for homeless and low-income individuals, along with supportive services such as job placement and mental health counseling. This $880,000 would be used as a loan to help the developer acquire the property.

The nonprofit in charge of the project, Inland Empire Housing First Programs - Step Up, has projects in other cities and would house homeless people from those cities there, Kim Albers, the organization's vice president, said during the meeting. "So I don't think in any way this particular project could serve as a magnet," Albers said, adding that outreach would focus on the area immediately around the project. Councilman Jim Mulvihill added that the program is intensive and longterm - not an overnight shelter - making it unlikely to result in any new people on the streets, he said.

Nickel as well as Councilman John Valdivia and Councilwoman Bessine Richard expressed concern that San Bernardino was taking on the burden of other cities' homeless populations, attracting more homeless and focusing resources on that issue instead of attracting business. That led Richard to suggest continuing the discussion later.

The city faces a relatively tight deadline: The federal HOME funds must be spent by Aug. 31, or they will be reclaimed by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for use in other parts of the country, according to city staff.

A persistent concern among many in San Bernardino - as well as other cities like Redlands, where the number of homeless people counted rose this year - is that offering services to homeless people will draw people from other communities. That's why the county intends to go to every city with a double-digit number of homeless people to bring them into the program and create a level playing field, the county's homelessness czar, Philip Mangano, told the San Bernardino City Council in April.

The feds want about a million dollars from the state of New Jersey. At issue, loans given to some victims of Hurricane Sandy that auditors suggest were not eligible. New Jersey would beg to differ. It comes down to money, with the HUD Inspector General's office saying as many as 39 applicants exceeded income guidelines. Lisa Ryan with New Jersey's Department of Community Affairs responds by saying the auditors are in error. "We do admit that there were applicant income exceedances in Atlantic County due to a clerical error," Ryan told KYW Newsradio, "But we also believe that most of those exceedances were extremely small.

For example, one applicant exceeded the income limit by only 91 dollars." "We believe that a lot of these income exceedances, they don't detract from the program's overall purpose which was to provide home buyer assistance to people who were affected by Sandy who otherwise would have been not able to purchase a home," she added. The state has filed a formal response with HUD, which makes the final call. Ryan says the state hopes to work out the issue in a way that "advances Sandy recovery in New Jersey in a positive fashion."

Bank of America to Pay $6 Million to Bankrupt Couple Evicted From Home (Wall Street Journal)

Erik and Renee Sundquist agree to a settlement in the eight-year-long mortgage dispute

Bank of America Corp. has agreed to pay more than $6 million to a California couple who a federal judge said had been harassed and illegally foreclosed on by the bank's mortgage unit, ending an eight-year-long dispute.

The proposed settlement between the bank and Erik and Renee Sundquist would enable them "to end a long personal and legal nightmare that has impacted every facet of their and their sons' lives," according to court papers the couple filed to request that their 2014 lawsuit against the bank be dropped.

The deal calls for Bank of America to pay a fraction of the fine of more than $46 million ordered by Judge Christopher Klein in March. In his ruling, the judge said the bank's mortgage modification process and mistaken foreclosure on the Sundquists' home in Lincoln, Calif., left them in "a state of battle-fatigued demoralization."

The exact amount that the bank will pay the Sundquists is confidential, according to documents filed Tuesday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Sacramento. The earlier order called for the bank to pay the couple nearly $6.1 million in damages.

As the state works to ramp up its flood recovery programs, some homeowners still seeking assistance a year after the historic floods told a panel tasked with overseeing efforts that they are growing frustrated with the process.

One by one, more than a dozen homeowners told the Restore Louisiana Task Force on Friday of inspection mix ups, delayed communications, confusion over qualifications and other issues.

Members of the task force diligently took notes and vowed to help work out the kinks in the process. Officials from Gov. John Bel Edwards' administration followed up one-on-one with people in the crowd.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

"This will never be fast enough for any of us," said Pat Forbes, director of the Office of Community Development.

The Restore Louisiana Task Force's meeting Friday took place in Denham Springs – one of the areas hardest hit by the August downpour. Officials estimate that nearly half of the Denham Springs area homeowners who had FEMA-verified loss in the flood haven't yet taken the initial step of filling out an introductory survey to get into the pipeline for assistance, about 7,500 households.

Statewide, about 41,000 of the more than 90,000 homeowners who have losses verified by FEMA have filled out the survey at restore.la.gov.

The task force on Friday agreed to ask for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's approval to open up the homeowner recovery program to those who had flood insurance who were previously excluded. They expect it could impact some 12,000 homeowners, who will be notified if they have taken the survey.

Forbes said HUD's approval should be granted quickly.

Mayor Ron Nirenberg on Friday laid out his vision for San Antonio's future in a wide-ranging speech in which he declared that "San Antonio is open for business," and that officials must work diligently and quickly to address both a massive shortage in affordable housing and gentrification. The mayor made his remarks at a North San Antonio Chamber of Commerce luncheon downtown. During a post-address news conference, responding to an inquiry about his making a major policy speech at a luncheon that wasn't the annual State of the City address, Nirenberg said he wanted to outline his vision and plans and hopes to offer major headway on his priority initiatives by the time he gives the annual address in the spring. The mayor delivered prepared remarks he read from teleprompters - rarely ad-libbing - and covered topics such as transportation, crime, economic development and gentrification in the 24-minute speech.

He also announced that he's formed a new task force charged with developing a comprehensive housing policy for San Antonio, one that will address the lack of affordable housing and gentrification issues here. The Mayor's Housing Policy Task Force will be led by Lourdes Castro-Ramirez, the former CEO of the San Antonio Housing Authority who went on to become the principal deputy assistant secretary of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, under then Secretary Julian Castro. San Antonio is facing a major housing crisis, Nirenberg said, one that can no longer be ignored. In the ensuing two decades, the city will need more than 500,000 new multifamily and single-family residences to accommodate the expected surge in population. A city-funded analysis shows that there's currently a need for 142,000 affordable housing units and Census data show nearly 20 percent of San Antonians are living in poverty, he said. The task force will develop policy recommendations, working in concert with city and nonprofit staffers.

Mayor Ron Nirenberg announced Friday the formation of a task force to develop a "comprehensive,

"This is developing a new framework of policy that will deal with affordability issues, and directly address gentrification and displacement as a priority," Nirenberg said following his speech at the North San Antonio Chamber of Commerce's 2017 Mayor's Vision for San Antonio event downtown.

The Mayor's Housing Policy Task Force will be led by former U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary Lourdes Castro-Ramirez. Other members include former City Councilwoman María Berriozábal; Gene Dawson Jr., owner of Pape-Dawson Engineering; Jim Bailey, Alamo Architects associate principal; and Noah Garcia, Vantage Bank senior vice president.

"They will be charged with assuring that San Antonio maintains its competitive advantage in housing affordability while we grow in a sustainable way," Nirenberg said to a room filled with some of the city's business and government leaders. Nirenberg said the task force is necessary to help ensure that the city gets the 500,000 new housing units needed to accommodate expected growth over the next 20 years, and to make sure that people aren't priced out of the neighborhoods in which they grew up. The mayor also noted that the city is facing an affordable housing shortage and needs 142,000 new affordable housing units.

Driving through Skid Row, witnessing homeless encampments near luxury apartment complexes, encountering people living in their cars, hearing stories about long commutes to the Antelope Valley for cheaper housing, or reading the latest data of soaring housing prices and rents lets you know that LA is in the midst of a severe housing crisis. This is not news, but the latest report from the U.S. Department and Housing and Urban Development documents that it is much worse than you thought. Los Angeles and New York top the list of U.S. cities in which residents either live in substandard housing or have a heavy a rent burden. Los Angeles has 1 million very poor households, 57 percent of which spend more than half their income on housing, much of which is substandard. LA's homeless population grew by 23 percent last year, and one of the chief causes was rising rents.

Most of us cannot see it, but according to Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti, it is there, and it can be found in his June 30, 2017, Quarterly Status Report on Directive 13: Support for Affordable Housing. The Mayor's goal is to build 15,000 new affordable units between 2013 and 2021, or approximately 2000 units per year. To date, Los Angeles has built slightly less than 6,000 new affordable units, but this total includes preserved affordable units and first-time homebuyer loans. If those are excluded from the Mayor's list, the total of actual new affordable units constructed in Los Angeles since 2013 is around 4,000. This figure is less than the number of rent stabilized units removed from the market each year through evictions, such as 1370 units lost in 2016.

Trump could undermine civil rights progress more than any other president (The Hill)

(8/18/2017 3:41 PM, Maya Rupert and Cashauna Hill)
After barely eight months in office, President Trump has secured his legacy: If left unchecked, he will undermine civil rights progress in this country more than any president in modern history. This week has shown previews of this dangerous agenda. Since beginning his campaign, Trump has fanned the flames of racism, bigotry, and xenophobia - from calling Mexicans rapists, making a border wall one of his central campaign promises, implementing a Muslim travel ban, and using dog-whistle politics to talk in veiled terms about black communities. Despite a number of challenges to some of his more high-profile attacks on communities of color,

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Trump has effectively used executive action to significantly roll back civil rights enforcement in this country. This month, the U.S. Department of Justice announced it would investigate and potentially sue universities over affirmative action policies in admissions.

Prior to that, the DOJ's briefing came on the heels of the president announcing - via Twitter - that he would ban transgender service members from serving in any capacity in the U.S. military. These high-profile announcements have come amidst of several less-reported but troubling civil rights developments, including announcements that the Department of Housing and Urban Development is dropping a crucial case on exclusionary housing policies; the administration plans to significantly limit the offices of civil rights at several agencies.

Just this week, amidst Trump's comments that have further emboldened white supremacists who see an opportunity in his presidency, HUD dealt another huge blow to fair housing when they announced the suspension of a rule that helps low-income families move to lower poverty communities. Without this rule, low-income families - often families of color - will continue to be segregated into lower opportunity communities, and it will be more difficult to achieve integrated neighborhoods.

[DC] Homeless LGBT youth find a place to call their own in D.C. (Washington Post)
Washington Post
(8/19/2017 7:43 PM, Madhumita Murgia)
In a blue rowhouse in the District's Eastern Market, Tiara is wiggling her hips and singing along throatily with 21 other black youths. Their voices are velvet. Tiara, in her rainbow-striped top, press-on blue nails and yellow sneakers is dressed down for the occasion; her friends dazzle in red wigs, sparkly eyeliner, crop tops and leather miniskirts. As the keyboardist pounds out the melody, arms are raised, heads thrown back and all the voices come together in a crescendo.

The group is Breaking Ground, a local theater collective for LGBT youths of color; they are rehearsing for their next performance in September, a musical extravaganza chronicling their varied life stories. Hers, Tiara knows, is unusual even among this eclectic group. But for now, she is just reveling in the luxury of being herself.

Like so many young transgender people in the city, Tiara is not a D.C. local. She was drawn in because of the city's progressive laws, vibrant LGBT community and social support for people like her. She's living in a newly opened transitional housing apartment off Benning Road in northeast D.C., run by the LGBT nonprofit Supporting and Mentoring Youth Advocates and Leaders (SMYAL). The building opened its doors to eight homeless youths in January, trying to plug a vast gap in the city's resources for young LGBT people without housing; Tiara, in her early 20s, was the first resident to move in. Next summer, she will have to move out and find her own way.

This apartment is not much like home, she often marvels. The ghetto in Harare, Zimbabwe, where she lived until last year is home also to the Chipangano, the ruthless youth militia linked to President Robert Mugabe. She worked discreetly as an LGBT youth activist, but no one outside her family knew she wanted to live as a woman, or even that she was gay. She went by her male name, Traimo. Every time she dabbed on face powder or wore a tight top in public, she felt like she was participating in a small revolution. Her first thoughts when she woke up every morning were, "Am I going to come home alive today?"

[OK] Initiative to end chronic and veteran homelessness still going strong (Tulsa World, OK)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Housing 641 veterans and 187 chronically homeless people already exceeds original targets

An initiative to end chronic and veteran homelessness has far exceeded its initial numeric goals in terms of housing.

Reaching the goal of functional zero, meaning the number of homeless and sheltered is not greater than the monthly housing rate, is still a ways off.

The path to getting to functional zero is taking shape as agencies are working together to create a new intake system to ensure those needing services the most are getting the help they need. Since 2015, 641 veterans and 187 chronically homeless individuals have been housed through the A Way Home for Tulsa and the Zero:2016 initiative. Zero:2016 is a national initiative to end veteran and chronic homelessness that is spearheaded locally by a consortium of 23 agencies named A Way Home for Tulsa.

Chronic homelessness is defined by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development as someone who has been continuously homeless for one full year or four times within the past three years and has a disability. The original goal was to end veteran and chronic homelessness by housing 290 veterans by the end of 2015 and 89 chronically homeless by the end of 2016. "The positive is we're housing individuals," said Mack Haltom, associate director of the Tulsa Day Center for the Homeless. "We're also still dealing with inflow."

As of Friday morning, the names of 207 veterans and 106 chronically homeless were on a list of current homeless that was created as part of the initiative.

[UT] Utah teacher wants wedding gifts sent to homeless, not her (Washington Post)
Washington Post
(8/21/2017 4:45 AM, Associated Press)
SALT LAKE CITY — A Utah high school teacher is getting married next month. But instead of registering for a blender or stemware, she's asking for shoes and backpacks to give homeless children at her school.

Copper Hills High School teacher Rickee Stewart said she was shocked when she found out more than 100 homeless students attend her school. She learned about the homeless students after the school set up a food pantry.

"One of my students walked up very quietly and said, 'So, my mom wants to know how I can actually get some of that food,' " Stewart said. "It's very real."

This realization prompted Stewart to tell her wedding guests they can donate to her homeless student project in lieu of gifts, KSL-TV reported Thursday.

Sacramento Bee
(8/18/2017 3:36 PM, Bob Erlenbusch)
The 2017 Homeless Count for Sacramento County documented a dramatic increase in the number of homeless people, rising from 2,822 in 2015 to 3,665 in 2017, of which 56 percent are unsheltered. That's 2,000 neighbors in Sacramento County, through no fault of their own, forced to live outside, including along the American River Parkway.

The county Board of Supervisors should move with a sense of urgency to expand the number of emergency shelter beds and should be prioritizing additional funds to a woefully underfunded system of mental health and addiction services for homeless people to leverage the $32 million in "Whole Person Care" funding the city has

Instead, in late August, the board will consider spending an additional $3 million to $5 million on its "Whack-a-mole" strategy to increase law enforcement along the parkway to hand out camping citations to people who have nowhere else to go.

Supervisors should forget playing 'whack-a-mole' on the parkway. Instead, expand shelter beds, prioritize homeless people for mental health care and housing and work with the city on Whole Person Care. The supervisors recently authorized an additional $6.2 million on four new homeless initiatives, one of which was for a full-service, 24-hour dormitory-style shelter for up to 75 people. The sad reality is this center will not open until mid-2018 and only meets 3 percent of the need. There is no sense of urgency or scale and no coordination with the city's initiatives.

Despite the supervisors' claims that they can't arrest their way out of homelessness, their budget priorities tell a different story. Overall, the county spends $40 million annually on homelessness, of which only $6 million is county general fund. Law enforcement already accounts for 67 percent of this $6 million; the planned increase for parkway enforcement would weight the county's strategy even more toward arrests.

How would the Sacramento Regional Coalition to End Homelessness spend an additional $5 million? Triple the number of full-service rehousing shelters, housing 225 people; or employ 100 homeless people at $50,000 each, effectively giving them the means to house themselves.

They could be deployed to help with debris removal and navigation to community resources, among other needed functions. We would leverage city funds by prioritizing homeless people for care at county-run mental health and addiction programs and for county-controlled housing vouchers.

We urge the board to support effective shelter and employment.

Slow going for remaining families at Church Street South

NEW HAVEN >> Where once there were 283 families, there are now 16.

The deteriorated 48-year-old crumbling Church Street South complex is eerily quiet these days as relocation specialist Jocelyne Barsczewski, an employee of the Housing Authority of New Haven, continues to counsel the remaining tenants on the site who need to find new homes.

The first Section 8 vouchers from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development were passed out to tenants who wanted them in May 2016, but it could still be months before the few remaining tenants leave.

"We are right there in the home stretch," Barsczewski recently told tenants at a meeting at the complex.

Barsczewski said there are 11 families left at the cavernous complex with vouchers that will allow them to move anywhere HUD finds the apartment acceptable and the landlord agrees to accept a rental cap.

[PA] Philadelphia Housing Authority Holds Conference On Changing Policies (KYW-TV, PA)
KYW-TV
(8/18/2017 5:16 PM, By Pat Loeb)
Public housing residents and employees from around the country are gathered in Philadelphia for a conference on how to cope with changing policies under the Trump administration. The conference offers workshops on creative use of limited resources and self-sufficiency through education and small businesses.

The host, Philadelphia Housing Authority Chief Kelvin Jeremiah, says it's about empowering residents who face sharp cuts in government help. "The reductions that are proposed would be devastating, impacting the most vulnerable people: seniors, disabled, homeless, and people at the bottom of the economic ladder. And they should be participating in the process of determining what happens to them," Jeremiah said. PHA resident-board member Asia Coney says tenants understand, and are seeking new opportunities, but she also hopes they'll leave committed to preserving what's left. "Public housing is a need that folks will always have," she said.

[VA] Charlottesville, "happiest city in America" — but for whom? (Salon)
Salon
(8/20/2017 1:47 PM, Emma Eisenberg)
When a city with a white supremacist presence and marginalized black working class is run by genteel "progressives"

There was a moment on Saturday, August 12th that happened quickly but changed the course of everything that came after it. Around noon, a small group of white supremacists who had left the center of the protests at Emancipation Park walked down to an affordable housing complex called Friendship Court and, standing at its entrance, hurled racist slurs at black residents. Back at Emancipation Park, word spread among counter-protesters that Charlottesville black residents needed help, and a throng headed south to offer their bodies as support. But by time they got close to the housing complex, an organizer with Anarchist People of Color told them to turn back. The residents had already handled the situation, she told the marchers.

As they turned back up fourth street, the first march ran into another group of counter-protesters also under instructions to head to Friendship Court. It was a moment of jubilation — the residents had successfully defended themselves, and the official "Unite the Right" rally had been effectively shut down. The two marches merged, creating a huge congestion of people. But this mood lasted only a few minutes. It was into this rejoicing crowd that 20-year-old James Alex Fields Jr. gunned his car, then backed it up, and gunned it again.

It makes a cruel kind of sense that Heather Hyer and the others who were hit by Fields' car had just come from standing in solidarity with residents of this particular public housing complex, for it lies at the very center of the city and at the center of what happened this weekend in more ways than one.

"The site itself is in the heart of downtown and the center of the city's Strategic Investment Area," a developer named Frank Grosch with the Piedmont Housing Authority (PHA) told a crowd assembled at the well-heeled Omni Hotel in September of 2015. "And it's an extraordinarily valuable piece of real estate." It was at that same breakfast fundraiser that Grosch announced that the PHA would acquire the 150-unit subsidized apartment complex in 2018 and redevelop it as a mixed-income neighborhood.

The Trump administration just disbanded a federal advisory committee on climate change (Washington Post)
Washington Post
(8/20/2017 11:50 PM, Juliet Eilperin)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Trump administration has decided to disband the federal advisory panel for the National Climate Assessment, a group aimed at helping policymakers and private-sector officials incorporate the government's climate analysis into long-term planning.

The charter for the 15-person Advisory Committee for the Sustained National Climate Assessment — which includes academics as well as local officials and corporate representatives — expires Sunday. On Friday, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's acting administrator, Ben Friedman, informed the committee's chair that the agency would not renew the panel.

The National Climate Assessment is supposed to be issued every four years but has come out only three times since passage of the 1990 law calling for such analysis. The next one, due for release in 2018, already has become a contentious issue for the Trump administration.

Administration officials are currently reviewing a scientific report that is key to the final document. Known as the Climate Science Special Report, it was produced by scientists from 13 different federal agencies and estimates that human activities were responsible for an increase in global temperatures of 1.1 to 1.3 degrees Fahrenheit from 1951 to 2010.

How workers on government construction jobs are victimized by contractors that stand little chance of being caught

Poor track record of oversight

Government subcontractors underpay their employees any number of ways, Labor Department records show. Some companies misclassify workers, claiming they belong to a lower-paying trade, as the Labor Department found with the GSA asbestos-removers. Others have been caught striking employees from payroll records entirely. Still others cut workers' hours on paper to make it appear that the wages paid reflected actual time worked.

In one case, air-conditioner installers on a job financed in part by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development were routinely given paychecks reflecting the $50.70 per hour to which they were entitled under Davis-Bacon. They were forced to cash the checks and return about half the money to their employer, Igloo HVAC LLC, the Labor Department alleged. Payroll records submitted to HUD reflected none of this.

The Labor Department settled the case with Igloo HVAC, which paid more than $80,000 in back wages to five workers. Roberto Flores, the company's owner, declined to comment, citing the settlement agreement. A HUD spokesman said that while the agency reviews payroll records submitted for projects it finances, it can't always verify the accuracy of those records.

Wage theft in federal contracting has taken on new urgency as the Trump administration proposes a "great rebuilding of our country," a $1 trillion increase in public infrastructure investment over the next 10 years.

The Complex Relationship Between Innovation and Economic Segregation (The Atlantic CityLab)
The Atlantic CityLab
(8/21/2017 5:45 AM, Richard Florida)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

It's not just the tech industry that's responsible for America's stratifying cities.

Not too long ago, cities were bending over backward to attract high-tech companies, which they saw as offering good, high paying jobs. City after city developed programs designed to turn them into the "next Silicon Valley."

But now, from the backlash against Airbnb and Uber to protests over high-tech companies and their shuttle busses, high-tech companies are increasingly seen more as villains than saviors, to blame for making cities less affordable and for the growing gap between the rich and the poor. Indeed, America's leading high-tech centers—the Bay Area, Boston, New York, Washington D.C., Austin, San Diego, and Raleigh all rank highly on various measures of wage and income inequality.

But to what degree do high-tech industry and economic segregation go together?

A new study by me and my colleague, Charlotta Mellander, takes a deep dive into this issue. Our analysis covers the majority of America's 350-plus metros. Within them, we measure innovation both in terms of patents (the most commonly used measure of innovation by economists) and the concentration of high-tech industry. We measure economic segregation through several models based on income, education, and occupation, as well as a combined measure of overall economic segregation based on all three.

Treasury Secretary Mnuchin Rejects Calls to Resign, Defends President Trump (Wall Street Journal)

'Some of these issues are far more complicated than we are led to believe by the mass media,' Treasury chief says

Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin rejected calls for him to resign in protest of President Donald Trump's response to violence at a white-nationalist rally in Charlottesville, Va., last weekend, and defended the president in a statement Saturday evening.

Mr. Mnuchin condemned the "actions of those filled with hate and with the intent to harm others."

"While I find it hard to believe I should have to defend myself on this, or the president, I feel compelled to let you know that the president in no way, shape or form believes that neo-Nazi and other hate groups who endorse violence are equivalent to groups that demonstrate in peaceful and lawful ways," Mr. Mnuchin said.

About 300 of Mr. Mnuchin's classmates from the Yale University undergraduate class of 1985 posted a letter online Friday asking Mr. Mnuchin to resign in protest of Mr. Trump's comments.

"It is your moral obligation," they said. "We know you are better than this, and we are counting on you to do the right thing."

Justice Department charges

Nonetheless, in 2015 the U.S. Justice Department charged Oberman and the co-op with unlawfully attempting to evict residents, citing a "pattern or practice of discrimination against residents." The feds said Oberman allegedly began eviction proceedings against a resident who had a dog in violation of building rules at the time. It turned out the dog owner was a veteran of combat in Afghanistan who under federal law had the right to own a pet—a shih tzu named Mickey—to help cope with post-traumatic stress disorder. Prosecutors also accused Oberman and Trump Village of threatening to evict three other dog-owning residents, denying them preferred parking spaces and retaliating against one by removing the person from the co-op board.

The case came after the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development charged Oberman and Trump Village in 2015 with freezing people on the waiting list for parking spaces and leapfrogging at least one person to the top of the line.

Oberman, who stepped aside as co-op board president in 2015, said Trump Village is now pet-friendly and the Justice Department case was settled confidentially in July.

In the meantime Oberman faces other legal challenges. As part of the strategy to market Trump Village apartments to families, a photo showing him with his wife and young child was put on the co-op's marketing materials at the same time he was running for City Council. In May the Campaign Finance Board staff determined that Oberman illegally used co-op cash to promote his unsuccessful campaign, according to records obtained by Crain's under the Freedom of Information Law. He and his campaign face up to $25,000 in penalties and restitution, although a lawyer for Oberman, Laurence Laufer, said he believes the case will be dismissed without financial penalties at an administrative hearing scheduled for Aug. 21. In 2014 the city fined Oberman $7,500 after saying he used his TLC workplace phone to raise money for his campaign.

[VA] Tim Kaine column: Virginians must respond to this pain by accelerating progress (Richmond Times-Dispatch, VA)
Richmond Times-Dispatch
(8/21/2017 4:45 AM, Senator Tim Kaine)
Last Saturday, America and the world were confronted with scenes of neo-Nazis, Klansmen, and other white supremacists terrorizing the citizens of Charlottesville. Ostensibly protesting the locally elected government's democratic decision to remove a monument of Robert E. Lee, the ralliers chanted racist, anti-Semitic, homophobic messages having nothing to do with statues or heritage. They came to spew hate.

And it was more than just words. Heavily armed "militia" members intimidated local citizens. A mob beat Deandre Harris unconscious. A white supremacist intentionally drove his car into a crowd of people, killing 32-year-old Heather Heyer and injuring dozens of others who came to stand up for love and tolerance. And the ensuing chaos resulted in the deaths of Virginia State Police officers Berke Bates and Jay Cullen as they worked to restore peace.

As I attended the memorial services for these brave Virginians, each killed standing up for Virginia values of equality and order, I sought to understand this grievous attack on our commonwealth. And more importantly, I sought to determine how we must respond to it.

The events in Charlottesville did not occur in a vacuum. Our commonwealth knows well the pain of racism and division. The arrival of shackled Africans in Virginia in 1619 began the monstrous institution of slavery in our country. Richmond became the capital of an insurgent breakaway nation dedicated to the maintenance of slavery and the principle of white supremacy. And when slavery collapsed, succeeding generations embraced Jim Crow and Massive Resistance rather than living in accord with the principles we hollowly proclaimed to be self-evident.

In Grays Harbor County, Wash., the collapsed logging economy has been replaced by despair, homelessness, drugs and alcohol. Some Trump voters here maintain confidence in him; others are afraid.

ABERDEEN, Wash. (AP) — One-hundred-fifty baskets of pink petunias hang from the light posts all over this city, watered regularly by residents trying to make their community feel alive again. A local artist spends his afternoons high in a bucket truck, painting a block-long mural of a little girl blowing bubbles, each circle the scene of an imagined, hopeful future.

But in the present, vacant buildings dominate blocks. A van, stuffed so full of blankets and boxes they are spilling from the windows, pulls to the curb outside Stacie Blodgett's antiques shop.

"Look inside of it," she says. "I bet you he's living in it."

Around the corner, a crowded tent city of the desperate and addicted has taken over the riverbank, makeshift memorials to too many dead too young jutting up intermittently from the mud.

America, when viewed through the bars on Blodgett's windows, looks a lot less great than it used to be. So she answered Donald Trump's call to the country's forgotten corners. Thousands of her neighbors did, too, and her county, once among the most reliably Democratic in the nation, swung Republican in a presidential election for the first time in 90 years.

"People were like, 'This guy's going to be it. He's going to change everything, make it better again,'" she says.

Blodgett stands at the computer on her counter and scrolls through the headlines. Every day it's something new: details in the Russia campaign investigation, shake-ups at the White House, turmoil over Trump's response to race-fueled riots. His administration's failed plans to remake the health care system may or may not cost millions their coverage, and there's a lack of clarity over how exactly he intends to eradicate a spiraling drug crisis that now claims 142 American lives each day — a growing number of them here, in Grays Harbor County.

"Has he done anything good yet?" she asks. "Has he?"

Blodgett was born and raised in this county, where the logging economy collapsed decades ago, replaced by a simmering sense of injustice that outsiders took the lumber, built cities around the world and then left this place to decay when there was nothing more to take. The community sank into despair. Suicides increased, addiction took root. Blodgett is 59, and the rate at which people here die from drugs and alcohol has quadrupled in her lifetime.

Subject: RE: Follow up clarification requested regarding sentence in Important FOIA Policy Statement

Great question. Please let me clarify. We are essentially identifying three types of FOIA requests that should be processed through HQ. That means that the responsive documents will be prepared and released by HQ Exec Sec. and the final release will be reviewed and signed by me as the Chief FOIA Officer. The three types that this procedure applies to are:

(1) Any FOIA request from, or relating to, a member of Congress OR
(2) Any FOIA request from any media outlet OR
(3) Any FOIA request relating to an appointee

In each of these cases, we will, of course, still rely on the field FOIA liaisons to work with the records custodians and guide the searches as appropriate, but the processing of those documents (the application of exemptions and correspondence with requesters) will be handled by HQ FOIA. The rationale for this policy is the same in all three cases. These types of FOIA requests are the most likely to require cross-agency coordination and/or HQ leadership awareness/visibility. The FOIA Improvements Act places responsibility for FOIA compliance squarely on the agency head (the Secretary). As a result, inconsistent or uncoordinated responses create additional oversight and reputational risks to the agency and the Secretary in particular. To mitigate those risks, we have developed a uniform process for the vetting of complex and high visibility FOIAs at HQ that ensures (1) we are applying the law and HUD policy consistently, including implementing the new foreseeable harm standard; (2) HQ OGC FOIA counsel has an opportunity to review such responses; and (3) CIR, OPA, and the Secretary's staff (when needed) are informed of the content of outgoing FOIAs, without creating delay in the release. As the final signatory, I am the last check (the buck stops here, if you will) to make sure that (1), (2), and (3) happened without delays, short-cuts, or missteps.

Happy to talk about this further at any time. Adding in Kevin Simpson and Jerry Brown in case I missed anything or they have anything to add.

Helen

Dr. Williams – can you please clarify this sentence?

The same is true for all requests relating to members of Congress and all requests from any media outlet.

Does that mean that any FOIA request about Congress, and from media outlets need to be handled in HQ (regardless of the subject)? Or does that mean that any inquiry from a member of Congress or media outlet regarding an appointee has to be handled in HQ?

Thanks for the clarification

(j)(1) Each agency shall designate a Chief FOIA Officer who shall be a senior official of such agency (at the Assistant Secretary or equivalent level).

(2) The Chief FOIA Officer of each agency shall, subject to the authority of the head of the agency –

(A) have agency-wide responsibility for efficient and appropriate compliance with this section;

(B) monitor implementation of this section throughout the agency and keep the head of the agency, the chief legal officer of the agency, and the Attorney General appropriately informed of the agency's performance in implementing this section;

(C) recommend to the head of the agency such adjustments to agency practices, policies, personnel, and funding as may be necessary to improve its implementation of this section;

(D) review and report to the Attorney General, through the head of the agency, at such times and in such formats as the Attorney General may direct, on the agency's performance in implementing this section;

(E) facilitate public understanding of the purposes of the statutory exemptions of this section by including concise descriptions of the exemptions in both the agency's handbook issued under subsection (g), and the agency's annual report on this section, and by providing an overview, where appropriate, of certain general categories of agency records to which those exemptions apply;

(F) offer training to agency staff regarding their responsibilities under this section;

(G) serve as the primary agency liaison with the Office of Government Information Services and the Office of Information Policy; and

(H) designate 1 or more FOIA Public Liaisons.

(3) The Chief FOIA Officer of each agency shall review, not less frequently than annually, all aspects of the administration of this section by the agency to ensure compliance with the requirements of this section, including –

Subject: TIME SENSITIVE Complaint Against Vesta, Inc. Lanham (Possible Homelessness caused by Agency that I believe receives state and federal funds)

Dear Attorney General Staff:

I don't know if this is the appropriate office to lodge my complaint, but please direct me to the office if you do not handle this type of complaint. I am basically about the be made homeless by an agency that is supposed to be providing me housing!!!

I am renting a room in a house owned by Vesta, Inc., a non-profit behavioral health organization that provides assistance to mental health patients in a number of areas, including housing. (SEE vesta.org for more details) In any case, I was recently informed that Vesta would not renew my lease because I earned too much money to meet HUD housing requirements. The letter also falsely claimed that I failed to cooperate with the HUD recertification process process. I provided them all the information that they requested. They then represented to me that they had non-HUD housing available at a nearby house which I qualified for. They even had me to fill out an application for the housing and gave me a rent amount to pay. They sent me the official Notice of Non-renewal on July 18, 2017 and informed me that I had 30 days to move. (They did this on the same day that they were informed that I had to leave town due to my father's illness and his being placed on a ventilator- my father later passed on (b)(6) -this demonstrates how insensitive this Agency is- THE LETTER INDICATED THAT THERE WOULD ME NO EXTENSIONS) They offered me a location to move in and I accepted upon their offer and representation that I was eligible to live in this specific home that they offered me.

My scheduled move was to be on August 18, 2017. I was informed today, that the home they had offered me and which I was to move into this Friday was not available because today, for the first time, Vesta represented that the home was a HUD home and that I did not meet the requirements. They wanted me to move immediately as scheduled, but my case manager negotiated a two week extension. (The Housing Representative for Vesta, Inc. who made these claims today was Angela Middleton(

I am writing to the OAG because this time frame to find a place is unreasonable and this is a classic case of "detrimental reliance." I relied on their representation that they had a place for me to stay to my detriment. I reserved and paid for movers on last week. Contacted the cable company to establish cable at my new address and rented a U-Haul truck for the move. FINALLY, I did not spend my time over the last 30 days looking for a place because I relied on their word that I had one. This is what I would have done had I had not relied on their representation that they had a place available for me to stay.

I need your help dealing with this Agency and their improper treatment of the ones they are charged to protect. The relief that I want is MORE TIME TO SEARCH FOR A PLACE WITH VESTA PROVIDING ME WITH HOUSING WHILE I SEARCH.

Please reply to confirm receipt of my message and call me at (b)(6)

Briefly describe your dispute	Landlord, mental health agency who's puruse is to provide housing, issued a notice of non-renewal on July 18, 2017 stating mainly that I did not qualify for HUD housing, which my house was, due to my income. Gave me 30 days to get out. Offered me what they described as NON-HUD housing to begin on August 18, 2017, Then on today, August 14, 2017, told me that that housing that they offered and I accepted was no longer available. After much persistence, they gave me 2 weeks to get out. They claimed that the house which they claimed was non-hud housing for which I was eligible for was now suddenly- Hud housing for which I did not qualify. They also falsely accused me of not cooperating with the Hud-recertification process. This was not true, I cooperated with all requests made of me. VESTA ENTEKA, INC.

NOTICE NOT TO RENEW RENTAL AGREEMENT

To: (b)(6)

DATE: July 18, 2017

Dear (b)(6)

Please be advised that I am the Corporate Property Coordinator for Vesta Inc., the management agency for Vesta Enteka, Inc. and all Vesta properties.

As you know, your current lease expired on June 30, 2017 and converted to a month to month lease effective July 1, 2017. After careful consideration, we have elected to exercise our legal right to repossess the property and this letter shall serve as your written notice to vacate. Under Maryland law, no reason must be given by the Landlord as to why it elects to repossess the property; rather, the law only requires that adequate notice must be given. However, due to your lack of cooperation with the HUD required recertification and the fact that you fall outside of the income guidelines to qualify for HUD subsidy we have elected to not renew your lease.

Accordingly, on behalf of Vesta Enteka Inc., you are hereby notified that on or before 11:59 p.m. on August 18, 2017, you must vacate the leased premises. Of course, this notice does not relieve you of your obligation to pay any monthly rent currently due or any rent as it becomes due. You are also advised that if you fail to pay your rent on time, legal action for failure to pay rent will be instituted. NO EXTENSIONS WILL BE PERMITTED.

Sincerely,

Angela V. Middleton

HUD-17-0235-C-001269

Our Company

Vesta, Inc. is a private, non-profit, comprehensive behavioral health careorganization with seven locations throughout Maryland. Vesta offers comprehensive, flexible, and ongoing services for adults, children and adolescents with a wide range of psychological difficulties, including serious and persistent mental illness. Services include:

- individual, couple, family, and group therapy,
- medication management,
- day rehabilitation programs,
- residential rehabilitation programs,
- substance abuse counseling, and
- supported housing.

Our Philosophy

The mission and guiding principle of Vesta, Inc is to make each client and their personal development a priority. All individuals, regardless of their illness or housing status, are entitled to a quality of life which includes stable housing, employment, and community involvement. Vesta recognizes there are barriers and limitations in the form of stigma, funding, and availability of programs to meet the goals of those we serve and is dedicated to overcoming those obstacles.

Our most important resource in overcoming these obstacles and achieving the goals of those we serve is the Organization's employees. Vesta, Inc's staff is committed to the personal growth of those whom we serve as well as the growth of Vesta, Inc staff members. In working towards this commitment, we recognize that high quality service to those we serve can only be accomplished through the work of trained, dedicated, and satisfied employees. In this regard, the commitments upon which our mission is based include the following:

- To treat with respect, each employee, customer, and client of and visitor to the Organization;
- To establish clarity and accountability in each staff position, supporting the growth of the staff member through education and continual learning;
- To provide an efficient and friendly environment;
- To encourage ongoing communications between clients, staff, management, and leadership;
- To provide a process for the resolution of disputes and grievances;
- To empower clients to achieve self-determination and enhance their lives within the community;
- To promote the advocacy of consumer rights, needs, and the reduction of stigma within the community.

Supported Housing (SH)

Vesta also offers supported housing services in which individuals with mental illness can live in apartments or single-family homes within the constraints of their budget. Services include roommate matching, assistance in shopping for furniture and other basic housing needs, and assistance in setting up utilities and negotiating leases. Staff will typically make house visits at least weekly. For more information about supported housing please call the center located in your county.

Subject: ASSISTANCE REQUESTED: [EXT]HUD FOLLOW-UP Essex Village REAC Re-Inspection/FOIA Requests

Good morning -- I followed-up with Melissa to find out who told her that HUD was not happy about the score, but in the meantime, can you please advise how best to handle this inquiry? As you can see from her earlier email, this is one of the reporters that we advised the score would not be available for 45 days. My guess this is the first inquiry, but not the last, so best to craft some talking points for release. Thanks, in advance for the help!

Hi Lisa-
Thanks for this response.
I've been on vacation and today is my first day back.
I see that Congressman McEachin told the public that the new score reflected extremely low unit scores. It appears Essex only received half the possible amount of points. Moreover, I understand HUD was not happy about that score. Is this correct? What type of action are you taking to hold PK/GHC Housing accountable since they haven't held up their end of the bargin and improved conditions in the units?
THANK YOU!
Melissa

Melissa -- Sorry for the delay in the response. As we have communicated in past emails, once the score is released to the owner, the owner has up to 45 days to appeal the score before it is made public. With the inspection concluding on August 10 and the notification to the owner a few days following, the score may be releasable on October 9--depending upon possible appeals. As far as the inspection report, the release is typically 120 days if there is no appeal to slow things down.

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

As far as your FOIA requests, we are checking on the status of the release of the report as well as your request for Mr. LaVoy's emails. Both are being handled at Headquarters, so we have reached out and are waiting to hear back on both. Hope that helps...

Hi Ladies-
Just checking to see if the most recent Essex Village inspection report is ready for release? Can you tell me their score? Also-can you release that FOIA info I requested yet? (You had to wait to see if PK challenged the release). Also-I've heard nothing from inspector general on LaVoy emails. Thank you!

Hi Reema – Sorry for the delay. Yesterday I learned the New Lassiter Courts inspection was conducted in August and the score was just released to Newport News RHA on August 28, 2017. I also confirmed the score will be releasable 45 days after August 28 (the notification date) or approximately October 13 or a week or so after that date. It all depends on if we receive an appeal on October 13; right on the deadline. The subsequent REAC Inspection report will be releasable by FOIA on or after 120 days which will be on December 27, 2018—again, depending on any appeals. I will check on the other NNRHA inspection dates scheduled in September—and will provide timelines for those as well.

Please let me know if there is anything else you need right now. Thanks!

I reached out to our REAC team to see if any of these properties are scheduled for inspections or have been recently inspected and the scores may simply not be available at this point in time. Also, I reached out to the RAD team to find out the status of the three NNRHA properties that are in conversion. I'll follow-up as soon as I hear back from either team. So, continuing to work on it…

Hello Lisa and Anne,

I touched base with you last year about REAC inspection reports in Newport News. Hope you're well.

I wanted to submit another similar FOIA request for the most recent REAC inspection reports for public housing complexes that are managed by the Newport News Redevelopment and Housing Authority.

I want to request the waiver of fees because this information will be used to inform the public.

Please let me know when you've reviewed my request.

Great news...I found that they did...haha.

Now I'm wondering if they can apply for more, or if they have applied for more Hope 6 funding?

"HOPE VI is a comprehensive program that is revitalizing Virginia's historic Blackwell community, which lies just south of downtown Richmond.

The Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority (RRHA) and the City of Richmond secured a HOPE VI grant of $26.9 million from HUD (the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development) to revitalize Richmond's Blackwell community. (HOPE VI is an acronym for Housing Opportunities for People Everywhere.)

The HOPE VI Program is bringing replacement housing units that will include:

* 161 multi-family units in Blackwell;
* 188 new single-family houses in Blackwell;
* 120 homeownership units in three other Richmond communities

For the public housing residents of Blackwell, the HOPE VI Program creates opportunities for new rental and homeownership housing and provides comprehensive self-sufficiency services (through "SSTP," RRHA's HOPE VI Self-Sufficiency Training Program) to improve their quality of life and support employment objectives.

In September 2001, just one year after breaking ground for Blackwell's first new multifamily housing, families have moved into the multifamily housing, the Townes at River South. Many of the families moving into these attractive, privately owned and managed rental units are former residents of Blackwell public housing."

Yes!

So I want to do a deep dive into RRHA.

Here are some ideas I have...

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

1) Is there a way to track crime at RRHA there through HUD? Do y'all track crime at housing projects?

2) How much money does RRHA receive annually (or how much did they receive for 2015, 2016, and 2017)?

3) Why did RRHA disband its police force in 2014?

4) I want to showcase a housing authority that's not too far from Richmond that is actually doing a good job...a high performer. Can you suggest one?

5) Is RRHA considered a "high performer" or "low performer"? Are there inspection scores I could look at for their communities like there are for section 8 multi family? Would love to see the scores for 2015, 2016 and 2017.

These are just some initial ideas...

THANKS!

Subject: [EXT]HUD FOLLOW-UP Essex Village REAC Re-Inspection/FOIA Requests (3)

Hi Melissa – Here's what I learned late yesterday afternoon. The August 10 REAC score of 74.17 is a "passing" score, however, the Department found areas of non-compliance with HUD's standard of decent, safe, and sanitary housing in the inspection that were of sufficient concern to warrant the issuance of the August 21 letter to the owner. The intention of that letter, and requirements for owner inspection, repair and reporting to HUD, are to ensure that the owner meets his contractual obligations to HUD and the tenants and continues to address the physical needs of the property. As stated in the letter, HUD continues to provide oversight of the owner's efforts to address the conditions at the property and continues to assess whether enforcement action is warranted.

Hope that gives you what you need for now.

Lisa-
I have a copy of the letter HUD sent to Greg Pearlman telling Greg he is in non-compliance with his "renewal contract".
The letter states the overall score was much better at 74.17, but it also states individual unit scores are "unacceptable" and represent a serious risk to the health and safety of the tenants.
HUD is giving them another 90 days to comply.
I am wondering why they are getting yet another 90 days to comply without penalty? Why haven't they been penalized monetarily yet, or had their contract with HUD pulled?
Isn't the condition of the individual units most important for the residents?
Look forward to hearing backd.

Hi Lisa-
Thanks for this response.
I've been on vacation and today is my first day back.
I see that Congressman McEachin told the public that the new score reflected extremely low unit scores. It appears Essex only received half the possible amount of points. Moreover, I understand HUD was not happy about that score.
Is this correct? What type of action are you taking to hold PK/GHC Housing accountable since they haven't held up their end of the bargin and improved conditions in the units?
THANK YOU!

Melissa -- Sorry for the delay in the response. As we have communicated in past emails, once the score is released to the owner, the owner has up to 45 days to appeal the score before it is made public. With the inspection concluding on August 10 and the notification to the owner a few days following, the score may be releasable on October 9--depending upon possible appeals. As far as the inspection report, the release is typically 120 days if there is no appeal to slow things down.

As far as your FOIA requests, we are checking on the status of the release of the report as well as your request for Mr. LaVoy's emails. Both are being handled at Headquarters, so we have reached out and are waiting to hear back on both. Hope that helps...

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Melissa -- Sorry for the delay in the response. As we have communicated in past emails, once the score is released to the owner, the owner has up to 45 days to appeal the score before it is made public. With the inspection concluding on August 10 and the notification to the owner a few days following, the score may be releasable on October 9--depending upon possible appeals. As far as the inspection report, the release is typically 120 days if there is no appeal to slow things down.

As far as your FOIA requests, we are checking on the status of the release of the report as well as your request for Mr. LaVoy's emails. Both are being handled at Headquarters, so we have reached out and are waiting to hear back on both. Hope that helps...

Just checking to see if the most recent Essex Village inspection report is ready for release? Can you tell me their score? Also-can you release that FOIA info I requested yet? (You had to wait to see if PK challenged the release). Also-I've heard nothing from inspector general on LaVoy emails. Thank you!

Melissa -- I believe you will find that was a Choice Neighborhoods grant. Here's an article by the National Low-Income Housing Coalition that defines the two programs, when they were funded/received funding and how they differ. It's a little dated, so does not include all the funding information, but it's an unbiased view of the programs. And yes, Richmond RHA applied for a Choice Neighborhoods grant, but was unsuccessful. Please know these grants are extremely competitive and that RRHA was one of 29 agencies that did not make it to the final five. There were 34 applications in total.

This is the last year HUD will be funding Choice Neighborhoods Implementation Grants. The Notice of Funding Availability is open now—application period ends November 22, 2017.

I don't think so. We haven't awarded Hope IV program grants since I have been with HUD. I believe there are still a few projects being wrapped-up which is why it is still "active" but I do not think there will be any additional awards. I am confirming that—so please do not quote me. Now I'm wondering if they can apply for more, or if they have applied for more Hope 6 funding?

"HOPE VI is a comprehensive program that is revitalizing Virginia's historic Blackwell community, which lies just south of downtown Richmond.

The Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority (RRHA) and the City of Richmond secured a HOPE VI grant of $26.9 million from HUD (the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development) to revitalize Richmond's Blackwell community. (HOPE VI is an acronym for Housing Opportunities for People Everywhere.)

The HOPE VI Program is bringing replacement housing units that will include:

* 161 multi-family units in Blackwell;
* 188 new single-family houses in Blackwell;
* 120 homeownership units in three other Richmond communities

For the public housing residents of Blackwell, the HOPE VI Program creates opportunities for new rental and homeownership housing and provides comprehensive self-sufficiency services (through "SSTP," RRHA's HOPE VI Self-Sufficiency Training Program) to improve their quality of life and support employment objectives.

In September 2001, just one year after breaking ground for Blackwell's first new multifamily housing, families have moved into the multifamily housing, the Townes at River South. Many of the families moving into these attractive, privately owned and managed rental units are former residents of Blackwell public housing."

Yes!

So I want to do a deep dive into RRHA.

Here are some ideas I have...

1) Is there a way to track crime at RRHA there through HUD? Do y'all track crime at housing projects?

2) How much money does RRHA receive annually (or how much did they receive for 2015, 2016, and 2017)?

3) Why did RRHA disband its police force in 2014?

4) I want to showcase a housing authority that's not too far from Richmond that is actually doing a good job...a high performer. Can you suggest one?

5) Is RRHA considered a "high performer" or "low performer"? Are there inspection scores I could look at for their communities like there are for section 8 multi family? Would love to see the scores for 2015, 2016 and 2017.

These are just some initial ideas...

THANKS!

Hi Melissa – Here's what I learned late yesterday afternoon. The August 10 REAC score of 74.17 is a "passing" score, however, the Department found areas of non-compliance with HUD's standard of decent, safe, and sanitary housing in the inspection that were of sufficient concern to warrant the issuance of the August 21 letter to the owner. The intention of that letter, and requirements for owner inspection, repair and reporting to HUD, are to ensure that the owner meets his contractual obligations to HUD and the tenants and continues to address the physical needs of the property. As stated in the letter, HUD continues to provide oversight of the owner's efforts to address the conditions at the property and continues to assess whether enforcement action is warranted.

Hope that gives you what you need for now.

I have a copy of the letter HUD sent to Greg Pearlman telling Greg he is in non-compliance with his "renewal contract". The letter states the overall score was much better at 74.17, but it also states individual unit scores are "unacceptable" and represent a serious risk to the health and safety of the tenants.
HUD is giving them another 90 days to comply.
I am wondering why they are getting yet another 90 days to comply without penalty? Why haven't they been penalized monetarily yet, or had their contract with HUD pulled?
Isn't the condition of the individual units most important for the residents?
Look forward to hearing backd.

Thanks for this response.
I've been on vacation and today is my first day back.
I see that Congressman McEachin told the public that the new score reflected extremely low unit scores. It appears Essex only received half the possible amount of points. Moreover, I understand HUD was not happy about that score.
Is this correct? What type of action are you taking to hold PK/GHC Housing accountable since they haven't held up their end of the bargin and improved conditions in the units?
THANK YOU!

Great news...I found that they did...haha.

Now I'm wondering if they can apply for more, or if they have applied for more Hope 6 funding?

"HOPE VI is a comprehensive program that is revitalizing Virginia's historic Blackwell community, which lies just south of downtown Richmond.

The Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority (RRHA) and the City of Richmond secured a HOPE VI grant of $26.9 million from HUD (the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development) to revitalize Richmond's Blackwell community. (HOPE VI is an acronym for Housing Opportunities for People Everywhere.)

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The HOPE VI Program is bringing replacement housing units that will include:

* 161 multi-family units in Blackwell;
* 188 new single-family houses in Blackwell;
* 120 homeownership units in three other Richmond communities

For the public housing residents of Blackwell, the HOPE VI Program creates opportunities for new rental and homeownership housing and provides comprehensive self-sufficiency services (through "SSTP," RRHA's HOPE VI Self-Sufficiency Training Program) to improve their quality of life and support employment objectives.

In September 2001, just one year after breaking ground for Blackwell's first new multifamily housing, families have moved into the multifamily housing, the Townes at River South. Many of the families moving into these attractive, privately owned and managed rental units are former residents of Blackwell public housing."

Yes!

So I want to do a deep dive into RRHA.

Here are some ideas I have...

1) Is there a way to track crime at RRHA there through HUD? Do y'all track crime at housing projects?

2) How much money does RRHA receive annually (or how much did they receive for 2015, 2016, and 2017)?

3) Why did RRHA disband its police force in 2014?

4) I want to showcase a housing authority that's not too far from Richmond that is actually doing a good job...a high performer. Can you suggest one?

5) Is RRHA considered a "high performer" or "low performer"? Are there inspection scores I could look at for their communities like there are for section 8 multi family? Would love to see the scores for 2015, 2016 and 2017.

These are just some initial ideas...

Hi Melissa – Here's what I learned late yesterday afternoon. The August 10 REAC score of 74.17 is a "passing" score, however, the Department found areas of non-compliance with HUD's standard of decent, safe, and sanitary housing in the inspection that were of sufficient concern to warrant the issuance of the August 21 letter to the owner. The intention of that letter, and requirements for owner inspection, repair and reporting to HUD, are to ensure that the owner meets his contractual obligations to HUD and the tenants and continues to address the physical needs of the property. As stated in the letter, HUD continues to provide oversight of the owner's efforts to address the conditions at the property and continues to assess whether enforcement action is warranted.

Hope that gives you what you need for now.

Lisa-
I have a copy of the letter HUD sent to Greg Pearlman telling Greg he is in non-compliance with his "renewal contract".
The letter states the overall score was much better at 74.17, but it also states individual unit scores are "unacceptable" and represent a serious risk to the health and safety of the tenants.
HUD is giving them another 90 days to comply.
I am wondering why they are getting yet another 90 days to comply without penalty? Why haven't they been penalized monetarily yet, or had their contract with HUD pulled?
Isn't the condition of the individual units most important for the residents?
Look forward to hearing backd.

Melissa -- Sorry for the delay in the response. As we have communicated in past emails, once the score is released to the owner, the owner has up to 45 days to appeal the score before it is made public. With the inspection concluding on August 10 and the notification to the owner a few days following, the score may be releasable on October 9--depending upon possible appeals. As far as the inspection report, the release is typically 120 days if there is no appeal to slow things down.

As far as your FOIA requests, we are checking on the status of the release of the report as well as your request for Mr. LaVoy's emails. Both are being handled at Headquarters, so we have reached out and are waiting to hear back on both. Hope that helps...

Subject: Re: RRHA Housing: Can you call me?

Great news...I found that they did...haha.

Now I'm wondering if they can apply for more, or if they have applied for more Hope 6 funding?

"HOPE VI is a comprehensive program that is revitalizing Virginia's historic Blackwell community, which lies just south of downtown Richmond.

The Richmond Redevelopment and Housing Authority (RRHA) and the City of Richmond secured a HOPE VI grant of $26.9 million from HUD (the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development) to revitalize Richmond's Blackwell community. (HOPE VI is an acronym for Housing Opportunities for People Everywhere.)

The HOPE VI Program is bringing replacement housing units that will include:

* 161 multi-family units in Blackwell;
* 188 new single-family houses in Blackwell;
* 120 homeownership units in three other Richmond communities

For the public housing residents of Blackwell, the HOPE VI Program creates opportunities for new rental and homeownership housing and provides comprehensive self-sufficiency services (through "SSTP," RRHA's HOPE VI Self-Sufficiency Training Program) to improve their quality of life and support employment objectives.

In September 2001, just one year after breaking ground for Blackwell's first new multifamily housing, families have moved into the multifamily housing, the Townes at River South. Many of the families moving into these attractive, privately owned and managed rental units are former residents of Blackwell public housing."

Yes!

So I want to do a deep dive into RRHA.

Here are some ideas I have...

1) Is there a way to track crime at RRHA there through HUD? Do y'all track crime at housing projects?

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

2) How much money does RRHA receive annually (or how much did they receive for 2015, 2016, and 2017)?

3) Why did RRHA disband its police force in 2014?

4) I want to showcase a housing authority that's not too far from Richmond that is actually doing a good job...a high performer. Can you suggest one?

5) Is RRHA considered a "high performer" or "low performer"? Are there inspection scores I could look at for their communities like there are for section 8 multi family? Would love to see the scores for 2015, 2016 and 2017.

These are just some initial ideas...

THANKS!

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Hi Melissa – Here's what I learned late yesterday afternoon. The August 10 REAC score of 74.17 is a "passing" score, however, the Department found areas of non-compliance with HUD's standard of decent, safe, and sanitary housing in the inspection that were of sufficient concern to warrant the issuance of the August 21 letter to the owner. The intention of that letter, and requirements for owner inspection, repair and reporting to HUD, are to ensure that the owner meets his contractual obligations to HUD and the tenants and continues to address the physical needs of the property. As stated in the letter, HUD continues to provide oversight of the owner's efforts to address the conditions at the property and continues to assess whether enforcement action is warranted.

Hope that gives you what you need for now.

Lisa-
I have a copy of the letter HUD sent to Greg Pearlman telling Greg he is in non-compliance with his "renewal contract".
The letter states the overall score was much better at 74.17, but it also states individual unit scores are "unacceptable" and represent a serious risk to the health and safety of the tenants.
HUD is giving them another 90 days to comply.
I am wondering why they are getting yet another 90 days to comply without penalty? Why haven't they been penalized monetarily yet, or had their contract with HUD pulled?
Isn't the condition of the individual units most important for the residents?
Look forward to hearing backd.

Hi Lisa-
Thanks for this response.
I've been on vacation and today is my first day back.
I see that Congressman McEachin told the public that the new score reflected extremely low unit scores. It appears Essex only received half the possible amount of points. Moreover, I understand HUD was not happy about that score.
Is this correct? What type of action are you taking to hold PK/GHC Housing accountable since they haven't held up their end of the bargin and improved conditions in the units?
THANK YOU!
Melissa

Melissa -- Sorry for the delay in the response. As we have communicated in past emails, once the score is released to the owner, the owner has up to 45 days to appeal the score before it is made public. With the inspection concluding on August 10 and the notification to the owner a few days following, the score may be releasable on October 9--depending upon possible appeals. As far as the inspection report, the release is typically 120 days if there is no appeal to slow things down.

As far as your FOIA requests, we are checking on the status of the release of the report as well as your request for Mr. LaVoy's emails. Both are being handled at Headquarters, so we have reached out and are waiting to hear back on both. Hope that helps...

7/19/2017	17-FI-HQ-02153	Jones, Karianne	Democracy Forward Foundation	President Trump has made unprecedented use of so-called "informal advisers" to inform policymaking, bypassing both Senate-confirmed Cabinet secretaries and federal ethics regulations including conflict-of-interest rules. To understand and explain to the public the scope of government business conducted by these informal advisers, Democracy Forward Foundation requests that the Department of Housing and Urban Development produce the following within twenty (20) business days. All communications, including any attachments, sent to or from: Carl Icahn, Rudolph Giuliani, Richard LeFrak, Steven Roth, Robert Kraft, Ike Perlmutter, Steve Schwarzman, Phil Ruffin, Rupert Murdoch, Corey Lewandowski, Newt Gingrich, Chris Ruddy, Sean Hannity, Thomas Barrack, Jr., Chris Christie, Roger Stone, Eric Trump, or Donald Trump, Jr. All communications, including any attachments, made or received in relation to or reflecting the conduct of government business using any nongovernmental email account or nongovernmental communications device established, controlled or used by Carl Icahn, Rudolph Giuliani, Richard LeFrak, Steven Roth, Robert Kraft, Ike Perlmutter, Steve Schwarzman, Phil Ruffin, Rupert Murdoch, Corey Lewandowski, Newt Gingrich, Chris Ruddy, Sean Hannity, Thomas Barrack, Jr., Chris Christie, Roger Stone, Eric Trump, or Donald Trump, Jr. See Appendix for [illegible]	-	Media
9/18/2017	17 FI HQ 02122	Blacele, Daniel	-	request that a copy of the following documents be provided to me: A copy of correspondence from Congresswoman Diane Black or her staff and the response to the correspondence. Please search for documents from January 2011 through present. A copy of all correspondence from the majority staff of the House Budget Committee from January 1, 2017 through present. I believe the correspondence are most likely to be held by your Office of Congressional Affairs, Office of Legislative Affairs, or the office of the Executive Secretariat and likely tracked within a correspondence management system. I am specifically looking for correspondence regarding policy, legislation, or regulations, recommendations for executive branch positions or appointments, or support or opposition to federal funding for programs, projects, or companies. 9/18/2017	17 FI HQ 02121	Dejean, Ashley	-	09/15/2017 Dear Sir/Madam: This is a request under the Freedom of Information Act. I request that a copy of the following document(s) be provided to me: Date Range: March 2, 2017-Present Description of requested records: • Copies of all correspondence, including but not limited to emails, memos, and guidance, of Ben Carson and his confidential staff pertaining to public-private partnerships • Copies of all correspondence, including but not limited to emails, memos, and guidance, of David Eagles and his confidential staff pertaining to public-private partnerships • All calendar entries reflecting meetings of David Eagles For calendar entries created in Outlook or similar programs, the documents should be produced in "memo" form to include all invitees, notes, and all attachments. Please do not limit your search to Outlook calendars. I request the production of any calendar—paper or electronic, whether on government-issued or personal devices—used to track or coordinate how Mr. Eagles allocates his time on agency business. This request encompasses meetings Eagles actually attended as well as meetings to which he was invited or were cancelled. In order to help determine fees, you should know that I am a representative of the news media. As such, I am only required to pay for the direct cost of duplication after the first 100 pages. I am a reporter at Mother Jones magazine, an award-winning print and web publication with a readership of over 9 million people nationally, per month. As you can see on our website, MotherJones.com, our content is original analysis, not aggregation of information. We have a proven record of ably gathering information on current events, synthesizing that information into distinct journalistic pieces, and then disseminating it to a broad public. In accordance with 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(4)(A)(iii) and 24 C.F.R. § 15.106(k), Mother Jones requests a waiver of fees associated with processing this request for records. The disclosure of the requested records is "likely to contribute significantly to public understanding" of government operations and activities. Housing and community development decisions and activities affect millions of Americans across the country. Thus, disclosure of the requested information to me is in the public interest, and is likely to contribute significantly to public understanding of the activities of the government. Given that Mother Jones is run by the Foundation for National Progress, a 501(c)(3), non-profit organization, the requested documents are not primarily in my commercial interest. If my request is denied in whole or part, I ask that you justify all deletions by reference to specific exemptions of the act. I will also expect you to release all segregable portions of otherwise exempt material. I reserve the right to appeal your decision to withhold any information or to deny a waiver of fees. I look forward to your reply within 20 business days, as the statute requires. Please send this information in electronic format wherever possible. As	-	Agency Officials

8/23/2017	17-FI-HQ-01806	Colman, Zack	E&E News	Aug. 23, 2017 451 7th Street, SW, Room 10139 Washington, DC 20410-1000 To Whom It May Concern: This is a request under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). I request all records concerning communications between Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) since Jan. 20, 2017 to Aug. 23, 2017. Please include any phone calls, calendars, call sheets, Skype calls or videos, emails, letters, hand-written notes, day calendars, memorandums, meeting agenda sheets, text messages, voice and video recordings and other documented forms of communication between HUD and NAHB. As for communications, I am seeking communications between Housing and Urban Development officials and representatives of the National Association of Home Builders, the latter of which is including but not limited to Billy Kaumaya, James Tobin, Scott Meyer, Lake Boulsor, Courtney Briggs, J.P. Delmore, Alex Strong, Jessica Hall, Julia Bogue, Dave Logan, Alexis Moch, Granger MacDonald, Randy Noe, Greg Ugalde, Dean Mon, Ed Brady, Justin MacDonald, and Greg Peek. I prefer to receive the response to this request in electronic form. If the response to this request exceeds more than 15 megabytes, please contact me in order to arrange another form of delivery other than email. If possible, I would prefer to receive the largest number of records or documents in electronic form. I am filing this FOIA request as a representative of the news media since I am a reporter for Climatewire -- one of Environment & Energy Publishing's five daily online publications. This designation entitles me to a waiver of fees accumulated during the actual search and review process. Nevertheless, if your agency does determine that I should be charged for any part of this request, please contact me before estimated costs exceed $25. This request is made as part of news-gathering activity and is not for commercial use. The information responsive to this FOIA request will contribute to the public's understanding of your agency and the government at large. This information is not in the public domain but once your agency responds to this FOIA request, it will be posted on our website, www.eenews.net, which has more than 40,000 unique visitors a day. We expect the information that is produced through this and other FOIA requests to serve as the basis for several articles that explain the government's actions and operations to the public. For more information about Climatewire and Environment & Energy Publishing, please refer to www.eenews.net. FOIA requires that if part of a record is exempt from disclosure, you must redact and release all segregated parts. Please describe the deleted material in detail and specify the reasons for believing that the alleged statutory justification applies in this instance. If my request is denied in whole or in part, please specify which exemption(s) is (are) claimed for each passage or whole document denied. Dear Sandi,

Following telephone conversations with the Region III FOIA Liaison, Van Williams, and pursuant to the recent FOIA policy and clarification, our office is turning over the responsive documents and supporting information to ExecSec-FOIA Branch for finalizing the processing of the documents and response to the requester.

I have uploaded the following documents in FMS2 under FOIA case control #17-FI-RO3-01696 (Max Lee, Northern Virginia Daily) in Document Management, File name "Lee-NVDaily":

1. Original HAP Contract
2. RFD Response from Program Area

Your will find the Recommendation Sheet in the correspondence log.

I plan to update the FOIA case control number in FMS2 to reflect that this is now a HQ-controlled case and remove it from the RO3 queue since ExecSec is finalizing the processing of the request.

Please advise if there is any outstanding matter or needed change to the above steps.

Dear Sandi,

Following telephone conversations with the Region III FOIA Liaison, Van Williams, and pursuant to the recent FOIA policy and clarification, our office is turning over the responsive documents and supporting information to ExecSec-FOIA Branch for finalizing the processing of the documents and response to the requester.

I have uploaded the following documents in FMS2 under FOIA case control #17-FI-RO3-01465 (Debbie Truong, Richmond Times-Dispatch) in Document Management, File name "RTD-TRUONGESSEX-2017":

1. All PK Properties
2. Essex HAP Payments 2012-2016
3. Essex CDE Original
4. Essex CDE Redacted

For your information, the requester received an interim response on July 10, 2017, which you will find in the correspondence log. With the interim response, the "All PK Properties" and "Essex HAP Payments 2012-2016" were released in full.

This FOIA has been linked to 17-FI-R03-01425, and the clock has been stopped, because the CDE document requested by both of these media requesters has not yet been released pending resolution of submitter objections to the release of the following documents:

The decision to release these documents has been made and the submitter was notified of HUD's intent to release on August 17, 2017 (this is in the correspondence log). The requester is anticipating receiving our final response by August 31, the date provided to the submitter as the intended date of document release.

I plan to update the FOIA case control number in FMS2 to reflect that this is now a HQ-controlled case and remove it from the RO3 queue since ExecSec is finalizing the processing of the request.

Dear Mr. DeFelice,

Congratulations on your appointment under President Trump's administration. Your involvement in community development over the years will allow for very effective changes needed in all our communities in the region. I had contacted you when you were the Chairman of the PhillyGOP in April 2016 in reference to problems facing voters in selecting appropriate delegates to represent candidates at the upcoming Presidential election. I had also sent an email to Dick Thornburg of Committee of Seventy for his viewpoint (From: John Leary [mailto:admin@thejlo.org] Sent: Monday, April 25, 2016 10:33 PM To: 'josephjdefelice@(b)(6) 'dthornburgh@seventy.org' Subject: April 26, 2016 voting)

Following are emails concerning the PHA and landlord/tenant problems in the whirlpool of FMR levels and affordable housing issues in various areas causing much grief (please see the PDF attachment), PRRAC alert on the Small Area FMR rule, contact with NLIHC for AFFH comments, and my submission in 2013 for HUD Docket No. FR-S173-P-0l.

I would look forward to speaking with you concerning these items and how your office can help the specific issue with the PHA in relation to tenants caught in the crossfire between PHA and their listed realtors;. It is important that affordable housing will continue to be possible for lower and fixed income households in the midst of the extreme cost of living which is displacing many people in various metropolitan areas, driven by developers seeking to profit without regard. For your information, I have contacted various individuals and agencies for consideration using disposable or net income instead of gross income being more realistic as the qualifier for housing affordability.

Thank you for your consideration, and much success in your position.

Dear Mr. Jeremiah,

This is in reference to an article written by Helen Ubinas in the Sunday, September 10, 2017, edition of The Philadelphia Inquirer. Please take a moment to read the article (see copy of PDF attached) and review the options available.

The article details a problem with a Section 8 recipient who is caught in a battle with the landlord and PHA voucher payments. The tenant is a single mother raising three young children and is now facing possible eviction after residing at the property for nine years.

Thank you again for excellent information and for your "Out of Reach 2017" content.

Following is a copy of the comment I submitted for the 2013 HUD Docket FR-5173-P-01 referencing the AFFH situation in 2013. You'll note my reference to your "Out of Reach 2013" report. I had forwarded this information to various agencies and various powers that be to do something positive (you were also sent copies as well).

The problem hasn't gone away and is still one of discrimination when using the FMR calculation and factoring the gross income versus disposable income information and the fallacy of the 30% limit being equitable. Those individuals who are not wage earners are discriminated against due to the question of tax liability. This is an obvious example of a flagrant disregard for quality of life and the belief that a certain income level is the rule of the land. Logic becomes non-existent.

My belief is that legislators continue to unethically and immorally allow various interest groups to continue this discrimination.

I would look forward to assisting any organization in proposing legislative adjustments. And, for a little light humor, I am not "out of reach". Everyone is invited to be a guest on my show, www.thejlo.org (media tab).

We are pleased to announce the release of Out of Reach 2017: The High Cost of Housing. This report, released today by the National Low Income Housing Coalition (NLIHC), reveals that on average a full-time worker in the U.S. must earn $21.21 per hour to afford a modest two-bedroom apartment and S17.14 to afford a one-bedroom apartment. The report indicates that housing costs are "out of reach" for both for the average renter and for millions of low-wage workers, seniors and people with disabilities living on fixed incomes, and other low-income households.

Out of Reach reports on the Housing Wage - the hourly wage a full-time worker must earn to afford a modest rental home without spending more than 30% of his or her income on housing costs - for every state, county, and metropolitan area in the country. The average hourly wage of renters in the U.S. is $16.38, $4.83 lower than the two-bedroom Housing Wage and nearly $1 lower than for the one-bedroom Housing Wage.

In no state, even those where the minimum wage has been set above the federal level, can a minimum wage renter working a 40-hour work week afford a modest two-bedroom rental unit. A worker earning the federal minimum wage of S7.25 per hour would need to work 117 hours per week for 52 weeks of the year (or nearly 3 full-time jobs) to afford a modest two-bedroom rental home and 94.5 hours per week (2.4 full time jobs) to afford a modest one-bedroom apartment.

U.S. Representative Keith Ellison (D-MN) wrote the preface for this year's report and was a guest speaker on a call to announce the launch of the report to the press.

The disparity between the Housing Wage needed to afford a rental home and workers' wages results in a shortage of 7.4 million rental homes nationwide that are affordable and available to extremely low income households, underscoring the need for greater investments in affordable housing solutions. NLIHC advocates for solutions like those in the United for Homes campaign and Mr. Ellison's "Common Sense Housing Investment Act" (H.R. 948), both of which call for modest reforms to the mortgage interest deduction - a tax expenditure that largely benefits wealthier homeowners who would be stably housed without the government's support - to generate billions of dollars in savings to reinvest in affordable rental housing programs.

To call national attention to the report and how this year's Housing Wage clearly demonstrates that housing costs are too high for low-wage workers and other vulnerable households, we invite you to participate in today's tweetstorm from 3:00 pm - 4:00 pm ET and share information about how the mismatch between the wages people earn and the price of decent rental housing affects you and your community.

Comment for * Docket No. FR-5173-P-01 * Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing
August 12, 2013

AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

The Fair Housing Act has protected classes including race, creed, gender, color, national origin, age, handicap, and familial status. Some locations, such as New York City and Philadelphia, include additional classes such as sexual orientation, marital status, partnership status, and source of income.

While the source of income is important, disposable or net income after taxes, is more of a criteria to determine a person's qualification for housing. Most wage earners are subject to compulsory payroll taxes, such as federal, state, and possibly city (or local) taxes, social security, medicare, and unemployment taxes, and these taxes approximate 30% of gross income.

People with fixed income, such as pensions (Social Security, Railroad Retirement), various forms of federal, state or local disability, public assistance, and housing assistance, are, in most cases, not required to pay payroll taxes because they are not wage earners, and the tax laws eliminate the filing requirement due to the modest income involved.

The stipulation that no more than 30% of income be used on housing costs seems to be the qualifier in most areas. One report, "Out of Reach 2013" published by the National Low Income Housing Coalition on March 11, 2013, mentions that a gross income amount of $39,080 (hourly wage of $18.79 @40 hours/week @52 weeks/year) is needed to qualify for a Fair Market Rental (FMR) of $977 ($39,080/12 = $3,257 x .30 = $977).

The $977 is fine; however, the payroll tax deductions are not included, so if a figure of 30% for payroll taxes is used, the $977 becomes $684 ($977 x .70) for disposable or net income available. Therefore, a person on a fixed income of $27,360 not subject to payroll taxes would also qualify for a Fair Market Rental of $977. If we follow the "Out of Reach 2013" example and use the 30% as qualifying for a FMR of $977, then the $39,080 for the wage earner should be reduced by 30% ($39,080 x .70 = $27,356) to accommodate the payroll tax deduction, or the person on a fixed income should have the 30% payroll tax figure added to the qualifying income ($27,360/12 = $2,280/.70 = $3,257 x .30 = $977). Therefore both individuals will be equally qualified. Disposable or net income after taxes becomes an equitable guideline for affordable housing, and gross income can be removed as a qualifier. Additionally, all persons on fixed income are not interested in senior citizen or handicapped housing, nor should they be, and they should not be discriminated against when applying for standard or "normal" housing.

In summary, fixed income (or lower income) households, primarily those with no payroll tax deduction, face discrimination in their ability to find affordable housing. I respectfully request consideration of including disposable, or net income after taxes, as a protected class under the Fair Housing Act (and also to include source of income besides New York City, Philadelphia, and other locations), and to include both of these classes as a part of the Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing rule being proposed by HUD under Docket No. FR-5173-P-01. AMERICAN OVERSIGHT

Nicole Fleming outside the Germantown house she shares with her three children. Her landlord has sought a rent increase from the PHA for four years, but the agency is not agreeing to the terms. TOM GRALISH / Staff Photographer

The Section 8 blues

Couldn't some way be found to keep family in their home of 9 years?

Nicole Fleming has been renting the same three-bedroom house in Philadelphia through Section 8 for the last nine years.

It's not perfect — some rooms could use a fresh coat of paint, she'd like some new carpeting or hardwood floors. But it's been a solid house on a safe, quiet Germantown street for her and her three children.

It's home.

So, why is she now packing up to leave?

Basically what we have here is a single mother with health issues stuck between a frustrated landlord who says he's been trying to get a fair rent increase from an unresponsive Philadelphia Housing Authority for at least four years, and the PHA, with lots of rules that don't seem to leave a lot of room for common sense.

HELEN UBIÑAS
@NotesFromHel

PHA has paid Fleming's landlord, Pesach Adlerstein, $765 a month in rent since she moved in. He wants $950, a figure he said he's basing on HUD rates for a fair market rent. Recently, PHA agreed to pay him $850, an amount he considers to be "too little, too late."

When I first talked to him, one of his biggest complaints about PHA was its lack of transparency. There seemed to be no rhyme or reason for its decisions. He said his calls and emails weren't answered for weeks and months, if ever.

If I doubted his claims of a less-than-transparent agency, I quickly realized he wasn't exaggerating. I tried to reach the executive director and you would have thought I was asking to be transferred to the Oval Office. After multiple days and calls, I eventually reached PHA spokeswoman Nichole Tillman.

She was sympathetic, but unmoved.

"PHA determines the appropriate rent by examining the amenities a property offers, studying comparable rental properties in the neighborhood, and using a third-party analysis," she said by email. "There is an affordable housing crisis in Philadelphia. In order to serve as many families possible, we cannot exceed these fair market rents. To do so would be unfair to prospective clients and taxpayers."

As simple as it would be to have a clear-cut villain here, I get it. The Housing Choice Voucher program serves nearly 50,000 residents. Almost 5,000 landlords participate in the program. It's a huge bureaucracy. There have to be rules. It's public money.

But ...

You didn't expect me not to have a "but," did you?

Public agencies need to be responsive — no one should have as hard a time getting through to PHA as the landlord and I had. They should also strive to be flexible. Bureaucracies fail most often when rules override flexibility and common sense.

And no matter how I look at this, I'm not convinced that it wouldn't save everyone involved time and money to just pay the extra $100 a month and not uproot a family that feels safe in a home they've lived in for years. The house is close to Fleming's job and the kids' schools.

PHA said it will direct her to services that could help her move, but it does not provide security-deposit assistance.

In the realm of all the things going on in the world these days, none of this may seem like a big deal — one landlord who disagrees with the PHA, one tenant who doesn't want to move.

But it illustrates a broader reality of what it's like to be poor and at the mercy of a bureaucratic system.

They set the rules, they, in essence, are in charge of your life.

So here we are.

After Fleming leaves, maybe Adlerstein will rent the place again. Maybe he won't.

"Maybe I'm not meant to be a landlord," he said.

Whatever he decides, it probably won't affect him much. Same with PHA, who made it clear that there are a lot more landlords where he came from.

"The pool of landlords is large and PHA continually recruits for more property owners to participate," Tillman wrote.

Meanwhile, Fleming is hunting for boxes to pack up her stuff, and trying to figure out how she's going to pay to move.

Between her part-time job at a nearby school and her benefits, there's never a lot of extra money, especially at the start of the school year for her children, ages 4, 13, and 19.

"I don't know what I'm going to do, but I have to do something."

Unlike her landlord and PHA, she has no other choice.
